300 dairymen faced with plant closing

By KENDACE BORRY

BAREVILLE - Approximately 300 farmers in the Lancaster County area received the unwelcome news recently that the New Holland Farms, Inc. would stop taking milk after November 12, and be discontinuing services. Economic reasons were stated for the notice.

The cut-off was made to all farmers using the services of New Holland Farms, Inc. According to some farmers involved with the company, this involves about 275,000 pounds of milk which had been processed daily at the plant.

A meeting of the dairy farmers involved was held October 24 at the Bareville Fire Hall in Lancaster County. Representatives from the Eastern Milk Producers Co-op attended the meeting and spoke of alternatives and plans to help the farmers affected by the closing of the plant.

Arden Tewksbury, president of Eastern Co-op spoke to the approximately 225 people present at the Resolutions adopted by Grangers

DANVILLE - The Pennsylvania State Grange, in a series of resolutions approved by delegates to the 105th annual convention, held here this week, opposed the dumping of sewage sludge on open land, mined areas and farmland until it can be proven that "this sludge is harmless to the environment."

Citing proposals to dispose of sewage sludge, especially that from cities, in this manner, pointed out that the material "may contain elements and minerals detrimental to the environment, and to air and water.

A second resolution called for continuation of "valuable sludge treatment research at Pennsylvania State University" with periodic reports of the work to the Department of Environmental Resources.

A third resolution opposing the dumping of sewage sludge as long as undesirable materials at unsafe levels, recommended that:

"Companies dumping

Ag interests may change at USDA

PARK RIDGE, Ill. - Allan Grant, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, has called upon Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland to withdraw or effectively modify his proposed reorganization of some USDA functions. Grant noted specifically the changes proposed for the Packers and Stockyards Administration, the Agricultural Extension Service, and Department's Office of Communications.

Noting that the P&SA has a good record of enforcement actions since becoming an independent agency, Grant said that it should remain a separate agency responsible directly to one of the assistant secretaries of Agriculture.

"We believe," Grant said, "that putting the Packers and Stockyards Administration under the Administrator of the Agricultural Marketing Service would diminish its effectiveness."

Noting that the proposed reorganization of the Department included the Surpluses squeezing area dairymen

By DIETER KRIEG

NEW PARK - Members of Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers meeting here Thursday night were told that the most difficult problem facing dairy farmers throughout the country - especially in the Middle Atlantic States - is the "tremendous increase in milk production which occurred during 1976 and 1977 and coupled with flat fluid milk sales."

It's been a really significant problem for the Baltimore based dairy cooperative due to the closing of the Koontz Dairy in that city. That left MCMP, which has approximately 1000 dairy farmer members in three states, holding thousands of extra gallons of milk, in the one hand, and an empty bag in the other. The proverbial empty bag came when Koontz went bankrupt and creditors, including MCMP, are now sharing in losses, as well as proceeds from the sale of Koontz property. "It would be foolish to speculate when partial and final settlement

From calf to cow, we formulate feeds and feeding programs with your profit in mind.

Are you in the dairy business to stay?

Are you ready to devote an hour or so of your time planning for a more profitable future?

If your answer to both questions is yes, you owe it to yourself to read what we have to say.

Unlike many other feed companies, we develop custom feeding programs for each individual dairy.

It all starts with a Pennfield man reviewing your total operation with you. Your goals. Your records. The health and overall condition of your milking cows and young stock. Your management practices. Your roughage feeding program. And other factors that have an effect on your profit potential.

We also conduct laboratory analysis of the roughages you feed to determine their nutrient content.

With the aid of computers, we then design a balanced feeding program specifically tailored to your operation and goals—a program that can improve your profits by reducing expenses, increasing production, or both.

For example, while using a Pennfield customized feeding program, 30 herds this past year averaged 1,688 lbs. more milk and 64 lbs. more fat per cow than the previous year.

There is no cost—or obligation—for this unique service. But you must take the first step by writing or phoning us. Do it today.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

Oct. 31-Nov. 6, 1977

Wind shifts snow drifts.

Repair sleds now John Brown convicted Oct 31, 1859 Last quarter of the moon Nov 3 Average length of days for the week, 10 hours, 14 minutes Russia launched satellite with dog in it Nov 3, 1957 Roses bloom in New Zealand now Antarctic seals bearing young Castles in the air cost a vast deal to keep up

Ask the Old Farmer: A man buys a drink for a friend in an old-time saloon ordering "sour mash and branch water" He then picks up his drink and toasts "Scrub of the brush" Would you please identify "branch water" and the toast RJ, Milwaukee, Wisc

Branch water is so called only by natives of certain sections of the country We have never been quite sure why branch water is held in high regard because it's nothing more than water from a small stream (branch), or, in a pinch, plain tap water "Scrub of the brush" is about the same as 'Hair of the dog" in meaning

Home Hints One can opener for pet food and one for people food is a good idea

The SR40 PC Packer is being used with automatic belt collecting systems.

This self-powered, one person operation can pack up to 45 cases per hour.

The spring cushion conveyors for more gentle, positive egg handling, takes the eggs thru the disc type orientors, which softly places them, points down, in the same direction, into our blue cups - here the operator merely places the package over the eggs.

After going around the stainless steel drum and onto the take-away belts, your uncracked and unchecked eggs are ready for your cooler.

We also feature a sponge type egg oiler which can be added to your packer now or in the future.

The totally mechanical, no electronic Egomatic SR40 PC Packer, with it's limited maintenance, will give you years of trouble free packing.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS By DIETER KRIEG, EDITOR

Ag is too important to shove around

"Agriculture has grown so big in its non-farm programs. which are essentially welfare, that a lot of the fellows working in the U S Department of Agriculture aren't really close to agriculture."

That statement comes from a Washington-based staff member of the American Farm Bureau Federation and was made in reference to a news story concerning proposed reorganization of USDA

That gives us reason to be concerned

Although most any move to streamline the workings of government should be praised, some questions may be raised if that so-called streamlining interferes with a direct relationship

The Cooperative Extension Service is one branch of USDA which may be altered In its proposed new capacity, this long-time agency of service and help to farmers will take in the needs of city folks as well If the city people need educational assistance, let them get their own Let's not dilute the Agricultural Extension Service by spreading it all around and allowing it to be saturated with ideas and programs which might end up neglecting the needs of farmers

The Extension Service belongs to farmers, and others directly involved in agriculture Let's not allow it to be taken over by interests which aren't tied in closely to the farming and gardening scene Too much of that has already taken place at USDA

Another proposal made by Secretary Bergland suggests placing the USDA's Office of Communications under the Office of Congressional Relations Such a direct political connection between USDA communications and Congress might seriously jeopardize creditability of news releases That's not to say, however, that present news releases put out by USDA are everything a journalist or farmer would want to ask for

A third area of concern to AFBF, and cattlemen in particular, is the proposal to place the Packers and Stockyards Administration under the Administrator of the Agricultural Marketing Service It's presently an independent agency AFBF challenges that removing its autonomy would reduce its effectiveness

Secretary Bergland may have a good idea in wanting to reorganize his Department, and he's well within his legal responsibilities to want to do so But any plan which would take away from the present effectiveness of agricultural agencies needs reconsideration

The Agriculture Department has been diluted and burdened enough with people and programs which are a far cry from the farmer's interests. If such a trend is allowed to continue, we may eventually have USDA replaced by something like USDHNN - "U S Department of Human Needs and Nutrition " We've already seen how a Select Committee with similar name treats agriculture And it's a well-known fact that government is trying to gain more and more say in what we eat Reducing the effectiveness of direct farmer services and programs will in effect put farmers further into the shadows of urban consumer groups and others who have little or no understanding of the workings of agriculture

Thoughts for the season

All the seasons of the year are beautiful in their own way, but Autumn is - to say the least - a lot more colorful Like the grand finale of a July Fourth fireworks display, Autumn's colors are an awe inspiring event which is followed by rest, sleep, and silence

Man has witnessed this beautiful season for thousands of years, and yet year after year it's a scene which captivates his sense of beauty. Autumn's beauty is one of those things you want to see again and again, and you always appreciate it, whether you're five or 105

Every season, and every magical happening in Nature is beautiful So beautiful, in fact, that man, in all his

DAY OF RECKONING

Lesson for October 30, 1977

Background Scripture:
Luke 12:35-48.
Devotional Reading:
Isaiah 5:1-7.

In the movies, on television, and in novels we are always happy to see the hero rewarded and the villian punished. Usually, that's the way it happens in fiction: justice is done at last.

In real life, however, it doesn't always work out that way, it seems. The villians "get away with murder," both figuratively and literally. The bad guys often continue to win and some even seem to die happy and prosperous. Then too, there are some "good guys" who go to their graves without vindication.

Bigger and better barns

Because the above state of affairs is obvious to all, there are many who live their lives with an "every-man-for-himself" attitude that once might have been called "ruthless," but today is likely to be dubbed as "aggressive enterprise." Why not? If there is no justice in the world - particularly if you can afford to buy it - why not get as much as you can as often as you can.

Jesus, however taught his followers that this "dog-eat-dog" approach life is simply an illusion, a rather dangerous illusion at that. Life in this world only appears to be without justice because our perspective is very limited. Unable to see beyond the grave, we assume that there is no reckoning beyond that. But, said Jesus, there is!

This approach to life is illustrated in one of his parables: the Wise and Unwise Stewards (Luke 12:41-48). In looking at the unwise steward, we might imagine that we are watching ourselves. For often, we have a tendency to think as he reasoned to himself: "My master is delayed on coming..." In contemporary language we would say: "there is no judge coming to hand out just deserts." And like the unwise steward, tired of waiting for justice that doesn't come, we assume that we can do what we please without any fear of judgement.

More than food

When people begin to believe that there is no divine judgement, they often live in a completely selfish and ruthless manner. So it was with the servant in the parable, but while he was beating the hired help and living like a glutton and drunkard, the master suddenly and unexpectedly returned. Though he had thought he was getting away with something, the unwise steward was judged and punished severely.

One of the central themes of Christianity is that, regardless of how things may seem in the world, there is reckoning - a reckoning, not just for some, but for all. The reckoning will be completely equitable: "Every one to whom much is given, of him will much be required; and of him to whom men commit much they will demand the more" (12:48). The key is to live life with an awareness of the reckoning that will ultimately come. Then, "Blessed is that servant whom his master when he comes will find so doing."

To Protect Trees And Shrubs For Winter

Trees and shrubs can get through the winter, but they can do it better with a little help from you. This information on winter protection might help save some of your valued trees and shrubs.

Thin-barked trees can be damaged by sunscald in the winter. That's why it's a good idea to wrap the trunks of such trees as sugar maple,

To Pick and Store Apples

This is apple picking season but it is also important on how to store them.

Remember, cool apples will keep longer. Ideally, they should be stored at 33 degrees Fahrenheit, at 90 percent humidity, and in dim light or darkness. Since many people can't provide these perfect conditions, the next best thing is a family-type refrigerator Just put apples in a plastic bag, then close the bag loosely or punch a few small holes in it so air can circulate.

Now as to picking - it's a good practice to store the fruit in shade as it's picked, then allow it to stand in the orchard overnight to cool. Then, place the apples in storage early in the morning before the temperature rises too much.

If you leave apples in a packing shed or in piles under the trees for one week, you'll shorten their storage life by about five weeks.

To Be Alert For Hunters

The small game hunting season will open on Saturday. I would like to remind hunters to be courteous and considerate while hunting on farms and to encourage better relations between farmers and hunters. Criticism of hunting often starts because of few hunters forget the landowner is his host. If hunters will observe a few sensible hunting manners, they will keep themselves from becoming uninvited guests.

Most landowners permit hunting when they are asked permission. Asking permission to hunt is a small courtesy in return for a pleasant day in the field, yet too few people follow this rule. Landowners may actually need protection from indifferent, careless and destructive hunters. When the trouble starts, many farmers post their land for protection from irresponsible hunters.

It takes very little time and costs nothing to observe a few common courtesy rules while hunting: ask permission before hunting, close gates, pick up litter after eating lunch, and stay out of unharvested crops.

Keep a safe distance from buildings and livestock and be sure to respect the property of others.

To Identify Next Year's Weed Problems

When you walk through your corn fields this fall and winter, you may be looking at next year's weed problem. Now is the best time to make field by field inventory of weeds that have not been controlled.

Weeds that are present should be identified and listed for each field. Often you will find a few weeds that have produced seed. Some of the annual grasses are prolific seed producers, and a minor infestation of the foxtails or fall panicum can be serious next year if not controlled.

If you are growing continuous corn and relying heavily on one herbicide, beware. Weeds that escape control will build up very rapidly and cause serious reductions in corn yield. By taking a weed inventory this fall, you can select the proper combination of herbicides to effectively control weeds next spring.

HERE'S WHAT FARMERS ARE SAYING ... ABOUT ORTHO UNIPEL FERTILIZER

"I have been using Ortho Unipels since 1963 from P. L. Rohrer & Bro., Inc. My program is 100 lbs/acre of 13-34-10 in the row plus 400 lbs/acre of 20-10-10 chiseled in the spring."

"The uniformity of Ortho Unipels is what I really like. I'm convinced that Ortho Starter 13-34-10 will not burn the corn seedling. I believe Unipels are the most economical fertilizer investment I can make."

Henry B. Leaman
1891 Windy Hill Rd.
Lancaster, Pa.

"I've used Unipels now for 9 years and have found good results every year. My typical fertilizer program is 600 lbs/per acre 20-10-10, applied in the spring either plowed down or chiseled-in. I really like the "handling" quality of the Unipel because I know that the nitrogen, phosphorus, and potassium in each and every pellet in the specific ratio assure me of a uniform spread resulting in uniform feeding "I'll never spread a blended fertilizer again."

Aaron J. Brubaker
1836 Marietta Avenue
Lancaster, Penna.

"I have been using Ortho Unipels for four years now. My program is Ortho Unipel 20-10-10 at 500 lbs/acre plus 118 lbs/acre of 13-34-10 corn starter. I really like the way Unipels handle and spread in the fields. With Unipels there is no clogging or build-up in the augers. I feel there is a definite yield advantage with Ortho Unipels. Ortho Unipels are the best fertilizer on the market today Since we have been using Ortho Unipels we have not seen any skipping in the fields."

Carl M. Horst
Cochranville, Pa

"I've used Unipels for 10 years and I've always been more than satisfied with my Ortho Unipels from P L. Rohrer & Bro., Inc On this particular field we applied 160 lbs. nitrogen/acre as 34-0-0 plus 150 lbs/acre 13-34-10. I have never experienced a toxic "burn" with this high water-soluble phosphorus, even when I place 150 lbs/acre directly in front of the no-til coulter "

"According to my soil test from Penn State, my soil calls for no potassium or phosphorus But soon and probably next year I will apply more potash because I'm removing large amounts of potash in my corn silage."

Elmer H. Rohrer
1270 Manor Blvd
Lancaster, Pa.

"I have been using Ortho Unipels since 1962 Our fertilizer program consists of Unipel 20-10-10 at the rate of 600 lbs/acre chiseled in the spring, plus 100 lbs of Ortho 13-34-10 corn starter in the row, plus 150 lbs liquid nitrogen. The advantages of Unipels to our farm are that we receive a uniform spreading in the field with Unipels, plus we have found that nothing works better in our planter than Ortho Unipels."

"In addition we have noticed that there is very little dusting when handling Ortho Unipels."

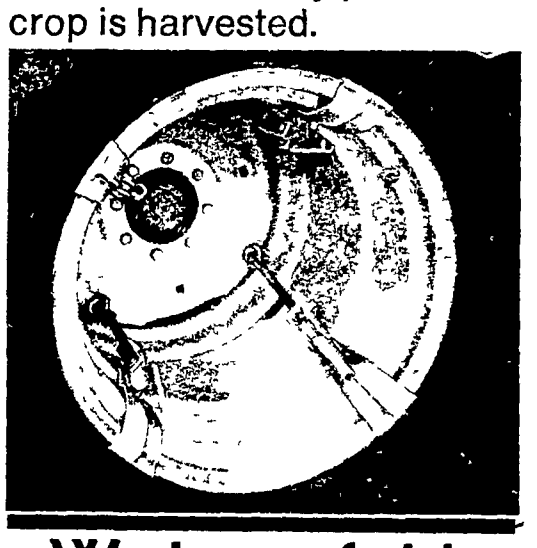
Combine Duals

Don't leave crops in the field

Combines without duals will, in many cases, leave crops unharvested in the fields. You can walk back through your fields and add up your losses.

Headers cannot adjust rapidly enough to get an even cut without duals. With soybeans for example, one wheel is on the ridge row and one wheel in the center of the row. This causes the header to be at an angle, with the result that only part of the crop is harvested.



Work wet fields sooner

A dualed combine has its weight spread over nearly twice the area of a combine with single wheels. This increased weight distribution allows you to work wet fields sooner, when its often more profitable.

October 27, 1977

Compared with the previous week's close: closing prices on slaughter steers were weak to 25 lower. Heifers were mostly steady, But Good and low-Choice under some pressure late. Cows were 50-1.00 higher and bulls firm to 50 higher.

Four day receipts 17,000 as compared 15,500 previous week and 13,900 a year ago. Despite the non-slaughter observance of Veteran's Day in many plants on Monday, prices on slaughter steers and heifers edged slightly upward. The early advance was lost later, however, as most interests accumulated sufficient live inventories to meet immediate requirements. Slaughter under Federal Inspection was moderately reduced by the Monday Holiday, but carcass trading was generally dull through midweek. The overall finish of the Fed cattle supply was attractive on Monday with a liberal percentage Choice, but Good to Average-Choice predominated on following days. Slaughter steers made up approximately 34 percent and Heifers 30 percent. Cows comprised 8 percent and feeders for auction fully 25 percent.

STEERS: Early, ten loads Choice and Prime 3-4 1095-1227 lbs. 43.35-43.50. At midweek, three loads Choice and Prime 3-4 1090-1200 lbs. 42.50-43.00. Choice 2-4 1000-1275 lbs. closed 41.75-43.00, mainly 41.75-42.50. Mixed good and choice 2-3 950-1225 lbs. 40.50-41.75. Good 2-3 37.50-40.50. Standard and Good 2-3 35.00-36.50.

Average of LS-214, detailed quotations, for Choice 900-1100 lb. steers this week 42.38; Choice 1100-1300 lbs. 42.50. Average weight steers first three days 1112 lbs. as compared 1111 lbs. previous week. Average weight heifers first three days 967 lbs. as compared 966 lbs. previous week.

HEIFERS: On Monday, moderate volume choice and prime 3-4 968-1093 lbs. 41.65-42.00, part load 3 1016 lbs. 42.10. At mid week, five loads choice and prime 3-4 959-1048 lbs. 41.50-41.60. Choice 2-4 875-1050 lbs. 39.75-41.00, occasionally 41.25. Mixed Good and Choice 2-3 875-1000 lbs. 38.50-40.00. Good 2-3 35.00-38.50. Small lots standard and Good 2-3 32.00-34.00.

COWS: Utility and commercial 2-4 23.50-25.50, few 26.00. Canner and Cutter 20.00-23.50.

LEBANON - Approximately 400 young adults with a special interest in horticulture, including Cindy Gebhard, Jonestown; Melissa Weaver, Fredericksburg; Amy Schaffer, Lebanon; Lisa Yordy, Palmyra; Bob Bensing, Lebanon, Jim Connor, Lebanon, Alison Scheib, Phoenixville; Janet Latshaw, Spring City; Jena Wyatt, West Grove, Joann Wyatt, West Grove; Warren Hilberg, Phoenixville; Dean Nafziger, Phoenixville; and Dave Foresman, adult leader from Kennett Square, are taking part in the forty-third annual National Junior Horticulutral convention held this weekend in Winston-Salem, North Carolina.

The NJHA meeting will bring together young horticulture leaders from across the nation to compete in various demonstrations and contests, take in tours of the Winston-Salem area, and learn about the world of horticulture.

The convention is the focal point for national competition in such areas as environmental education and beautification; production and marketing; experimental horticulture; "speaking of horticulture"; gardening; plant propagation; and achievement and leadership recognition.

The horticulture contest will pit winning teams from over 35 states in a challenging and educational activity. Over 200 contestants will compete in a written test, identify a wide variety of plant materials, and judge classes of vegetables, fruits, flowers, and ornamental specimens for consumer quality.

Other program highlights include workshops ranging from corsages and floral arrangements to sand sculpture. Climax of the four-day conference will be the forty-third awards banquet where regional and national winners in the various categories of competition will be announced.

Keystone Expo opens next week

HARRISBURG - The opening of the Farm Show doors on Saturday, November 5 will mark the 21st birthday of the Keystone International Livestock Exposition, one of the nation's greatest international livestock shows.

The Exposition is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, the Pennsylvania Livestock Association, and the Pennsylvania Farm Show Commission. The purpose of the exposition is to advance the livestock industry, to encourage conservation and to emphasize the meat-type animal.

The continued success of the Keystone International can be seen in last year's entries: a record 3978 head of livestock representing nearly half the states and Canada.

This year, for the first time, a separate division has been established for "special breeds" in the beef cattle department, open to all breeds with national associations and percentage papers, not eligible in other breed shows. The growing popularity of "special breeds," such as Limousin, Chianina, Simmental, Longhorn, and Santa Gertrudis, has made a significant impact on the livestock industry in recent years.

The American Chianina Association has announced that they will award $5000 to the owner of any registered Chianina steer which is judged grand champion on-foot over all breeds at the Keystone International.

A full week of judging in general horse, sheep, swine, and beef cattle will be complimented by many special events which will give the visitor a better understanding of the livestock industry.

Recognizing that the future is in the hands of farm youth, the Keystone International provides junior categories in competition and judging.

The 21st Annual Keystone International Livestock Exposition runs from November 5 through 11 at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg. A detailed program may be obtained from the Keystone International Livestock Exposition, Farm Show Building, Harrisburg, Pa. 17120, or by calling 717-787-2095.

Area farmers attend Agway annual meeting

SYRACUSE, N.Y. -- Lancaster County farmers were among the 5000 persons gathering gather in the Onondaga County War Memorial, here, October 27-28, for the 13th annual meeting of Agway Inc.

Agway Inc., a farm supply and food marketing cooperative owned by 121,000 member-stockholders, serves agriculture in 12 northeastern states Its headquarters are in Syracuse.

Representing the Garden Spot Zone of Agway at the two-day session were 40 committeemen, members and guests

They heard reports on the past year's operation from chairman of the board George Steele of Pocopson, Pa. and general manager Ronald N. Goddard

My Thoughts .....

And welcome to them

By JOANNE SPAHR
Assistant Editor

"Look out, pheasant, here I come," I exclaimed gloriously to myself and to an imaginery cockbird as I barged clumsily through the row of corn, trying desperately to keep up with the big strides of the hunters to my right.

I was stalking that illusive quarry - the ringneck pheasant - with my father and his hunting friends just as I always had done from the time I was able to walk along the end row to flush out the game.

But, this year was different - I was carrying a gun for the first time in my whole life

Exhilarated as I was, I recalled conversations at target practice between my brother and myself that went something like this·

"Jo, what are you aiming at?" says big brother.

"What do you think I'm aiming at - I'm aiming at the target," I reply, aggravated.

"Are you sure?" he asks incredulously, smirking nastily

"Yes, I'm sure "

"Then how come you haven't hit it yet?

No reply.

Well, maybe I never hit anything at target practice, but when the real live bird flew out, I knew I'd be sure to get a hit.

Then it happened. Suddenly, out of the crisp, cool Autumn air, a majestic, seemingly frantic, pheasant careened above the corn stalks, beating its wings on invisible drums in the air.

Heart pounding, I fumbled with the gun in my hands when, bang, a report that sent a heart-stopping shock through my body also caught the pheasant, and held it in a statuesque pose at the height of its ascent, and then rapidly felled it to the ground

"It's yours, Jo, it's yours," someone yelled. "Go get it "

Mindlessly, I began hurdling through the fallen, entangled corn, hunting for the bird. When I found it, I proudly handed the prize to my dad who stuffed it into his hunting coat with a smile.

I never did hit any other birds that day, but it didn't matter. When we went in, I thought over the morning's activities It had been a pretty good hunt. I'd carried my gun for the first time, and had a pheasant to call my own in Dad's jacket But, most of all, I shared a secret with one of those hunters out there which I knew I'd never forget I hadn't fired a shot all day.

Herbert Wessel, president of Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers, expresses confidence in MCMP's membership being able to cope with current "opportunities."

Surplus milk is the number one problem for dairymen right now, says Ralph Strock, general manager of Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers.

Heavy surpluses

will be made to creditors," said MCMP general manager Ralph Strock.

Although the surplus milk and Koontz insolvency situations have blemished the cooperative's financial situation, it nevertheless reports a higher income for 1977 than it had in 1976, and looks forward to improved conditions next year.

The general outlook for dairy farmers for the remainder of this year is mixed. Feed prices are low, and the milk price - feed cost ratio is at its best level since late 1972. This has spurred milk production nationwide. Maryland Co-op is not alone in its quest to find outlets for surplus milk. The surplus situation, in short, will continue to be a burden for middle Atlantic dairymen through at least 1977.

With reference to the surplus situation, Strock and other officials of Maryland Co-op remarked that their Holly Milk Plant, now under construction near Carlisle, is coming a year too late. Built to be the most modern plant of its kind in the world, MCMP holds half interest in the facility along with Inter-State Milk Producers of Philadelphia. Dairymen belonging to the two cooperatives are lookng forward to the opening of the plant to alleviate the surplus problem. Construction of the Holly plant is said to be behind schedule in some respects, but ahead in others. Overall, the plant is still expected to be in operation next May.

The plant is designed to handle 2 million pounds of milk daily. Being built at a cost of over $8 million, the plant features the latest automated equipment and technology. Included in the facilities are nine silos, several of which stand 75 feet high.

There is plenty of milk available for the new plant, the 124 York County members of MCMP were told. During the first eight months of this year, MCMP marketed 237 million pounds of milk in excess of the needs of Class I buyers to eight processing plants. This represents and increase of 67 million pounds over 1976 and 112 million pounds more than was marketed through manufacturing channels in 1975, explained Strock. Between MCMP and Inter-State, the plant could have been utilized to peak capacity beginning in April of this year.

The subject of handling surplus milk dominated the meeting. It was noted that much of the surplus milk from MCMP has been handled through the Allentown cheese plant owned by the Lehigh Valley Milk Producers Cooperative. MCMP management expressed gratitude and appreciation for these arrangements, pointing out that such cooperation is particularly noteworthy since the entire marketing area is flooded with milk.

The arrangment with Le-Hi is part of an agreement formed nearly a year ago which brought several dairy cooperatives from this area under one umbrella. Known as the BROWN'S CALF NURSER . . . .

"the milk replacer with the quality your calves deserve!"

HERD REPLACEMENTS GET A FAST START . . .

Quality calves deserve a quality milk replacer...a product that will get the baby calf off to a fast start and provide nutrition and performance necessary for healthy, vigorous heifers. BROWN's CALF NURSER is formulated with special nutrients which can be efficiently utilized by the sensitive digestive system of the baby animal including Milk Protein, Milk Sugar, Milk Mineral and a Special Animal Fat to provide the high level of energy needed for maximum performance.

Years of research have gone into the development of this highly nutritious milk replacer with all the essential nutrients including protein, energy, minerals and vitamins.

A calf can be fed BROWN'S CALF NURSER at approximately half the cost of whole milk. This high quality milk replacer will completely take over the job of feeding replacement calves after the first 3 to 4 days of colostrum.

tulip tree, American linden, flowering dogwood and plum. You can wrap them now, but be sure to take the wrapping off late next spring.

It's best to use commerical tree wrapping, starting at the ground level and working up the tree, overlapping about every half-inch. Tie the wrap with twine, but be careful not to tie it too tight.

Smaller ornamental plants can be mulched, but don't do this until there have been several hard freezes. Mulching will not keep the soil from freezing but it helps keep the soil frozen to prevent root injury caused by alternate freezing and thawing of the soil. It also prevents moisture loss from the soil suface.

To Clean Pesticide Equipment

Now that gardening season has ended, do not neglect to empty, clean and properly store your spraying and dusting equipment. Never store equipment which contains pesticides or pesticide residues.

A thorough washing with hot water and detergent is best for sprayers. Be sure to run the hot wash water through the hoses and nozzle. Make sure the sprayer is thoroughly dry before storing it in a dry place. To assure drying and reduce the chances of rusting, lock the nozzle in the open position to permit free air movement. Addition of automotive radiator rust inhibitor will help prevent corrosion during storage.

Inspect the parts, rubber gaskets and valves. Replacement parts might be easier to find now than in the spring.

Dusters should be emptied. Use the dust on the garden or flowers in the recommended manner or return to original container. Clean the duster well and oil the moving parts. Again, store in a dry place to prevent rusting

Children should be discouraged from playing with pesticide spray equipment, even when it is clean. Encourage children to develop good habits around spray equipment. Remind them that sprayers are not play toys. A sprayer which is left dirty over winter will probably not work at all next spring. Some chemicals will corrode the metal parts over an extended period of time and others will dry into a clay-like consistency which defies removal.

A sprayer which is given good care now can last many years and can result in a big savings in terms of parts and labor. Also saves frustrations next season when neglected equipment probably won't work properly, if at all.

State Grange convention

Farm woes include energy, government programs

DANVILLE - State Senator Patrick J. Stapleton has warned delegates to the 105th annual convention of the Pennsylvania State Grange that the "energy crisis is still not a thing of the past."

Speaking at the opening session of the convention Monday at Danville High School, Senator Stapleton said that fuel and fertilizer shortages are a continuing threat to farmers. "There are reports from Washington of fuel allocations for agriculture," he declared, "despite earlier assurances of fuel priorities.

"I need not tell you that such a shortage is a threat to the economy of our country and that a one hundred per cent allotment of the fuel needs for every farmer is the only way to keep this nation fed - and fed with produce which every citizen of this nation can afford.

In his address, Stapleton - chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee - complimented the Grange for its interest in promoting legislative action benefitting farmers and rural residents.

"You can talk all you l e in your barn, your liv..g room, your grocery store, or across your neighbor's fence," Senator Stapleton said, "but you still have to get that word down to Harrisburg."

J. Luther Snyder, State Grange master, called attention particularly of the need for cooperation and consideration among civic planners to establish "sensible priorities to promote the general well-being of all people"

He told the group that the "glaring weakness in planning by groups with self-centered interests is that they see only part of a problem without concern for any other aspect of it.

The result, too often," he declared, "is the creation of new problems without really solving anything."

Turning to the national economy, Snyder cited the growing cost of governmental programs. He pointed out that a welfare reform program to put recipients to work seems commendable, but will cost several billion dollars more a year than the one it replaced.

He also noted that revision of the food stamp program eliminated payment of any portion by recipients. Now, he added, we are told stamps are acceptable in restaurants as well as in grocery stores.

In the face of these and other increases in federal spending, Snyder added, the administration has under study a plan to cut federal taxes.

He also reminded the group that Congress has passed, and President Carter had signed a bill to raise the national debt ceiling to 752 billion dollars, an increase of $52 billion.

"How much longer," he asked, "can we go on spending our way deeper into debt?

"And how can we face the eventual day of reckoning?"

Pennsylvania State Grange delegates Monday called for a U.S. Agriculture Department study to determine the feasibility of using animal waste as a source of energy.

The delegates voted to support U.S. Senate Bill 569 - the family farm energy conversion bill - which would authorize the study. The resolution noted that extensive but imcomplete research has been done in the field of energy conversion and recommended that the work be expanded.

The possiblity of increasing energy sources by at least 10 per cent was suggested in the resolution.

Delegates also approved a resolution opposing "any legislation that proposes to legalize new forms of gambling in Pennsylvania, or to expand existing legal gambling activities in Pennsylvania."

In a third resolution approved by the delegates, the State Grange expressed its support of legislation that would permit publication of names and addresses of all offenders - including juveniles - involved in serious crimes such as murder, rape, arson and burglary.

They were among the first of more than 20 policy-making resolutions that will be considered at the 105th annual State Grange Convention.

Almost 150 Junior Grangers, from 5 to 14 years old, participated in the second annual Junior Day at the state session. A team of 32 members from Mercer County exemplified the junior degree at a meeting of delegates Monday morning.

In her report to delegates, Mrs. Alan Merkel, state director of Junior Grange activities, announced the following winners of National Junior achievement awards: First, Virginville Junior Grange No. 426, second, Pioneer Junior Grange No. 452, and third, Bernville Junior Grange No. 152, all of Berks County; fourth, Mill Run Junior Grange No. 496, of Fayette County; honorable mention, Goshen Junior Grange No. 358 of Chester County and Harmony Junior Grange No. 289 of Lehigh-Northampton County.

MEDICINE AND MANAGEMENT

By CARL TROOP, VMD

Confined animals require better management

Cold weather brings a whole new series of management problems and decisions to be made regarding the health of the livestock. And most of these problems arise not because of the cold weather but because the animals need to be confined to a greater degree than during the warmer periods of the year.

Confinement is not a necessity. Many animals will do as well or better in the open as long as there is some protection from the harshest weather, adequate water available at all times, and a little extra feed to compensate for the extra energy needed to maintain body temperature.

For the animals confined to buildings, however, the challenge to keep them healthy requires more and better management, precautions, and constant vigilance. The advice of "clean, dry, well ventilated and free from drafts" must have been written and read thousands of times. But their importance; especially "well ventilated and free from drafts," cannot be stressed too much.

"Clean" is most important for infant animals as the newborn is very susceptible to many diseases. As it develops strength and matures it also picks up resistance to many of the diseases that constantly challenge it, and cleanliness becomes less important. Not that one should become sloppy and allow the animals to wallow in sludge, but the time which one can allot to keeping areas clean should be concentrated on the areas where the very young are raised.

"Dry" needs no explanation. Again, this is most important for the very young but should not be neglected at any age.

"Well ventilated and free from drafts" is most important at any age. Animals in a confined area without any ventilation or without adequate ventilation are asking for trouble. They are constantly breathing the gases and fumes from their own feces and urine. Ammonia and the other gases are very irritating to the lungs and makes them very susceptible to any infectious organism which may be present. They are constantly rebreathing their own air instead of fresh air, depleting the amount of oxygen and increasing the amount of toxic gases taken in. Just remember, if you walk into a building or pen and feel the slightest bit uncomfortable because of stuffiness, stagnant air, or air that is actually burning to the nose, these animals are living under these conditions 24 hours a day. They cannot just walk away from it. These are the places where the animals are often sick or just not doing well, treated and treated and treated, only to hear that the medicine just must not be any good.

So what to do about poor ventilation. Open some windows or knock a hole in the wall? In comes bad Mr. Draft. What is a draft? If you are standing in a building and can feel air moving against your body that feels cool to the body, you are in a draft. Again, if you feel chilled or uncomfortable, remember the animals are under those conditions 24 hours a day. Drafts cause chills and excess heat loss and are particularly harmful if the animals are in a wet environment yet. The only time drafts are not particularly harmful is when the weather is hot (80's or 90's or higher) that the air moving over the body is not appreciably cooler than the body surface itself.

What, then is good ventilation? Good ventilation is providing fresh air circulated in such a manner that one cannot tell that the air is moving. Exhaust fans are ideal for this. Fresh air is drawn in through cracks and crevices and small openings and drifts through the building, replacing the older air as it is expelled. Windows and doors can be used to provide ventilation in the absence of fans, but should always be opened on the side or sides away from the prevailing winds at the time. This requires much attention as a shift in the wind may require some to be closed or others to be opened during the course of a day. Always check for drafts in any area where there will be animals.

When planning new buildings this should be one of the prime considerations, adequate ventilation. Consultation with the Extension office or other qualified individual will be the most profitable time spent in the design of a new building.

Clean, dry, well ventilated and free from drafts. These eight words are the key towards healthy confinement at any time of the year.

Aflatoxins are a metabolism byproduct from a common mold or fungus. They occur primarily in feed grains and high-energy feed products. Such contamination has been running high this Fall in harvested corn from Georgia, Florida and certain other states in the Southeast. But it does not appear to be a serious problem in Maryland-grown corn.

Protect plants from winter injury

NEWARK, Del. - Last winter caused extensive damage to many ornamentals in the state. Some varieties of holly, crepe myrtle, pyracantha, azalea, rhododendron, camelias and evergreen magnolias were badly injured.

These plants are somewhat borderline in Delaware, explains University of Delaware extension horticulturist Dr. Charles Dunham. When we have colder than normal temperatures, injury may be expected. For this reason, plants of these species should be selected carefully to obtain the hardiest kinds. Ask your nurseryman about the hardiness of a variety at the time you're buying it.

Small and newly planted specimens are always more prone to injury than larger, established plants, reminds Dunham. So they should always receive extra protection over winter.

There are a number of steps a homeowner can take to protect plants against winter injury. The first is to make sure there's enough soil moisture. So far this has been a wet fall, but if it should turn dry before severe weather sets in, water plants to ensure a good supply of soil moisture for them.

Soil mulches are one of the best means of reducing winter injury, points out the specialist. For broadleaf evergreens, put down mulches before the ground freezes. Use two to four inches of an organic mulch to insulate the soil against deep freezing. The mulch should be applied to the soil underneath the spread of the branches, but pull it away from direct contact with the trunk or stems. In contrast, mulches for herbaceous perennials like chrysanthemums are applied after the ground freezes and should be put down over the top of the plant. Here it is best to use loose open mulches like salt hay or pine needles.

Small, newly planted evergreens can be protected by covering them with an inverted peach basket. This may have to be tied to a stake in a windy location. A plastic bag inverted over stakes can also be used. Just be sure to punch holes in the top of the bag to prevent excessive heat buildup on sunny days. Again, tie the bag to prevent its blowing away. Some garden centers also sell plastic cones

Portions of new farm bill

President Carter believes the food stamp provisions within the 1977 Food and Agriculture Act "are a great step forward in providing a simple food stamp system and one that would be easy to administer, one that is more equitable, which eliminates the pervasive threat of fraud."

By DIETER KRIEG

WASHINGTON – Although the new Farm Bill, signed last month by President Carter, is just a few weeks old, it's already taking effect in agricultural circles.

The President, in remarks made at the signing of the Bill in the Rose Garden, referred to it as the most far-reaching and important piece of agricultural legislation that has been passed in 40 years.

"I think it is also accurate to point out," the President commented, "that more than has ever been the case in the past, preofessional nutritionists and their representatives, private citizens, consumer groups, have been involved in the preparation of this legislation."

In making his remarks, the President acknowledged agriculture as being the Nation's number one economic resource, and added that the 1977 bill places a heavy emphasis on the strength of the American farm family.

Two items on the program which are of importance to farmers in this region are grain target prices and loan rates. Consideration might also be given to provisions which apply to disaster programs, although details of that are still pending the resolution of a new all-exclusive crop insurance program. Highlights of the proposal were printed in Lancaster Farming two weeks ago, after Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland revealed his thoughts on that subject to a gathering of farm editors, here.

The Food and Agriculture Act of 1977 applies to crops being harvested right now, or those which have been in bins since an earlier harvesting time this Summer.

The per bushel target price and minimum loan rate for corn are both $2.00 for 1977, according to provisions of the new bill. In 1978 the minimum loan rate will be $2.00 and the target price $2.10. Loan rates and target prices for barley and grain sorghum will be at levels determined to be "fair and reasonable in relation to the levels set for corn," says a USDA information sheet on the matter.

The target price per bushel for wheat is $2.90 for this year increasing to $3.00 in 1978. But if production is reduced to 1.8 billion bushels next year, the target price will be $3.05. Minimum loan rates will be $2.25 in 1977 and $2.35 in subsequent years, the USDA reports.

The provision for deficiency payments states that payments made for feed grains, rice and wheat will be made on the effective allotment. This year's payments for feed grains and wheat will be based on the target prices announced under the old law for unplanted acreage and on the target prices of the new law for planted acreage with in the allotment, says USDA. After this year the payments will be based on planted acreage rather than the allotment for all crops.

Sections of the 1977 Food and Agriculture Act which deal with commodity programs were reportedly the most controversial. A USDA spokesman says it "required constant negotiation and compromise to arrive at target and loan levels that were reasonably acceptable to Congress.

In other sections of the new bill, USDA is maintaining a minimum milk support price of 80 per cent minimum with semi-annual adjustment. Neither now, nor under terms of the new bill, may the support price for milk rise above 90 per cent of parity.

In other sections of the new bill, USDA is maintaining a minimum milk support price of 80 per cent parity until March 31, 1979. After that date it'll change to a 75 per cent minimum with semi-annual adjustment. Neither now, nor under terms of the new bill, may the support price for milk rise above 90 per cent of parity.

Wool support prices will be at 85 per cent. Price supports will be adjusted annually. Right now they're 99 cents per pound.

Bookkeeper indemnity programs were extended for four years.

The President, inspeaking about the Bill, spoke highly of the efforts which were made to tie target prices to production costs, adding more equity can thereby be insured.

GRAIN RESERVES

A farmer-owner reserve program for wheat is mandated, with terms and conditions essentially identical to the program announced last April. Farmers are encouraged to hold wheat off the market until prices rise to at least 140 per cent (minimum can be between 140 and 160 per cent of the $2.35 loan, or $3.29 to $3.76 per bushel. The Secretary can call the loan when the market price reises above 175 per cent of the loan, or $4.11 per bushel. There is a minimum of 300 million bushels (19.1 million tons), with the maximum adjustable pending the outcome of international grain reserve talks, says USDA.

The Bill includes a farm storage facility loan program similar to that announced in April.

Sales of grain by the Commodity Credit Corporation can be made at 115 per cent of the loan level except when a farmer-owned reserve program is in effect. Then the minimum is 150 per cent of the loan, as supported by the Administration.

Commenting on this provision, Carter said: "Although we have been blessed recently with bountiful crops, we don't have an excessive reserve supply of crucial food and feed items on hand. This bill permits us to maintain adequate reserves, and it also encompasses a provision that is very dear to me; that is, that most of the reserves will be under control of farmers and that there is a very careful safeguard against the dumping of agricultural products on the market artificially to force prices down and, therefore, to damage the economy of farm families."

Acreage allotments have been eliminated in the new farm bill, and in the near future, set-aside regulations will be declared by USDA.

The reserves program essentially offers producers an extended loan program of two to five years' duration, explains USDA, adding the quantity of wheat in such a farmer-held reserve shall not be less than 300 million bushels nor more than 700 million bushels. No such limitation have been placed on reserves for feed grains, although they may be imposed later.

As an incentive to producer participation, the Secretary of Agriculture may pay annual storage costs of the grain as well as waive or adjust interest rates.

COSTS OF THE FARM BILL

President Carter had no reluctance in signing the new Farm Bill, although he admitted it was more costly than he had preferred to see.

Explaining his feelings about the costs of the 4-year program, Carter said: "We have an exceptional case at the present time in agriculture where additional expenditures are required. One of the elements of agricultural legislation and appropriations which is often overlooked is that at least half the costs that are normally attributed to an agricultural bill are actually in the form of redeemable loans, and this is not an expenditure from the federal government. It is an investment in a very good and sound commitment.

The loan is secured and the loans are repaid, but under our present accounting system this is identified as an expenditure and it tends to distort in the public mind the degree of federal investment in agriculture," the President commented.

DISASTER PROVISIONS

The disaster program for feed grains and wheat is extended for two years to allow time for Congress to pass new crop insurance legislation, as called for by the Agriculture Secretary.

If a farmer could not plant wheat and/or feed grains due to disaster, then payments for it will be based on 75 per cent of the established yield. That won't go into effect, however, until next year. There's no change involved for 1977. The price to be used for such disaster payments will be one-third of the established price.

If low yields are the results of a disaster, then the payment formula used for computing eligibility and payments amounts to 50 per cent of the established price for losses below 60 per cent of the established yield on the acreage planted for harvest. Again, this is for feed grains and wheats, figures vary with other crops.

Payment limitations for the above programs to any one farming operation are $40,000 for next year, and rise by $5000 during each of the next two years.

Livestock producers facing an emergency due to natural disasters will be assisted in one of three ways: Government stocks can be made available to them at the loan price; USDA can purchase areas, and make it available at a reasonable price; or USDA can provide cash assistance to producers.

ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS

Sections dealing with foreign food assistance are said to contain a series of provisions designed to increase competition and obviate fraud within the foreign food assistance program. Agricultural commodities may be used to carry out urgent humanitarian missions, even when supplies are tight, says USDA.

At home, the major change in assistance programs is that food stamps no longer have to be purchased. According to spokesmen for the Administration, the Bill also strengthens work requirements, reduces net income eligibility, provides for several types of deductions,

"Another aspect of this bill that particularly appeals to me is the reduction of Government interference in the agricultural economy. This is always devoutly to be sought, and I think Congress has very wisely achieved this goal in the current legislation," says the President.

Coffee shops aren't a farmer's hang-out

By JERRY WEBB
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. – Do farmers waste time in coffee shops? This myth keeps cropping up in farm magazines, especially during the Winter months. There seems to be a generally held feeling among farm magazine editors that a lot of serious planning, and for that matter a lot of time wasting, is done by farmers at local coffee shops. Time and time again I've seen this philosophy stated in some of the nations' most respected farm magazines.

Judging from what a few farmers have told me and from my own observations I would have to say that a few of of today's farmers spend much time in coffee shops. Why the farm press has this notion is beyond me. Maybe there's a difference in the agriculture of the Midwest where most of the farm magazines are edited or maybe it's a difference in the background of some of us who were raised on a farm at a time when coffee shops weren't in fashion.

In my farm neighborhood I doubt there was a farmer who knew what a coffee shop even was in those days. Certainly he wouldn't go there. He might stop by the general store in the closest village and swap a few stories, or he might go to an auction at a neighboring farm when he really didn't plan to buy anything. But he certainly wouldn't traipse off to town and spend time in a coffee shop, restaurant, or any other kind of food serving facility. If he wanted coffee he could get it in his own kitchen. And if he wanted to swap stories or to find out what other farmers were doing, he'd go visit them.

I think for the most part that situation still exsists. Sure farmers get to town a lot more and the towns they go to are a lot bigger and they all know what a coffee shop is. But it's my guess that not many of them frequent such places and I'm sure they resent the implication that they waste time drinking coffee or going to town. Somehow I can't see a group of farmers, or a single farmer for that matter, who at the appointed hour drops whatever he's doing out in the barn, the machine shed or the back 40, gets in his pickup truck and heads to town where he meets with his counterparts over a cup of coffee and where they tell stories, trade farming information or otherwise pass the time of day.

While urban homemakers may be noted for their coffee klatches and city office workers can't get through the morning without a coffee break, I'm afraid the coffee shop rumor just doesn't fit farmers.

Oh, there may be a few with nothing better to do who find their way into town and hang around various places. I can remember them when I was a county Extension agent. They would stop by the county agent's office—that was a favorite hangout—where they could find other farmers and talk about farming. A lot of good information was passed on in that environment but also some of the time was wasted.

I'll never forget one experience as a young county agent thinking I was really helping a certain individual. There I was, passing on all of this information, handling out bulletins, giving away blueprints and otherwise setting him on the track to future success. After an hour or so of this intensive farm management training, he looked at his watch, commented that he reckoned that his wife was finished at the beauty shop and guessed he'd better be on his way. So much for managment training that day.

There were other time-wasters in Bowling Green, a classic small town in rural Missouri with its courthouse in the square and the various stores and services located around it. You could look out the courthouse window and see the loafers on the bench and occasionally a farmer that you knew would stop, chat with the fellows for a while and then move on, and maybe if you'd stop by the local implement dealer you'd see three or four individuals seated on a bench and maybe one of them would be a farmer. The feed store was a favorite hangout for a lot of folks, including some farmers who had a little time to kill while they were in town. But the coffee shop never was much of a hangout for farmers. That's where the courthouse gang went. They went there for their morning coffee break, they went there again for lunch and with any luck at all they were back in the afternoon for coffee.

Farmers have been known to waste some time, especially at certain seasons of the year. Of course, right now is not that season. Farmers are working hard to get their crops harvested. Weather permitting, they're on the go from dawn to dark. Maybe in a few more weeks they'll have a little time to slow down and maybe do some things that are not of the highest priority. No doubt this winter there'll be days when the weather is not suitable for certain kinds of outside work when a farmer can, in a sense, take it easy.

That doesn't mean he'll spend the day in bed or he'll go hang around town, sitting on various benches in feed sores and implement shops. He may show up at the weekly auction a little more frequently during these periods. He may go around pricing equipment that he's really not sure of buying, or scouring around for bargains that he could do without. And maybe he'll go visit a friend or a neighbor or go to the farm show in Harrisburg or to some other agricultural gathering that he wouldn't even consider during his busy season.

FFA holds pumpkin contest

Courtesy Ephrata Review

The Cloister Chapter of the Future Farmers of America of Ephrata High School recently held their annual elementary school pumpkin growing contest. Sixth grade pupils were given pumpkin seeds in May, along with instructions on how to grow them. Each student was then permitted to exhibit two pumpkins in last week's judging, one in the heaviest and one in the best-shaped category. Winners were announced by Kevin Smoker, contest chairman.

The judges, all members of Cloister FFA, also awarded ribbons to the first six placings in each category.

George wins Outstanding Young Farmer award

ELYSBURG -- Lloyd George, Catawissa R2, was recently selected as Pennsylvania's Outstanding Young Farmer for 1977 by the Pa. Jaycees at their state convention in Allentown. George's entree was submitted by the Elysburg Area Jaycees where he had been the local winner.

The program is promoted by the Jaycees in the belief that public understanding and knowledge of the farmer are vital in order for the farmer to efficiently produce foodstuffs for expanding communities.

George and his wife, Dolly, operate a 358 acre operation that involves feeding 250 head of cattle for slaughter each year, a cow-calf herd, and extensive cropping acreage.

In his cropping system, George uses such practices as no-till corn planting in 30 inch rows, rye grain seeded in standing as a cover crop, and direct seeded alfalfa. By soil testing and fertilizing accordingly, he has corrected soil nutrient imbalances and increased his corn yield by 45 bushels per acre using less fertilizer. He averages 130 bushels for 105 acres of corn. His alfalfa crop averages 4.5 tons per acre.

He feeds high moisture corn alfalfa haylage to eliminate grain drying and grinding costs and the need to buy protein. He has built an automated feeding system, routinely implants his cattle, and is presently in the process of constructing a lagoon.

George keeps records through the Pa. Farm Management and Business Analysis Service. A complete breakdown of his operation is run through a computer annually. The computer printout is evaluated to locate strengths and weaknesses of the operation and to use capital in the best way. For instance, a layer operation was eliminated as the computer analysis showed little returns for the investment in that operation.

To answer the question of why he farms, George replied that he was raised on a farm and enjoys farming. He noted that one of his current goals is to again increase feedlot cattle numbers when his son comes of an age to help in the operation.

By using automation and therefore reducing labor requirements, George is also able to spend time traveling with his wife and their two children.

Besides being involved with the farm, George is active in his church and has been a livestock committee member of the Pa. Farmers Association for 15 years.

First runner up in the state Outstanding Young Farmer program was Dale Siegfried, a livestock and grain farmer from Mertztown R2. J. Robert Kindig, a dairyman from Conestoga R1 was named second runner-up.

The contest has been sponsored by the Quaker State Motor Oil Company for the past 20 years.

The Georges will travel to Topeka, Kansas, in February to compete for national honors. The national contest is sponsored by the John Deere Company.

Lloyd George, Catawissa R2, was named the Outstanding Young Farmer for 1977 of Pa. by the Jaycees. He runs a 358 acre cattle and cropping operation.

Hunters must tag turkeys

HARRISBURG - Successful turkey hunters in Pennsylvania are reminded to tag their birds and report their harvests to the Game Commission.

A hunter is permitted to take only one turkey during the Fall hunting season which opens today. There are two turkey tags (Fall and Spring) attached to each hunting license, so the hunter should be sure to use the correct tag for the bird harvested.

Turkey kill report cards, which must be filed within five days by successful hunters, are issued with hunting licenses and have numbers which correspond with the numbers on the licenses.

Each morning, America's 300,000 dairy farmers start their cow herds on the first of two daily trips through the milking parlors. Within hours, 3½ million gallons of milk and milk products will be delivered to families across the country.

Civilization's success seems to secceed seeds

What do Thomas Jefferson, John Chapman, Wendelin Grimm and the picturesque Willamette Valley of Oregon have in common?

They're all part of one of the most basic and yet most colorful phases of the development of American agriculture - seeds.

Jefferson, better known for his work on the plow, risked the death penalty in Northern Italy to get seeds of an upland rice for South Carolina. Seeking to protect its monoploy of the crop, the Italian provincial government prohibited the export of seeds. Jefferson smuggled them out in his coat

John Chapman was better known as the legendary Johnny Appleseed, who washed seeds out of the pomace at cider mills and walked the pioneer wilderness for nearly a half-century planting apple trees.

Wendelín Grimm emigrated from Baden, Germany in the mid-1800's to Carver County, Minn. Among his most prized possessions was a few pounds of alfalfa seed. For years, he planted and replanted alfalfa, saving only the hardiest seeds until he developed a variety, now known as Grimm alfalfa, which would withstand the severe Minnesota winters.

Seed production has come a long way from those early days when each farmer had to assume individual responsibility to save his best seed as the genels of next year's crop.

Today, it is a highly mechanized, complex industry, a center of which is clustered in the valley of the Willamette River in northwestern Oregon.

But the Willamette Valley wasn't always the so-called seed capital.

The first seed house in the country was established in Philadelphia, in 1780. Even into the early 1800's, New York and Pennsylvania supplied most of the young country's seed, primarily timothy and clover.

Later, the seed business moved into the Ohio Valley and Toldeo served as the seed capital for a time.

Gradually, seed production continued its westward move until it reached the Willamette Valley, where a combination of soil and climatic conditions are more suited for raising crops for seed rather than normal harvest.

The government also had a varied and interesting involvement in seed.

Beginning in 1817, U.S. Consuls serving abroad were officially instructed to collect seeds and send them back for replanting.

Before that, farmers devised many methods to obtain the best seed for another year of planting. For vine plants, seeds generally were saved from the largest fruit growing closet to the roots. Farmers swapped seed and in many places it was worth more than money.

In 1838, the U.S Commissioner of Patents started a government-sponsored program of collecting and distributing free seeds. Up to the time it was discontinued in 1923, the program resulted in the distribution of billions of packages of free seed.

In 1898, the government began to log and identify each new plant brought into the country through the collection of seeds. By 1961, more than 265,000 plants were so identified.

Today, new plant varieties are developed primarily at the USDA Agricultural Experiment Stations and seed is made available to growers who plant and harvest to supply the overall commercial market.

These seed growers, such as are concentrated in the Willamette Valley, still face many of the challenges which have always been encountered in agriculture.

From 1760 to late in the 1830's, wheat was particularly susceptible to a pest called the hessian fly. Finally, a sailor on duty in the Mediterranean sent some late-seeding wheat back to a farmer friend in New York and a hessian fly-resistant variety was developed.

This year, one of the worst infestations of rust has hit the perennial ryegrass crop in the Willamette Valley. Some yeilds of the ryegrass seed, which not only comprises the bulk of the supply of the country but a good bit of the world, have been cut to a third of normal.

But the solution to the rust problem likely lies in the need for more seed research.

Bob Nixon, a Willamette Valley seed grower for 35 years, expresses his opinion on the need for research.

"In Oregon, we're very, very lacking in research on grass seed," he explains. "We've done a great deal in wheat research to eliminate rust and other diseases and develop new varities. But wheat is a worldwide crop and grass seed production is concentrated here in the Willamette Valley "

He further suggests that perhaps more support is needed from the seed growers. He'd like to see some of the money coming from assessments on growers for each acre of field burning be used to conduct seed research into developing new varieites.

The uncertainty over field burning of the straw once the seed is harvested also has prompted growers to be reluctant to try growing new varities, he adds.

Harvesting seed is a unique challenge for man and machine in the Willamette Valley. It resembles harvesting in slow motion.

Combines generally operate at a third or less of normal speed because of the heavy, full crop windrows and the lightness of the seed being harvested. Some seed is so light it takes more than 10 million to make a pound.

There is a wide variety of crops to be harvested and a combine may work in a dozen or more different crops during a season. Crops range from the light-seeded rye, blue and bent grasses to several types of clover. A combine can next move to fields of kohlrabi and parsley and end up in sugar beet, where the crop grows to 10 or 11 feet tall.

Combines must be constantly adjusted for changing conditions and crops.

In harvesting for seed, condition of the seed becomes paramount.

While seed harvested in the Willamette Valley is designed largely to supply the basic ingredient on which a new season of agriculture depends, one crop is grown to guarantee a different type of future.

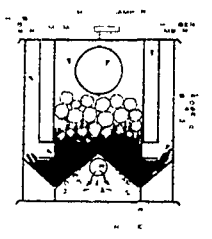
Bob Nixon plants about 300 acres of Sudan Millet on the Finley Wildlife Preserve near Corvallis, Oregon. This is left as food for geese, ducks, pheasants and deer on the preserve.

It is one of the ways he demonstrates his belief that "no one in the world is more conservation-minded than the farmer."

Whether it be a plant for wildlife, a plant for human or animal food or a plant to provide a green lawn, a statement made some 200 years ago by Jefferson - one of the country's first seed promoters - still holds true

"The greatest service which can be rendered to any country is to add a useful plant to its culture."

When you get serious about heating with wood, you should consider the "DownDrafter".



The principle behind this stove is to force the unburnt volatile gases back through the bed of coals, producing more efficient burning plus a slower, more even burning of the fire.

Faucet drip costs money

UNIVERSITY PARK – Dripping faucets cost money. This means not only is water lost but some of the energy used to make it available is also lost. A couple of drops of hot water per minute can add dollars to one's monthly cost of heating water, say experts. In most instances the dripping faucets can be stopped by installing a new faucet gasket on the valve stem that goes into the faucet from the handle

To replace it, one must shut off your pump or water service and take the faucet apart When installing a new gasket, one should make sure that on the hot water faucet, a hot water gasket is used. Before reassembling a faucet, one should check the valve seat on which the gasket makes a seal. If it is rough or pitted, it will be necessary to smooth the seat with a simple faucet tool which is available at local hardware and variety stores

Kathy Hrupsa prefers working on the farm

DOVER, Del. - A year ago last April, Kathy Hrupsa closed the door on her Dover office job for the last time and went back home to farm. She hasn't regretted the move a single minute, in spite of the gruelling physical labor, the long hours at planting and harvest time, the financial uncertainties that are inevitable - especially in a crop year as bad as the present one.

Twenty-three-year-old Kathy can't remember when she hasn't wanted to be a farmer. She's been driving a tractor ever since grade school. In the first grade, in fact, she recalls driving a little Ford tractor around the field to pick up bales of hay for her father.

Now that she's finally realizing her dream, she looks back regretfully at the lost opportunity in high school to participate in Future Farmers of America and learn some of the basic skills that program could have taught her - especially about farm machinery. Girls weren't permitted in the program until the year after she graduated. She feels her older brothers - who got their start in farming long before she did - wouldn't be where they are today without FFA.

At current costs for land and machinery, it's seldom easy for a young person to start their own farm operation. But it's especially hard for a woman. One has to be pretty strong, physically, points out Kathy. And one also needs a lot of know-how girls aren't usually taught, plus the fact that one is also bucking a long-standing tradition that says farming is an unsuitable occupation for a woman.

The 1976-77 Kent county Farm Queen has been hard-pressed to convince people of the seriousness of her endeavor. At farm meetings she's usually the only woman present and some of the more conservative types are likely to wonder what she's doing there. But the folks around Mastens Corner, where she presently lives with her family, are getting used to the idea.

She'd like to buy 50 to 100 acres of land and work that, but the present price of farmland is prohibitive unless you've got something salted away. So instead she leases 130 acres on three farms in the Sandtown and Harrington areas. Forty acres of this went into corn this year. The rest is in soybeans. Like a lot of other downstate Delaware farmers, Kathy had poor corn yields this summer because of the drought. She's banking on the beans to do better.

Right now the young woman farms cooperatively with her father and two brothers. (Between them the men till about a thousand acres.) She makes all the cropping decisions on the land she leases, buys her own seed, fertilizer and other chemicals and pays for the fuel she uses. Until she can buy her own equipment, she uses the family's. Labor is shared, so that at harvest she combines some of their corn and beans as well as her own. She also keeps the family books, and operates the grain elevator and drier on the home farm.

Kathy is engaged to a young farmer and they plan to get married as soon as they find a place to buy. In the meantime she's pursuing her own farming career. "I can't imagine not being a farmer," she explains.

There are disadvantages to this profession, of course - like those nights when you work until 11 or 11:30 trying to get in a crop before a storm breaks. But the job has satisfactions she never found during four years of office work. The freedom to make one's own decisions is something she particularly values. And she doesn't ever want to be cooped up again behind a desk.

It took some effort for Kathy Hrupsa, Kent County, Delaware, to convince people that she meant business when she got into farming. They just couldn't see a woman doing the job. But her Mastens Corner neighbors are getting used to the idea now.

Unlimited barbecue set

NEWARK, Del. - All the beef, fixings, apple cider and ice cream sundaes you can eat - that's the attraction at the upcoming annual AZ Barbecue. This popular family event has been taking place for 18 years now, as a fund raiser for Alpha Zeta, a service organization for students in the College of Agricultural Sciences at the University of Delaware. This year the barbecue will be held Saturday, November 19, in Agricultural Hall following the Delaware-Colgate football game.

Tickets for the feast may be purchased for $4 from AZ members or at Ag Hall any time prior to the 19th. They may also be purchased at the door for $4.50. Serving will begin around 4 p.m. and end at 8 p.m.

Last year the members of Alpha Zeta served over 900 people. They're hoping to surpass that number this year.

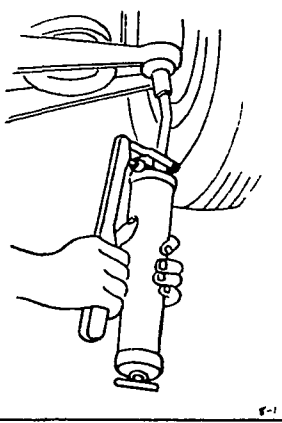
Meat for the barbecue is cooked over a two-foot bed of wood coals in a large pit for about 12 hours. At serving time pieces are taken from the pit and brought into the hall for slicing.

The meal is free for children under school age. They will not need a ticket when accompanied by parents. Additional meat and cider will be sold on a take-out basis.

Auto Service Tips

Avoid premature tire wear and steering problems by paying special attention to lubrication and periodic alignment — the two services required by your car's steering system Check and service steering linkage, steering arms and ball joints at periodic intervals.

Most car owner's manuals tell how often lubrication is needed.



Fite shows champion cow at dairy show and sale

NEW HOLLAND – The Annual Dairy Cow Show and Sale was held by New Holland Sales Stables on October 26, with buyers attending from 10 different states. Judge for the event was John McKittrick, Columbus, Ohio.

Grand champion cow of the show was exhibited by Glenn Fite, Quarryville, The cow, which had placed first in Holstein fresh class, was bought by Maurice Welk, Quarryville, for $5400.

The top 10 cows averaged a selling price of $4595. The top 100 cows average selling price at the sale was $1752.

In the Holstein dry class, the first place winner was shown by H.D. Matz, Ephrata. Robert Young, Lancaster, purchased the cow for $2100. Second place in that class went to an animal shown by Melvin Kolb, Lancaster. When sold, that animal went for $7100 to Peter Heffering from Millerton, New York. Melvin Kolb also showed the third place animal which sold to Paul Hess from New York for $3000. In the fourth place berth for the dry class was an animal consigned by William Lang, New Wilmington. That animal was later sold to Norman Kolb for $1100. In the fifth place dry cow slot was an animal owned by H.D. Matz which sold for $1700 to Fred Pottieger, Mechanicsburg.

In the fresh heifer class,- Melvin Kolb entered the first place animal, which sold for $2850 to Mowery Frey of Lancaster. The second place animal, also entered by Kolb, brought $1550 and sold to Paul Zimmerman of Ephrata. H.D. Matz consigned the third place animal which went for $4900 to Maurice Welk, Quarryville. In the fourth place spot was an animal entered by John J. Stoltzfus from Elverson. The animal sold to Dale Krantz from Wisconsin for $1450. Fifth place went to an animal consigned by Melvin Kolb. The animal later sold to Joshua Beiler for $825.

In the dry heifer division, John J. Stoltzfus took the first place honors with an animal which brought $1350 when sold to Alfred Albright of Landenburg. Second place went to an animal consigned by Kelly Bowser. Sold to William Keppler of Wisconsin, the animal brought $925. H.D. Matz consigned the third place animal which sold for $775 to Tom Kolb, from Maryland. The fourth place animal was one consigned by Melvin Kolb and sold to Keppler for $850; and the fifth place animal sold to Charles Myers for $750. Kolb consigned that animal, as well.

The mixed breed class was won by H.D. Matz. The animal sold for $1500 to Charles Myers, Lancaster. Matz also showed the second place animal which was purchassed for $1000 by Alfred Albright. In the third place was a cow showed by John J. Stoltzfus and purchased by Harry Weir of Wisconsin for $1825. Melvin Kolb exhibited the fourth and fifth place animals which sold for $1350 and $1000 to William Kepler.

In the fresh cow class, H.D. Matz consigned an animal which took the second placing and sold to Peter Heffering of Millerton, N.Y. for $4000. Melvin Peifer, from Liberty, consigned the tnird place cow which brought $2000 when sold to Ronald Wallace of New York. In fourth place was an animal entered by Glenn Fite and sold to Ray Cramty of Wisconsin for $2000. In fifth place was an animal shown by H.D. Matz and sold to Charles Myers for $4400.

Arden Tewksbury, president of the Eastern Milk Producers Co-op, speaks to farmers about the problems they face with the closing of their milk processing plant.

meeting and answered questions from the farmers. He was concerned about the problem and wondered how many of the farmers would stick together and try to work out a solution to the problem that was feasible to all, if Eastern would help the farmers Eastern guaranteed, Tewksbury stated, a milk market to all members of the co-op. About 110 members are involved.

When asked about the financial stability of Eastern Co-op, while Tewksbury admitted that it has been a bad year for milk sales, he stressed that Eastern was in stable condition, with no buildings mortgaged.

According to Bob Martin, New Holland R3, President of the local group, stated that the farmers receiving the letter notifying them of the termination of services from the creamery had no idea that this was going to happen "The big thing now," he stated, is to find another market by November 12." The purpose of Monday's meeting was to see how many farmers wanted to stay together, and handle the problem and he stated that about 85 per cent of those there were in favor of that [illegible] what may be done, although he stressed that nothing had been finalized or decided yet.

One suggestion was to take the milk of non-members of Eastern, while attaching a penalty to them for not being members. This would take care of the problem of handling the milk of non-members and urge farmers to support the co-op that is handling their problems.

Another solution would be for the co-op to charge a flat for services, with one fee for all farmers. But, the problem with that solution, Martin added, was that the farmers who aren't producing as much milk as others would still pay the same amount of money.

A third solution might be for the co-op to start anew, taking new members with no penalties attached. Again, though, it was questioned how the members of the co-op would feel who had supported it for years knowing that others were suddenly being helped without supporting the co-op through the good years of milk service

Another meeting will be held to determine the outcome of the problem of the dairy farmers today, October 29, at one p m , at the Bareville Fire Hall All farmers affected by the closing of the New Holland [illegible]

Beef sold by York-Adams 4-H'ers

THOMASVILLE - "This boy's liable to end up paying income tax," joked one observer Wednesday evening, as the grand champion steer of the York-Adams 4-H Livestock Show was led around the sales ring while the bids rolled in.

When it was all over, 13 year old Andy Smith had received $1.06 per pound for his 1185 champion Angus, and Miller's Country Meats, York R8, had bought themselves a steer. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Smith, 28 N. Pine Street, Jacobus, Andy has been exhibitng steers for three years and is a member of the Loganville Community Club.

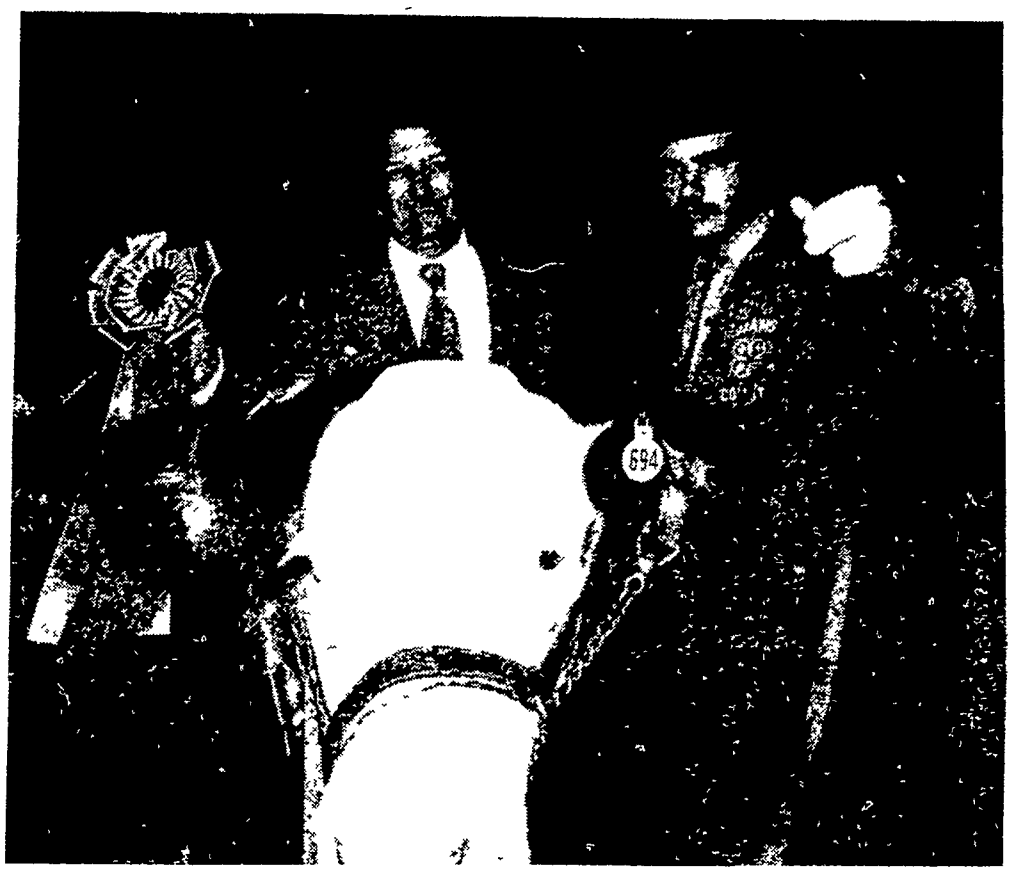
They all helped in the makings of a successful 4-H steer: from left are Ed Rishel, breeder, Roger Miller, who paid $1.06 per pound for the 1185-pound grand champion, buyer Ray Mummert and daughter Amy, and Andy Smith, the proud owner who went home with a somewhat enriched bank account.



Jeff Golden, right, exhibited the champion steer from Adams County in the two-county roundup and sale. Robert C. Flanders, Jr., purchased the steer for CCNB Bank with a bid of 70 cents per pound.

The reserve champion, a crossbred 1170 pounder, brought Annette Walter, Airville, 85.5 cents per pound. Jay's Supermarkets of York purchased the runner-up.

The first place heavyweight Hereford animal, which also was named the grand champion of the Adams County division of the show, was the third animal in the sales ring. Proud owner was Jeff Golden, York Springs, who received 70 cents per pound for the 1275 pound steer, with C.C.N.B. Bank, holding out for the final gavel.

Kevin Diehl, Fairfield, exhibited the reserve Adams County placing, a 1175 pound Hereford. Weigart's Meat Market, Hanover, bought the steer for 70 cents per pound.

Production Credit of York purchased the champion Hereford animal, shown by Chris Klinedinst, who received 62 cents per pound for the 1100 pound beef. The reserve Hereford belonged to Harris Wright, Abbottstown. Spangler and Sprenkle, Inc. paid 61.5 cents per pound for the 1095 pound steer.

The reserve champion Angus animal was exhibited by Tim Caldwell, Wrightsville, with Jay's Supermarket paying 64 cents per pound for the 995 pound winner. Richard Beck and Sons, Seven Valleys, purchased the reserve crossbred for 60 cents per pound, with Kevin Beck the exhibitor of the 1215 pounder.

Farm Women forum scheduled for December

KANSAS CITY, Mo. - Farm and ranch women from all across the country will be meeting in Kansas City, Mo., for the third National Farm Women's Forum, December 7 to 9. More than 2500 rural women are expected to attend.

This year the Forum will be held concurrently with a new National Beef Congress, sponsored by National Livestock Producer. The two conventions will be completely separate, however - the beef congress will be held at one end of the Kansas City Convention Center, and the women's forum at the other end, with trade show exhibits in between.

While the beef congress will appeal mainly to beef producers, the national farm women's forum is designed for women in all types of agriculture.

The forum program will focus on the farm as a "Partner in Agriculture", and seminars will deal with topics ranging from homemaking to farm business and product promotion.

Included will be sessions on cooking (featuring new small appliances and home canning and preserving aids), sewing for the professional look, holiday crafts, country decorating, plus gardening and houseplant care.

A special "Natural Fibers and Hides Style Show" will feature fashions of cotton, wool, leather and pigsuede, with garments provided and modeled by the Delta Cotton Wives (Mississippi), the National Wool Growers Auxiliary, the American National Cow Belles, and the Iowa Porkettes.

A review of farm women's successful projects to promote agriculture and its products will make up an "Ag Boosters" program. Various farm women will speak and describe their experiences of how they've worked for agriculture through farm organizations and through unique individual projects, in the program called "Meet the Challenge - Get Involved".

Farm tax and estate planning, a sesssion with agricultural attorneys and bankers, and a bookkeeping seminar will also be part of the program.

President and Mrs. Jimmy Carter have been invited to speak to a joint opening session of the National Farm Women's Forum-National Beef Congress and are presently considering the invitation.

A new, fun-filled forum program, "Agri-Sports," will be featured the evening of December 7, with farmers and their wives competing in a wide variety of farm-oriented "Olympic" - type contests, ranging from tractor-triangle races to wheelbarrow races!

There will be a tour leaving from the Lancaster County area to travel to this forum. For further information, contact Mrs. Naomi Spahr, R6, Box 615, Lititz, Pa. 17543, phone 717-626-7213

Only $398*

FREE TRIAL OFFER* Prove it to yourself - at no cost - in your own parlor as have hundreds of dairymen who report production increases ranging from 400 lbs to as high as 2 190 lbs more milk per cow per year! As an added bonus the new Flex-O-Matic can cut milking time by 30% or more!

Secret of such performance is Flex-O-Matic's exclusive dual sensing No over-milking or under-milking which lead to a drop in production If there is a second letdown the machine senses it and continues until the cow is milked out If there is not a second letdown the machine shuts off when the cow is milked out Either way the vacuum automatically shuts off and the nylon lanyard gently removes the milker away from the udder

The Flex-O-Matic fits any parlor It cleans in place and through increased production usually pays for itself in less than a year if you d like to start making more milk, cut your milking time up to 30% or more and save money

Lebanon County Farm Women hold convention

By KENDACE BORRY

LEBANON - The Lebanon County Farm Women Society held their 37th annual convention October 22 at the Lebanon Area Vo-Tech School, Lebanon, Pa. Approximately 200 people attended the workshops and luncheons scheduled throughout the day.

Officers for the County Society were elected. Included as officers for the Lebanon County Farm Women Society are: President, Mrs. Harvey Krall, first vice president, Mrs. Marie Steinmetz; second vice president, Mrs. Kenneth Sellers; secretary, Mrs. Ronald Royer; treasurer, Mrs. Dennis Grumbine, and publicity chairman, Mrs. Eugene Lausch.

A member of Lebanon Co. Society 3, Mrs. Harvey Krall, Anneville, resides on a 175 acre corn, soybean, and vegetable farm with her family. Besides the Farm Women Society, she lists her activities as being involved with the Midway Church of the Brethren. Her hobbies include sewing, knitting, crotcheting, ceramics, reading, and traveling.

First vice president Marie E. Steinmetz, Kleinfeltersville, has been involved with farm activities all her life. She was a charter member of Lebanon Co. Society 9, and has served as that group's president, and secretary, besides holding county offices. She attends Trinity United Methodist Church of Kleinfeltersville, and enjoys reading, crocheting, good music, walking, and visiting with friends.

Mrs. Kenneth Sellers, Lebanon R4, who is beginning a term as second vice president, lives with her family on an 85 acre dairy farm. A member of Society 11, she is also an assistant Sunday school teacher and a 4-H team leader advisor. Her hobbies include sewing, knitting, and crafts.

Serving as secretary, Mrs. Ronald Royer, Lebanon R4, is a member of Society 13 She has been involved with Farm Women Society work for almost 20 years and also finds time for many hobbies She enjoys needlework, especially crewel embroidery, oil painting making clothing for her two children, and music. She serves as church organist Sunday school pianist, and choir director at the Fontana United Methodist Church She also has served as a 4-H leader and works with girl scouts.

Mrs. Dennis Grumbine Myerstown R2, treasurer for the county group, is a member of the Society 2. Her husband is farm machinery salesman and along with their two sons, they live on a corn and hog farm. Besides the farm women society involvement, she drives a school bus and is active in Junior Women's Club and churchwork. She enjoys outdoor sports, baking and cooking.

New Publicicity chairman, Mrs. Grace Lausch Myerstown R3, is a member of Society 4. Besides her job as a housewife, she is involved with churchwork, and lists her hobbies as sewing and crocheting.

Besides the election of officers at the county convention, many activities and programs were held. Included were a bazaar, business meeting, memorial service and the presentation of attendance awards.

Special features of the program were inspirational music given by Dawn and Randy Marks, who sang and accompanied themselves, and John Bell, who presented a series of pantomines including a restaurant scene, church scene, and a situation of changing a baby's diaper.

There are 19 groups of farm women societies in Lebanon County, and each group has their own meetings. As a county group the ladies sponsor safety meetings, attend state conventions and spring rallies. The Society sponsors a yearly county scholarship, supports the 4-H development fund, and the dairy princess contest. Each club of the society works with their own service projects and programs.

Mortgage rates eased

HARRISBURG - Commonwealth National Bank announces an expansion of its mortgage service to bring home purchases more easily within reach of a greater number of families through smaller down payment and lower monthly repayments.

The bank's new plan provides residential mortgages of 90 per cent financing with up to 30 years to repay on owner-occupied, single-family homes.

Backed by private mortgage insurance, now available through the bank, these loans should be espeically helpful to younger couples with good income but limited funds for down payments.

Application for the insurance, although it is written by independent companies, made through the bank at the time the mortgage application is taken.

Customers can pay the insurance premium either in one lump sum at settlement or through escrow payments with their monthly mortgage repayment.

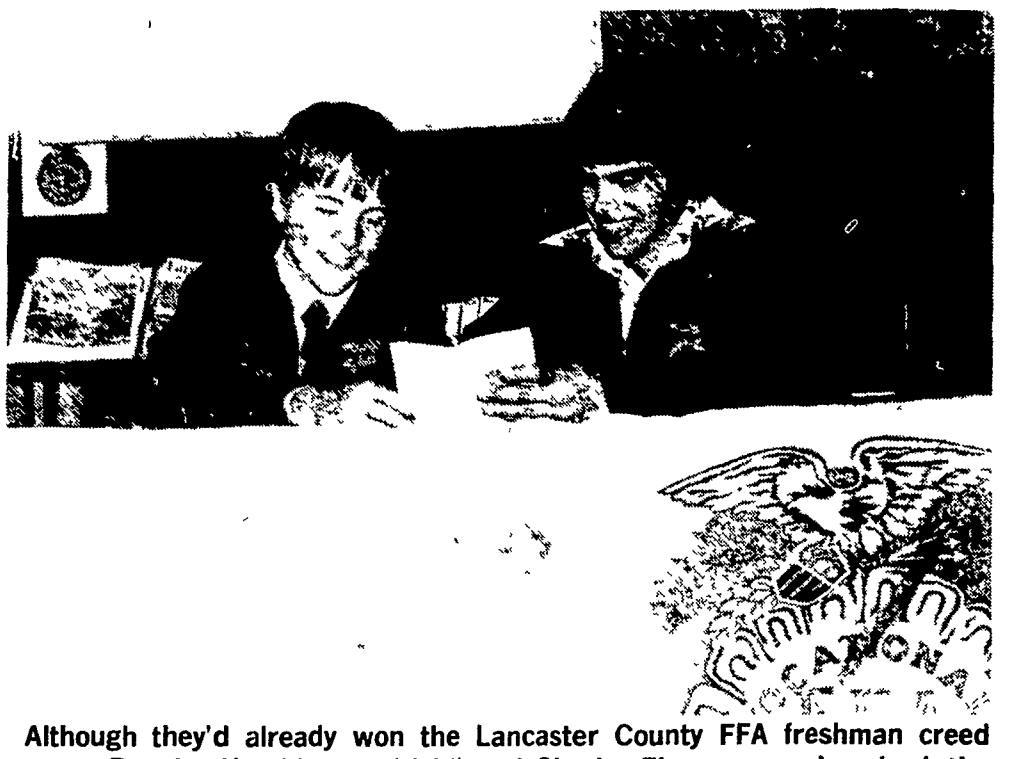
Trail ride set

KUTZTOWN -- The Crystal Spring Rough Riders will have a 4-H trail ride on November 6 at the Elton H. Sunday Farm, beginning at 1 p.m. Rain date for the event is November 13.

For more information, members are to contact either Bill Johnson or Elton H. Sunday, both of Kutztown R3.

Spring tentany is a magnesium deficiency of concern to livestock men with herds grazing on Spring and early-Summer pastures under certain conditions. And Winter tetany is a less well-known malady resulting from feeding hay low in magnesium.

Mervin Horst, from the Cloister FFA Chapter of Lancaster County, and Barbara Herr, Grasslands FFA, were the two top quiz winners at the Lancaster County FFA leadership training conference held at the Hinkletown Alternative School on Thursday. Horst took first place and Miss Herr placed second.



Although they'd already won the Lancaster County FFA freshman creed contest, Douglas Hershberger (right) and Charles Zimmerman, Jr., check the creed in the book. Hershberger was named the first place creed contestant and Zimmerman, second, on Thursday at the Lancaster County FFA leadership training conference.

Lanc. Co. FFA leadership training seminar held

HINKLETOWN - Four freshman members of the Future Farmers of America were awarded honors for their participation in contests at the Lancaster County Future Farmers of America leadership training conference held at the Hinkletown Alternative School on Thursday.

Mervin Horst, a Cloister FFA member and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Horst, 222 Akron Road, Ephrata, took the first place quiz contest award, and Douglas Hershberger, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hershberger, Quarryville R4, was named the top ranking creed contest winner. Hershberger, age 15, is a member of the Solanco FFA Chapter.

Coming in behind Horst and Hershberger were two Grassland FFA members - Barbara Herr and Charles Zimmerman, Jr. Miss Herr, who is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Herr, Narvon R2, and the president of the ninth grade FFA at Garden Spot, took the second place berth in the quiz contest. Zimmerman, the 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Zimmerman, East Earl R1, ranked second in the creed contest.

The creed and quiz contests were part of the leadership training conference that ran from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. During that time the 160 FFA'ers taking part divided into various workshops to learn the skills of office holding.

During the evening, the members traveled to a banquet held at the New Holland Fire Hall, where 12 honorary Red Rose Degree winners - one per school - were named.

Harold Ruhl, a flower grower from Smoketown was nominated by Brownstown Vo-Tech; Robert Alexander, Intercourse, the head custodian at Pequea Valley, was nominated by that school; Dr. Elmer J. Berkebile, superintendent of Penn Manor High School, was nominated from that chapter; Victor F. Weaver, owner of Victor F. Weaver, Inc., New Holland, was nominated by the Grassland Chapter; John Kinney, Landisville, a building maintenance instructor at Mt. Joy Vo-Tech, was that chapter's nominee; Elmer Murry, auctioneer from Manheim, was nominated by the Manheim FFA; Paul Gehman, owner of Gehman's Feed Mill, Denver, was named from Ephrata; Jeffry Eisenbise, farmer from Elizabethtown, was honored by the Elizabethtown Chapter; Lloyd Lapp, owner and operator of Huber Nurseries, by Willow Street Vo-Tech; Samuel Wylie, beef breeder from Nottingham, by the Solanco chapter; Donald Herr, vice president of the Lampeter Fair, by the Lampeter Chapter; Hess Brothers Fruit Farm, Millersville, from Warwick; and John Brubaker, head of Stonebridge Farm, Mt. Joy, was nominated at large.

designed to protect small plants.

Broadleaf evergreens in exposed, windy spots and those that receive afternoon sun can be protected by constructing a burlap screen between the plant and the open exposure. Burlap can be stapled to stakes at the appropriate height.

Anti-transpirant sprays are also available at most garden centers. These are wax-like coatings that are sprayed on the leaves of plants to reduce water loss. Such sprays should be applied in the fall before freezing weather and reapplied on a mild day after the first of the year.

Winter weather is unpredictable, but preparing plants for the cold will reduce the damage even in a severe winter such as the one we had last year.

Berks County 4-H'ers hold annual beef and lamb sale

Sidney Muthard of Muthard's Meat Market, Temple, paid $1.10 per pound for this grand champion market lamb, owned by 15-year-old Joe Crisafulli.

The Leesport Market and Auction purchased this grandchampion steer for 90 cents per pound. Shown with the animal are Kirk Fisher and Bill Weist.

Ann Holcombe sold this reserve grand champion steer to John Black representing Edgar Black and Son, Skippack.

By LAUREL SCHAEFFER
Berks County Reporter

LEESPORT - As the auctioneer's gavel went down on the final bid of $1.10 per pound, Joe Crisafulli, a 15-year old sophomore at Schuylkill Valley High School, had reasons to be pleased. His 95 pound grand champion market lamb had just been the first lamb sold in Berks County's First 4-H Market Lamb Sale.

Joe also had the reserve champion lamb which went for $.90 per pound and another lamb which sold for $.60 per pound. All of his sheep were Suffolk-Hampshire crosses which he had bred and raised himself. He has been breeding and showing sheep for three years.

The sale was held in conjunction with the Annual Baby Beef Sale at the Leesport Market and Auction on October 19th. A total of 14 market lambs were sold by 10 members of the 4-H Sheep and Lamb Club.

The sale averaged 64 cents per pound for a total of 1210 pounds of lamb sold. Buyer of the grand champion was Muthard's Meat Market, Temple.

Showing the grand champion steer at the Annual Baby Beef Round-Up was 10-year old Kirk Fisher from Oley. Kirk's steer, a Charolais-Angus cross bred by Daniel Schlegal, Oley, brought $.90 per pound and was sold to the Leesport Auction.

Kirk had shown the steer at the Kutztown and Oley Fairs where he won champion showman at each event, and he is already working on a calf to show next year.

Reserve grand champion steer was a purebred Angus shown by 17-year old Ann Holcombe, Mohrsville, which brought $.77 per pound. Ann has been showing for the past nine years and had the grand champion steer the first year she showed in 4-H.

The Baby Beef Sale was one of the best ever held with a total of 23 animals sold for an average price of $.52 per pound. Five other companion steers were also sold by the 4-H'ers, bringing the total live weight sold to 25,290 pounds.

transfer of the Extension Service to a new entity called the Cooperative Science and Education Service, Grant said that farmers feel that the role of Extension is to serve the needs of rural America rather than the needs of urban dwellers. He expressed the fear that the Extension Service under the proposed organization would become more and more urban dominated.

"It is our belief that the Congress created the Extension Service to serve the rural segment," Grant said, "and we believe Extension's rural orientation should be maintained."

He also pointed out that the proposed placement of the Department Office of Communications under a political appointee would open the Department to charges of using its communications role for political purposes. "This," he said, "would be true under any adminstration."

In summary, Grant said, "Since you have indicated, in effect, that your proposed reorganization will save little or no money, we respectfully request that you withdraw, or effectively modify, the portions of this proposal which deal with the Extension Service, the Packers and Stockyards Administration, and the Office of Communications."

Thoughts for the season

attempts, hasn't been able to come close to achieving such beauty with his own creations We've been trying for thousands of years to build or shape something truly beautiful, but most any tree can put our efforts to shame

When an artist, for example, paints or sculptures something beautiful, he copies what Nature shows him Let the artist be original, and he generally comes up with some slipslop piece known as "modern art".

It's truly remarkable how God's creations can appear to be so simple and yet so overwhelmingly beautiful A tree, for example, in simplistic terms, is nothing more than a trunk, a bunch of branches, and a countless number of leaves And yet that same tree reigns as one of the most majestic creations on Earth What's more, that tree is beautiful in early Spring when new leaves are forming, during the Summer when it provides shade, during the Fall when it's bursting with color, and during the Winter when it's catching cold breezes

Trees are truly remarkable Besides being beautiful, they're a renewable resource with more than a thousand uses. Man may have found as many uses for plastics, but has anyone ever seen plastic growing and blooming majestically? We continue to strike out, and therein lies just a bit more evidence that God's creations are far superior to anything we try to do on our own

The best we can do is to give Nature a hand. We have some control over the breeding of species. We can prune branches, sculpture shrubbery, and manicure our lawns. We can take wood from those pretty trees, saw boards, and build barns to house our cattle and equipment

Driving through the countryside inspires thoughts of wonder and beauty It always does - at least to a farmer - but I guess it's the color which really makes things stand out now. Magically, all that beauty is doubled in more ways than one when we see it mirrored by the smooth and serene surface of a farm pond or mountain lake It's fascinating how Nature's beauty captivates the eye

Aging corn fields are glistening in the sun Unlike the trees, these stately plants have lost their color Nevertheless, their bleached appearance casts a skyward glow.

With trees and fields coming out with such magnificent glory, I wonder if it's just for our entertainment, or a concerted gesture of thanks to the Supreme Artist for another fine growing season. It was a masterpiece.

Lambs sold by York-Adams 4-H'ers

THOMASVILLE – It was a first in the sheep exhibiting career of Linda Ebaugh, 18, when her homebred Suffolk market lamb captured the grand champion ribbons during Tuesday's York-Adams 4-H lamb roundup. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ebaugh, Delta R2, Linda has carried sheep projects for eight years.

The hundred pound animal was the first of 51 head on the auction block on Wednesday evening when a large crowd of supporters gathered at the Thomasville Livestock Auction for the beef and lamb sale.

When the gavel went down for the final bid, Miller's Country Meats, York R8, had paid $1.50 per pound for the purple ribbon Suffolk, the highest selling animal during the lamb auction.

Lisa Dobrosky, Glen Rock R2, showed the reserve champion show winner, a Shropshire weighing in at 95 pounds. J.L. Miller, York R8, purchased the lamb for $1.45 per pound.

Breed champions were sold next in the 4-H auction. Tom Flory, Red Lion with a 90 pound champion Dorset, received 80 cents per pound from Roy Mummert Livestock. The champion Hampshire, exhibited by Tom Dunchack, Littlestown, was purchased by Yost Meat Market, Littlestown, who paid 72 cents per pound for the 115 pound lamb.

Nancy Eisenhart, Thomasville, sold the cahmpion Corriedale, a 115 pound winner that was bid on last by Sterner's Slaughterhouse, Hanover, for 65 cents per pound.

Yost Meat Market, Littlestown, also purchased Tom Dunchack's champion corssbred, paying 72 cents per pound for the 95 pound sheep.

Richard Beck and Sons, Seven Valleys, bought the 90 pound reserve champion Dorset, shown by Laurie Dobrosky, Glen Rock. Glenn Plank paid 69.5 cents per pound for Don Flory's reserve Hampshire; and Nancy Eisenhart's reserve Corriedale went for 66.5 cents per pound to Thomas' Meat Market, Shrewsbury.

Ray Mummert, Brodbecks, gave 61 cents per pound for Tom Dunchack's reserve crossbred. Lisa Dobrosky, with the reserve Shropshire, received 80.5 cents per pound from F. Philip Smyser, Manchester; and Troy Ness sold his reserve Suffolk for 69.5 cents per pound to J.L. Miller, York R8.

Judge for the annual two-county event was Lester Burdette, Penn State livestock specialist. A complete list of sheep exhibitors follows:

Wentz wins 4-H award

UNIVERSITY PARK – Timothy Wentz, 17, of Carlisle R1, who last month was named a state winner in the veterinary science category of the National 4-H Awards Program, was selected recently as a northeastern United States sectional winner.

Timothy will receive an expense-paid trip to National 4-H Congress in Chicago, November 27 to December 1, provided by the Upjohn Company. He also will compete for awards at the national level.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Alan B. Wentz, he is a freshman at Penn State majoring in animal science. He has been a 4-H member for five years.

A member of the Sheaffer 4-H Community Club and 4-H Light Horse and Pony Club, he served as president, vice president, and treasurer. He also assisted with club activities and events as a teen leader.

The sectional contest winner completed projects in horse, wood science, bicycle, corn, and veterinary science.

Locally, Timothy took part in the roundup, fun day, teen leader training, camp, exchange program, horse judging, and demonstration day.

He also participated in the Regional 4-H Teen Leaders Retreat, District 4-H Horse Show, Regional 4-H Demonstration Day, State 4-H Achievement Days, Pennsylvania 4-H Leadership Congress, Farm Show, and the Citizenship Short Course.

He wss named Cumberland County's Outstanding 4-H Boy in 1976 and won county medals in wood science, bicycle, and veterinary science.

Dairymen's generosity continues

DELTA - Time and again, farmers have proven themselves good neighbors in times of need. The recent tragic Johnstown flood proved that once more.

When media broadcasts and stories told of a need in the devastated area for hydrated lime, dairymen in the southern York County and northern Harford County, Maryland, area promptly set-up a fund raising drive.

The response from generous and public-spirited farm people was both heartwarming and gratifying to all those involved in the aid project.

"Now we'd like to express our deepest thanks to all those who contributed," requested a spokesman for the fund. "And every cent contributed went for the flood cause."

A total of over $2000 came pouring in to help purchase supplies for cleanup operations in the Johnstown area. The list of donated items included nine and one-half tons of hydrated lime, one ton of disinfectant, six shovels, 50 dust masks, 36 buckets and 20 prs. of gloves. One hundred dollars was sent to dairyman A. R. Berkey, Elton, who was washed out and dumped milk for several days because no milk truck could be gotten into the farm.

After the above supplies had been sent, $818.16 still remained in the fund. The committee, headed up by Curtis Thompson, Delta R2, has elected to forward the remaining sum to long-range relief efforts being spearheaded by the Mr. Calvary Luthern Church in Johnstown. Monies from the on-going fund are purchasing clothing, bedding, towels, and similar household needs for families now settling into temporary and permanent housing after losing all their possessions to the swirling, muddied rivers.

So, from the flood relief committee to all those generous contributors who so willingly came to the aid of their fellow men in need, a warm and sincere "Thank you."

the list when it comes to taking a real bonafide vacation where they pack up and go somewhere. When pressed on the issue of a vacation, most farmers will admit they take a day now and then, maybe to go fishing or hunting, or to go visit a farmer somewhere else, which really isn't a vacation.

So when it comes to the coffee shop philosophy ot agriculture, I can only say it must be a midwestern phenomena that farmers who operate those large corn and soybean farms in the Midwest must find reason to go to town more often and must find the need for companionship. The farmers I know drink their coffee in their own kitchens or from thermos jugs carried in pickup trucks. They go to town for other reasons.

elhamer told the large p assembled in the ville High School torium that "I intend to make the Agriculture Department the custodian of rural areas in which the Grange has such a large interest. I intend to measure every new project, every new program by asking one question . . . is it good for agriculture?"

He reminded Grangers that it is important, in discussing farm problems not to hide anything nor distort the facts. "We must avoid technical jargon and speak in simple, understandable language," he added.

Citing recent Chinese nuclear tests, Shelhamer pointed out that by careful checking the Agriculture Department determined that there was no danger from fallout here. "As a result," he said, "the dairy industry in Pennsylvania suffered no ill affects from groundless rumors."

Warren W. Lamm, staff assistant to Rep. Paul Yahner, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, Tuesday afternoon outlined recent House action on agriculture-related legislation.

Speaking in place of Rep. Yahner who was detained in Harrisburg, Lamm said a committee study is being made of the bonding provisions under the milk marketing law.

He also said the House Agriculture Committee "has not seen fit to put the stamp of approval" on recent suggestions to abolish the milk marketing board.

Canned Goods

From the standpoint of safety, canned products have an indefinite shelf-life—as long as the can remains unopened and is not bulging or leaking However, chemical changes, caused by enzymes, occur in food all the time Because of these changes, canned foods should be used within a year—and checked periodically during the interval

Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association (MAMMA), the members of the organization share in the profits and losses of the Allentown plant's production.

MCMP officers expressed some discontent with federal milk pricing formulas, explaining that prices were too low a few years ago when milk was in short supply. That resulted in direct action by MCMP and other cooperatives to charge premiums which went over the top of federal order prices. During a year period, that action netted MCMP members an additional $2.7 million.

This year, however, the situation has been reversed. With the MIddle Atlantic area's August production, for example, having been 40 million pounds ahead of August 1976, shippers were faced with having to take prices below the federal levels. Stock noted that Maryland, Pennsylvania and Virginia are frequently leading the national trend in milk production. Milk production is up all around the country, but it's highest right here in the Middle Atlantic marketing area. The bottom line on that score is that it's hurting.

The boom in milk production, coupled with flat fluid milk sales, is causing some of the smaller dairies to close up or drop members. An example of that is currently taking place in Lancaster County. Earlier this year, that same New Holland dairy dropped 104 producers west of the Susquehanna River. Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers picked up a number of those dairymen for their membership, which prompted York County Agricultural Agent David Norman to offer a few words of praise to MCMP. Noting that the milk supply is already overflowing and MCMP, as well as other cooperatives have their hands full with this problem, Norman commended MCMP for giving the affected dairymen a market.

Lancaster County milk producers who are being left without a market due to the New Holland dairy's closing may or may not be taken in by cooperatives in the area. Some speculation has been made that a cooperative based in New York State has plans to buy or lease the plant, but with stringent financial arrangements for dairymen. The siuation is particularly touchy because of the surplus milk problem.

The imbalance between milk production and sales is the single most important reason for weakend milk prices. It's true nationally, but especially true in the middle Atlantic area, MCMP members were told.

Herbert Wessel, president of MCMP, assured the gathering that the membership and management of MCMP is confident of improvement. He invited those present to voice their concerns. Nobody seemed to have any. Nobody complained.

One of the highlights of the MCMP meeting here was the election of a second director from York County. With 124 members, this district is the largest within MCMP. Since no one director is allowed to represent more than 100 members, the by-laws required the election of a second director. Getting the nod for that position was Leroy Bupp of Seven Valleys.

Other MCMP meetings are scheduled for tonight and early next week. Please see our farm calendar as well as a story on page 117 for details.

Kendy's Kollumn

by Kendace Borry

Horseback riding at night is a different sport and not recommended for everyone. It takes a quiet horse and skilled rider with some common sense to face the challenges of the dark world that looms around after the sun sets.

But for those who ride and know better than to charge madly through fields or head down the center of busy roads, night riding can have an appeal that gives it a different dimension from the daylight variety.

I have to admit it - I'm addicted to night riding, especially in the Fall months. When I see a full harvest moon in the dark sky, and hear that mellow wind through the cornstalks, there's a very good possibility that I and my faithful steed, Dollar, will shortly disappear from the scene.

As soon as I swing up into the saddle and head Dollar out the old country lane, I feel like I'm entering a foreign world. The night noises of owls, pheasants, and the livestock in the pasture add a pleasant backdrop to the wind rustling along. Gradually my eyes adjust to the darkness, and I can see almost as well in the day. As the horse slowly walks along, the pressures and problems of the day seem to fade away and the moon beckons me to follow its silver trail.

Night riding is a good time for thinking, and dusting some of the cobwebs out of my mind. As the horse and I pass along the empty fields, I get the impression that we're the only ones left in the world, and a feeling of peace steals over my mind. When I nightride, the experience refreshes my soul, for farmland has a special beauty that can only be admired in its peaceful sleeping state.

A few words of caution, though, to those who would try night riding. I don't ride on roads at night, and I never ride in any field or area that I don't know because of the possibility of ditches, gullies, and groundhog holes. Night riding is done at a walk on a horse that is considered trustworthy and calm. As always when around a horse, every safety precaution is taken.

For when the moon rises and the clouds scuttle across the dark sky overhead, don't be surprised if I can't be found. Dollar and I will have disappeared for another rendezvous with the crisp night air.

New farm bill

removes 1 million persons with high gross incomes, requires part-time work for needy student eligibility, provides for a 2-year disqualification period for those engaging in fraud, furnishes states 75 per cent cost-sharing administrative expenses for fraud investigation, excludes illegal aliens, allows for increased flexibility in the administration of the program by Indian reservations, and simplifies certain procedures necessary for participation.

RESEARCH AND EDUCATION

The bill assigns USDA the lead agency role with respect to national food and agriculture science. Food and agriculture science is broadly defined to include all matters normally associated with the food and agriculture system plus forestry, range management, acquaculture, family life, rural and community development. In short, the scope is as broad as the present missions of the USDA.

The provisions involve coordination, expanded efforts in priority areas, and widening participation in research and education beyond the USDA and Land Grant University system.

The bill authorizes an expansion in USDA's involvement in agricultural solar energy research, development and demonstration, and grants USDA authority to be a full participant in nutrition research and education in international related food and agriculture research and education.

The research and education activities are to be coordinated by a Joint Council comprised of government and university officials, which will determine priorities subsequent to receiving input from a Users Advisory Board comprised of users of research.

"I have to admit that the bill is about 300 million more costly than I had personally preferred to see. But I think the investment is a good one and I think the cost of this bill, because of its wise drafting, will be less and less as the future years go by," says President Carter.

New Wayne Tail Curler Rockets.™

Turns bashful baby pigs into hearty eaters.

New Wayne Tail Curler Rockets is a totally new formula... a pre-starter that attracts baby pigs like bees to honey. They smell, they taste... they eat like hogs, preferring this new feed 4-to-1 over the previous Wayne formula. New flavor and aroma ingredients help make the difference.

New Tail Curler Rockets is great in nutrition, too. You get 18% crude protein with additional lysine to give top performance without the looseness problem. The extra fiber helps, too. And increased fat provides extra energy... while vitamins, anti biotics and minerals, including Boost 'N Iron™, help keep young pigs growing right from the start.

New Tail Curler Rockets even comes in a new bag with a special liner to keep it mill fresh until the moment it's fed.

Pumpkins, pumpkins

By JOANNE SPAHR

It's that time of year again – the time for pumpkins, hay rides, and Halloween. Young and old, alike, enjoy the cool, crisp Autumn days that demand a warm sweater on a refreshing sunny morning.

Every night, now, solid uncarved pumpkins are taken into brightly lit work areas in homes around the country, and a few hours later are set on porches or window sills with new and bright smiles beaming from their faces.

But, nobody ever said that the only decorations which can be made from pumpkins are jack-o-lanterns, and some families make it a tradition to dress up their homes and premises with a pumpkin look that is unmistakeably "Autumn."

Two such families are the Leroy Pfautz's from Stevens R1 and the Spencer Hammonds of Stewartstown R1, who both run farm markets for the produce they raise.

The Pfautz's started decorating their market about 12 years ago with pumpkin scenes, according to Mrs. Pfautz, who began the whole effort. At first, she started with one display or scene where she used pumpkins to create the figures. Then, she found that her efforts became so popular that she began adding new displays each year. Now, the premises is decorated with many pumpkins displays for the visitors to enjoy.

"I try to vary them each year," she says.

Some of the more popular displays have been pumpkin people on a hay ride, in a fishing boat, on a sliding board, on toys and tricycles, and even up a telephone pole. Depending on the year, Mrs. Pfautz may also set up pumpkin people at church, at a picnic, or on a springboard wagon.

"It's gotten to the place that people ask, 'What are you going to do next year?" says Mrs. Pfautz.

Mrs. Pfautz's decorations have become so well known in the past years that some tourist make the trip to the market just to look at her displays and take pictures.

The attention is always appreciated since the displays can take as long as a week to set up.

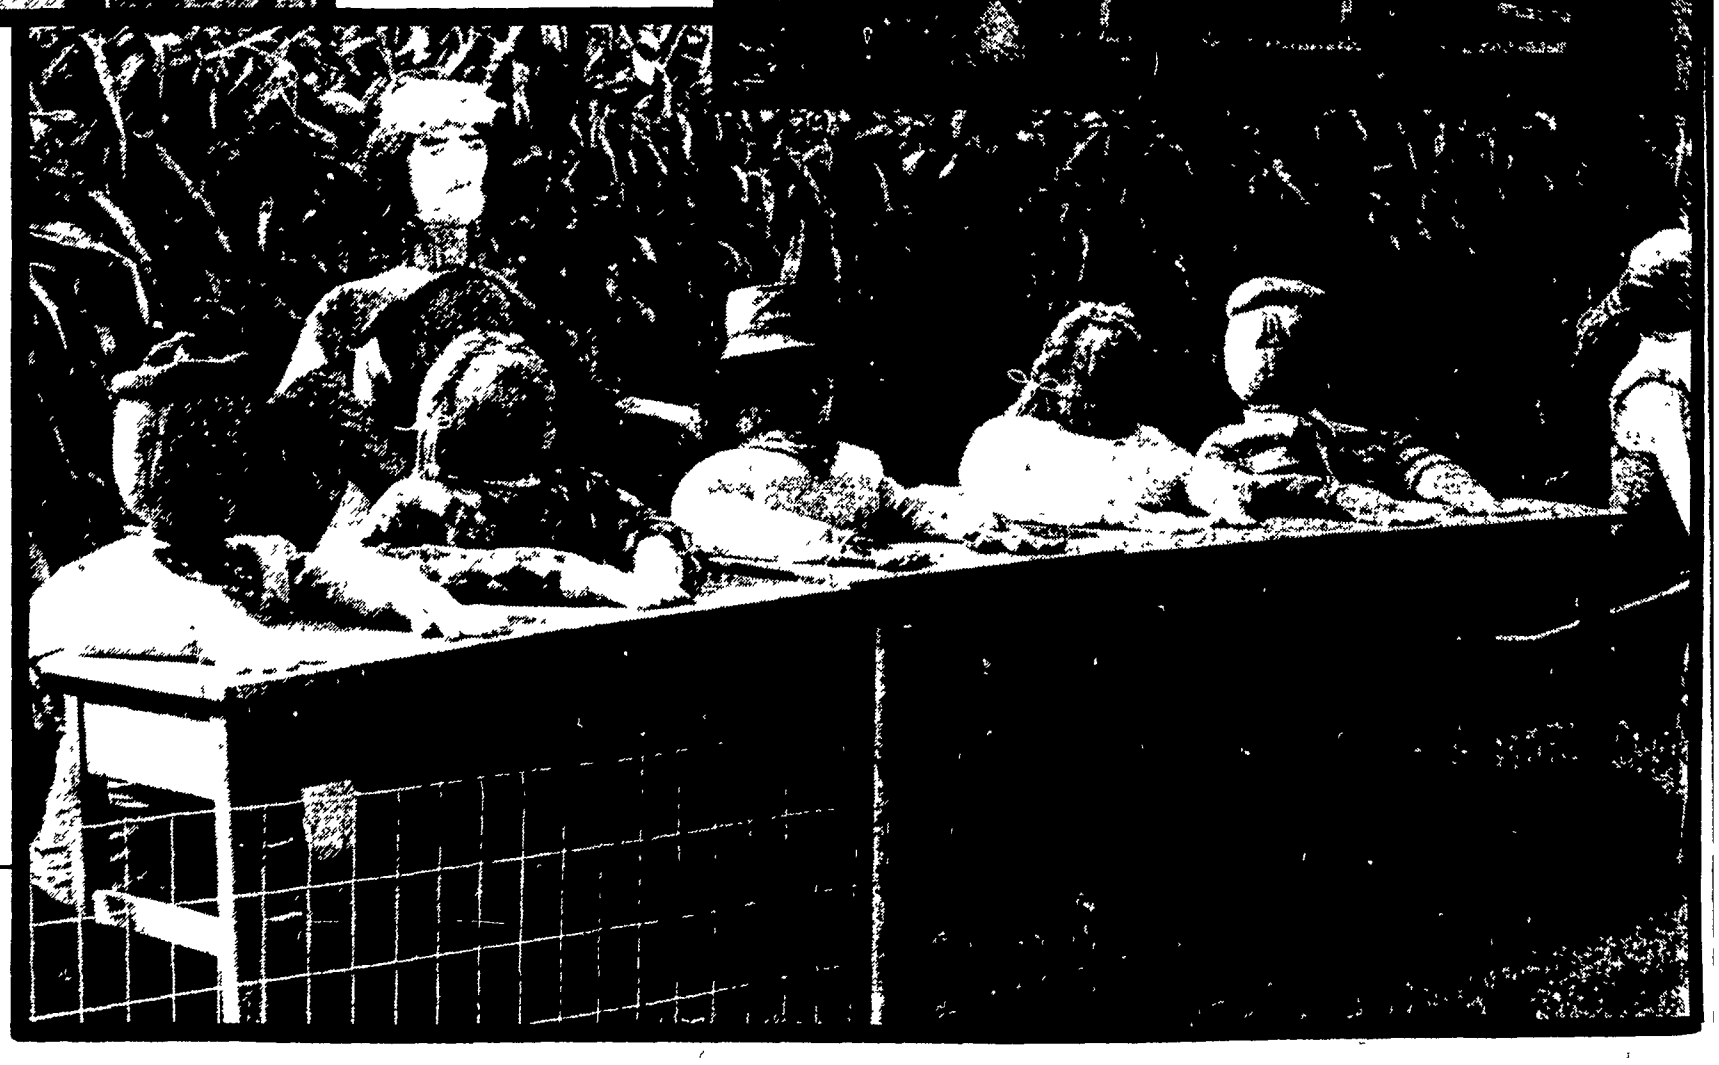
A pumpkin house was the first display ever set up at Hammond's Roadside Market near Stewartstown.



School is in session for these pumpkin children at Hammond's Roadside market.

pumpkins, pumpkins

"You have to wait until all the pumpkins are in," says Mrs. Pfautz, "since you have to find certain shapes to create the different displays."

After she picks out her pumpkins, Mrs. Pfautz then sets them up in the various scenes she has planned for the year, and when they are all set up, she paints their faces.

Along with the tourists, her pumpkin artwork has attracted bus loads of school children–last year 1500 children took a tour through the farm market where the Pfautz's showed them how the pumpkins are grown and marketed. The Pfautz's also raise swine, so seeing the hog operation was part of the tour, as well.

The Spencer Hammond family near Stewartstown in York County do much the same activities at their farm market. Since they are near the Maryland border, 90 per cent of their trade comes from Bel Air, Townsend, and Baltimore.

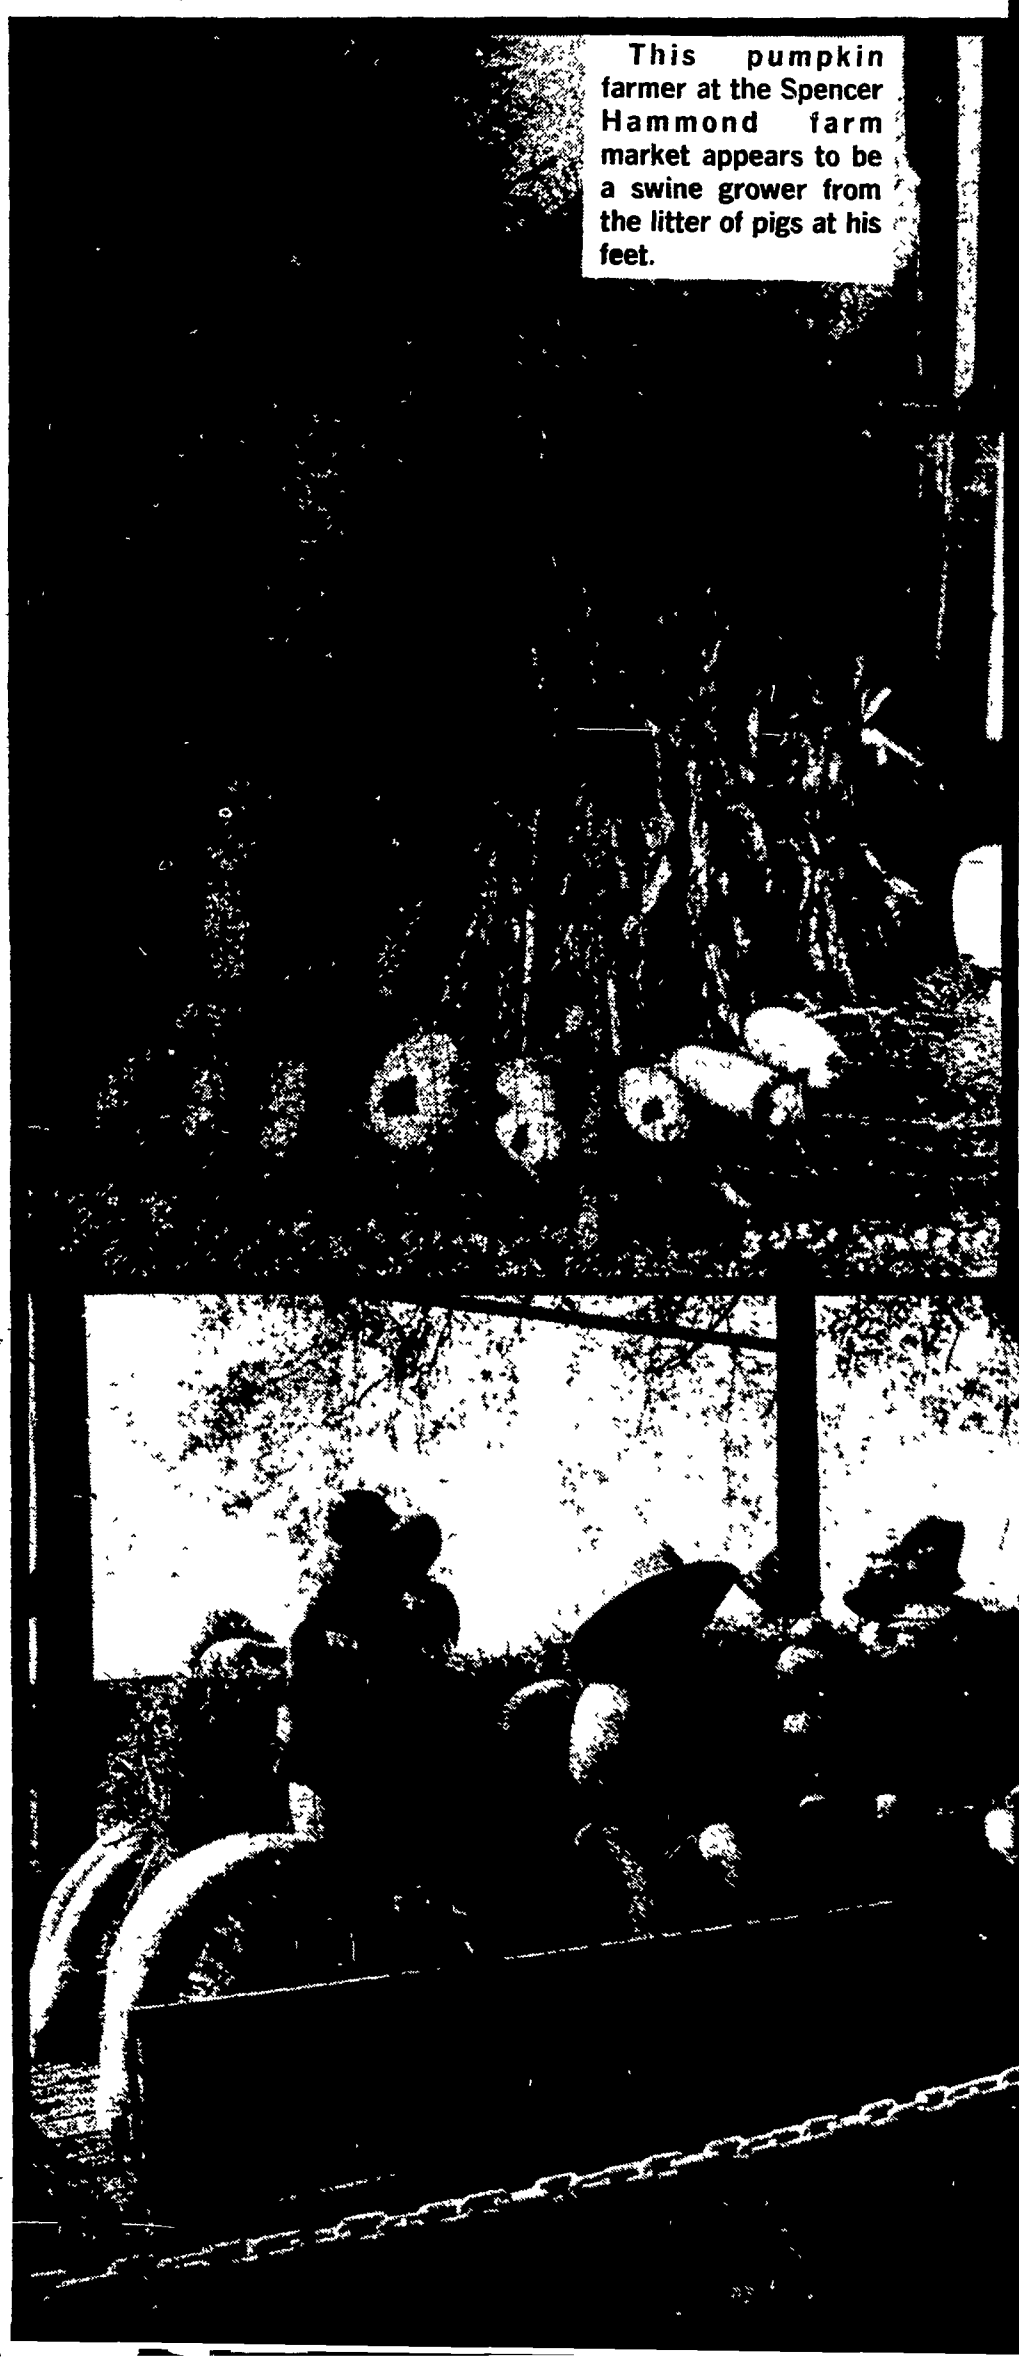
"Many people come into York County for a drive, and then they stop by with us," says Hammond, who is sold on the beauty of York County.

Echoing the sentiments of the Pfautz family, the Hammonds say that their visitors expect something new every year.

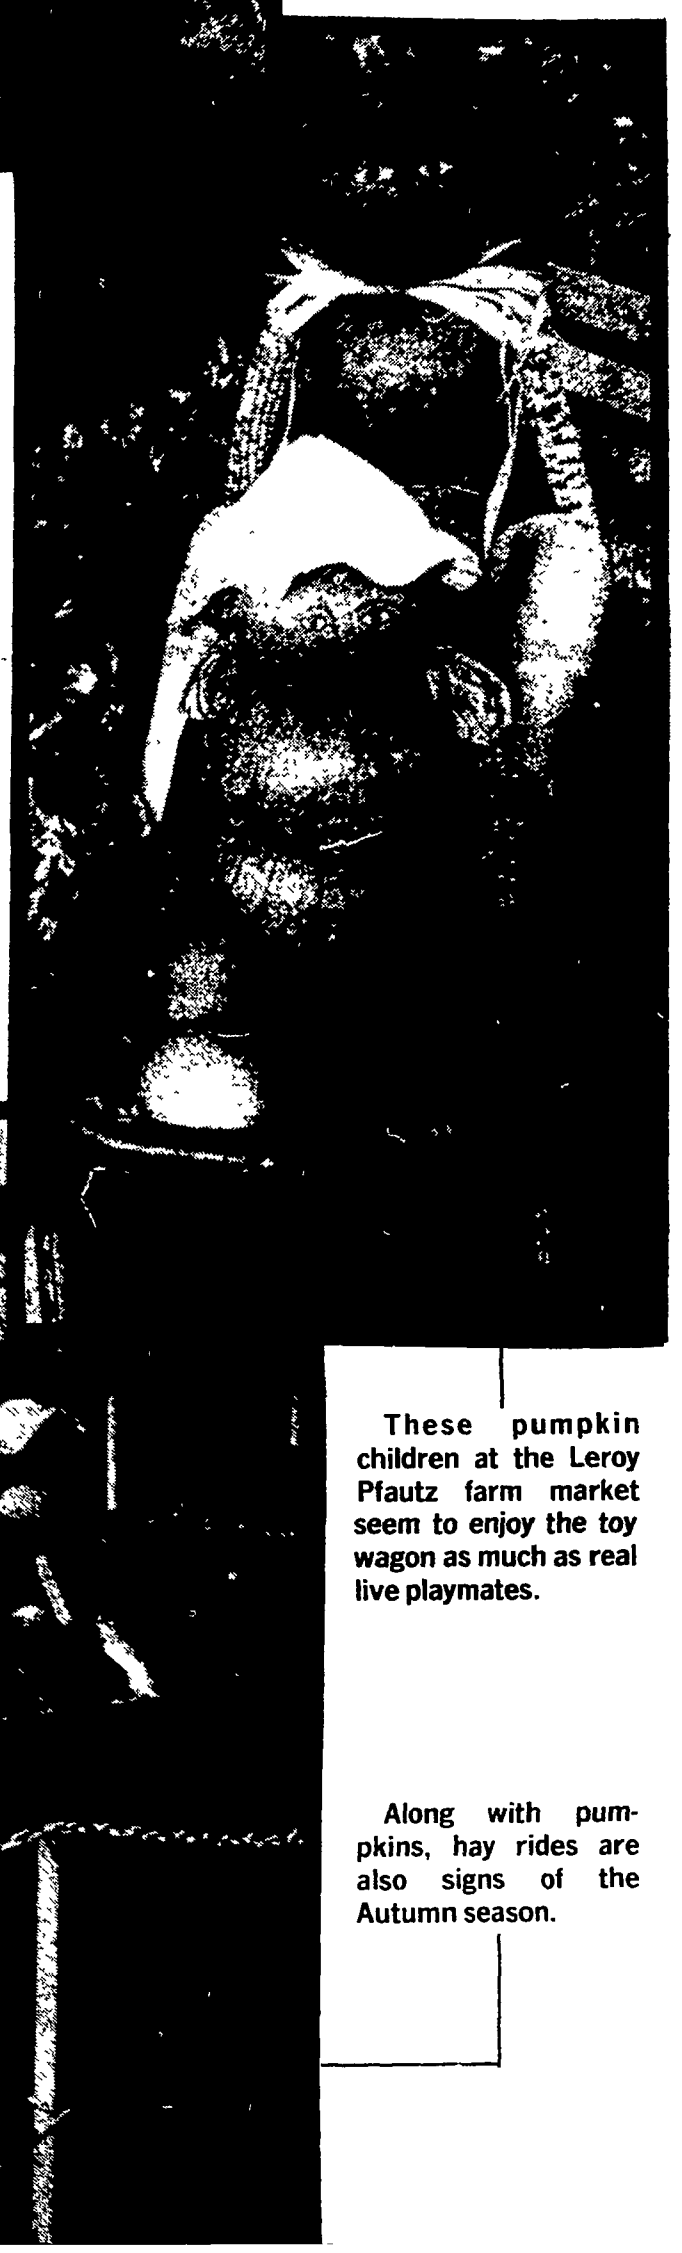
The Hammonds start setting up their displays around the second week of September and close down the market on November 1. All told, from July through November, the Hammonds sell all their produce from 50 acres of crops that include sweet corn, Summer squash, peppers, egg plants, tomatoes, red cabbage, green cabbage, cucumbers, cauliflower, and turnips.

The Hammonds also conduct tours with as many as 2000 school children from nursery school through first grade learning how produce is raised and marketed.

This tricycle rider is one of the more popular pumpkin people at the Leroy R. Pfautz farm market near Stevens R1. According to Mrs. Pfautz, who has created the displays for 12 years, toys such as this three wheeler come in handy when creating pumpkin scenes.



This pumpkin farmer at the Spencer Hammond farm market appears to be a swine grower from the litter of pigs at his feet.



These pumpkin children at the Leroy Pfautz farm market seem to enjoy the toy wagon as much as real live playmates.

Along with pumpkins, hay rides are also signs of the Autumn season.

Dairy goat showmanship day

How a goat can be shown to its best advantage was the topic of the showmanship day and picnic held by the Delaware County 4-H Dairy Goat Club, recently. Judy Bohn, leader from Salem County, N.J., gave pointers on general showmanship. Members brought their own animals for evaluation and practice.

The Delco 4-H Dairy Goat Club meets at 7 p.m. on the second Wednesday of each month. The meeting location is Dr. Nancy Riser's office, Pennell Road, Glen Riddle, Pa.

Hayride held

THOMASVILLE - The Thomasville 4-H Club held a hayride at their meeting October 15 at the Rodney Eisenhart Farm, Thomasville, R1. About 100 people attended which included members, their families and friends.

After the wagon ride, the group roasted hot dogs, had hot chocolate and other treats supplied by the members.

The next club event will be covered dish Achievement Night on December 3 at 7:00 p.m. at the 4-H Center, near Bair.

Americans are eating more chicken than ever before. Consumption rose to 41 pounds per capita in 1976 and according to the United States Department of Agriculture, chicken is served in all homes once a week or more.

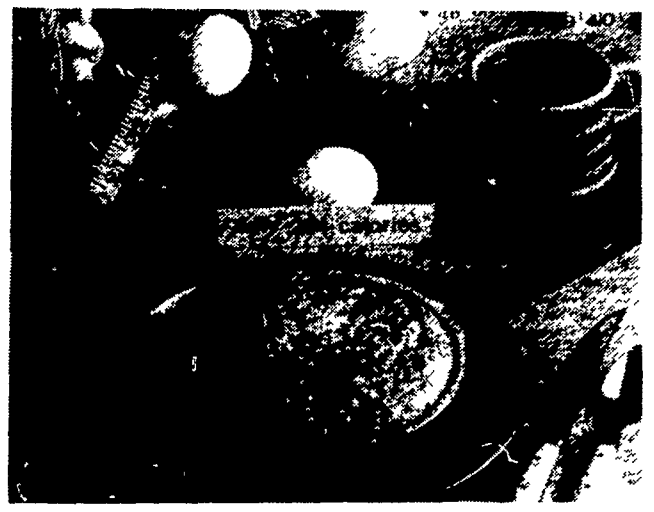
Whether it's lunch, dinner, or breakfast you are hungry for, eggs can fill the bill. This week's recipes all center around a variety of foods which can be made from this nearly perfect food.

Eggs are low in calories (only per large egg), but rich in high-quality protein. They also contain a healthy dose of the vitamins A, D, and the B complex along with the minerals iron and phosphorous.

When you find yourself saying, "What can I fix for lunch (supper or breakfast), reach for eggs. They are simple and lend themselves to a variety of foods.

SCOTCH EGGS

6 hard cooked eggs, shelled
1-½ cups bread crumbs
1 egg, slightly beaten
¼ cup water
1 pound sausage meat



Slim-Down Omelet

Fat for deep-frying

Roll hard-cooked eggs in crumbs, then dip in beaten egg which has been mixed with water. Dip into crumbs again. Let stand 15 minutes at kitchen temperature to dry slightly. Divide sausage meat into six portions. Wrap each crumbed egg with sausage. Cover evenly and retain shape of egg. Roll again in beaten egg and crumbs. Let dry about 15 minutes.

Fry in deep, hot fat (375 degrees F) about five minutes or until sausage is cooked and browning. Drain on thick paper towels. Chill. Serve whole or cut in half with salad. Makes six to 12 servings.

EGG TOPPED CAULIFLOWER

medium cauliflower
4 cups water
1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons butter, lightly browned
1 hard cooked egg, chopped
1 teaspoon minced parsley or dill

Trim large outer leaves of cauliflower, letting small tender leaves remain. Cut deep cross in center of stalk. Bring water and salt to a boil in four quart saucepan. Add cauliflower stalk and simmer uncovered for two minutes. Then, cover and simmer until crisp-tender for about 10 to 12 minutes. Lift to colander and drain well. Put in heated serving dish. Pour hot butter and sprinkle with egg and parsley. Makes four servings.

QUICK-MIX CHOCOLATE MOUSSE

1 package (6 oz.) semi-sweet chocolate morsels
½ cup hot brewed coffee
4 eggs, separated
¾ to 1 teaspoon rum or brandy extract
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
3 tablespoons sugar
Whipped Cream, optional

Reserve eight chocolate mosels for garnish, if desired. Place remaining morsels in blender container. Blend at medium speed 10 seconds. Scrape down sides of blender container with rubber spatula, if necessary. Add coffee. Blend at medium speed five seconds. Add egg yolks and extract. Blend at medium speed 15 seconds or until smooth. In mixer bowl, beat egg whites and cream of tartar until soft peaks form. Add sugar, one tablespoon at a time, beating constantly until sugar is dissolved and whites are glossy and again stand in soft peaks. Gently fold chocolate mixture into meringue. Pour into eight individual dessert dishes or a five-cup serving bowl. Refrigerate at least one hour. To serve, garnish with whipped cream and reserve chocolate morsels, if desired. Makes eight servings. Note: Rub just a bit of meringue between thumb and forefinger to feel if sugar has dissolved.

BAKED EGGS WITH RICE AND CHEESE SAUCE

¼ cup butter
½ cup finely chopped green pepper
½ cup sliced fresh mushrooms or 1 can (4 oz.) sliced mushrooms, drained
3 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt

one eighth teaspoon pepper
2 cups milk
1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
1 tablespoon chopped chives
3 cups cooked rice
8 eggs

Cook green pepper and mushrooms in butter until tender but not brown; blend in flour, salt and pepper. Cook, stirring until mixture is thickened and bubbly. Stir in milk all at once; heat to boiling, stirring constantly. Boil and stir until mixture is smooth and thickened. Remove from heat; stir in cheese until melted. Stir in chives. Combine 2 cups sauce with cooked rice. Spread rice mixture evenly in 12 x 7½ x 2-inch baking pan. Make eight indentations with back of spoon. Carefully break an egg into each indentation. Cover eggs with remaining sauce. Bake in preheated 350 degrees F. oven 25 to 30 minutes or until eggs are cooked to desired degrees of doneness. Makes four servings.

EGG AND KIDNEY BEAN SALAD

8 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
1 can (1 lb.) kidney beans, well-drained
1 cup chopped sweet pickles
¾ cup finely chopped celery
¼ cup finely chopped onion
½ cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon chili sauce
1 teaspoon vinegar
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
½ teaspoon salt
one eighth teaspoon pepper

Set aside some center egg slices for garnish. Combine remaining eggs, beans, pickles, celery, and onion in bowl. Blend other ingredients and pour over egg mixture. Toss lightly until dressing is evenly distributed. Serve in lettuce cups, with center slices of egg for garnish. Makes four to six main dish servings.

BANANA EGG NOG

1 small ripe banana
1 egg
1 tablespoon honey
1 cup cold milk
½ teaspoon vanilla

Peel bananas, and cut into small pieces Put into blender or place banana in a one quart bowl and beat with rotary beater. Blend banana with egg and honey until

DELI EGGWICHES

8 eggs
½ cup milk
1-½ teaspoons instant minced onion

½ teaspoon salt
one-eighth teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons butter
¼ pound sliced salami or bologna, cut in ½-inch strips (about 4 to 5 slices)
8 slices large Russian rye bread, toasted and buttered
Quick Mustard Sauce

In mixing bowl mix eggs, milk, onion, salt, and pepper thoroughly with a fork or rotary beater. Set aside. In large skillet or saucepan over medium heat cook salami in butter until lightly browned. Pour reserved egg mixture over salami. As eggs begin to set, gently draw a pancake turner completely across bottom and around sides of pan, forming large soft curds. Continue until eggs are thickened throughout but still moist. Place about two-thirds cup egg mixture on each of four toast slices. Top each with one tablespoon (or more to taste) Quick Mustard Sauce. Top with remaining toast slices. Cut in half. Makes four servings. Note: It is better to remove scrambled eggs from pan when slightly underdone. Heat in eggs completes cooking.

QUICK MUSTARD SAUCE

1 egg
¼ cup water
¼ cup vinegar
2 tablespoons sugar
1-½ tablespoons dry mustard
1 tablespoon butter
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash nutmeg

Place all ingredients in blender container or small mixer bowl. Blend or mix with electric or rotary beater at medium speed until well combined. Pour into small

EGGS A LA FLAMENCA

Canned tiny peas
Eggs, two per person
Boiled ham, two small pieces per person
Sliced canned pimiento
Mild tomato sauce
1 teaspoon butter or olive oil per person

In individual casseroles arrange a bed of drained canned peas. Break over them two eggs, side by side. Add two pieces boiled ham, one at each side, so they do not cover eggs. Pour two or three tablespoons tomato sauce over all. Add butter or olive oil. Decorate with strips of pimiento. Cool under moderate broiler heat until eggs are set or cooked as much as each person likes them.

SLIM-DOWN OMELET

2 eggs, separated
½ cup drained cooked chopped broccoli
1 jar (2-½ oz.) sliced mushrooms, drained and chopped
1 medium canned or peeled fresh tomato, chopped
1 teaspoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt
one-eighth teaspoon garlic powder
one-eighth teaspoon basil
Dash pepper
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
1 tablespoon grated Parmesan cheese

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. In small mixing bowl combine egg yolks, vegetables, lemon juice, salt, garlic powder, basil, and pepper. Beat egg whites and cream of tartar just until whites no longer slip when bowl is tilted. Gently fold yolk mixture into whites. Heat ovenproof non-stick skillet over medium heat until hot enough to sizzle a drop of water. Gently turn egg-vegetable mixture into skillet. Put in oven and bake for about seven to 10 minutes or until top springs back when touched lightly. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Serve immediately. About 264 calories per serving. Makes one serving. Note: To ovenproof skillet, wrap foil around handle.

NEMA to meet in Lancaster

LANCASTER - Recognizing Lancaster County as the fast growing egg production region that it is, the Board of Directors of Northeast Egg Marketing Association (NEMA) has selected the Continental Inn at Lancaster as the site of their 1977 annual membership meeting.

Hank Simpson

A one-day session has been slated to begin at 8 a.m., on November 14th, dovetailing with NEPPCO's industry event.

Hank Simpson, president of NEMA, reported that the sessions will be devoted to assessing egg marketing trends, to looking at countrywide egg promotion, and to grappling with the potentials of egg export.

A roster of speakers for the day includes United Egg Producer vice president for governmental relations James Fleming; Gregory Murch, U.E.P.'s director of marketing, and Chris Bushway, American Egg Board's promotion coordinator for the Northeast.

OUR EXPERTS ARE YOUR EXPERTS. Put them to work- FREE!

What's good, sensible feeding for one dairyman can be just plain extravagance for another.

That's why Beacon emphasizes "no-nonsense feeding".

By "no-nonsense" we mean profitable feeding, based on the needs of your herd, using as much as possible the feed available on your own farm, along with whatever supplements are needed for a complete nutritionally balanced diet.

How can you be sure you're feeding your herd well, and at the least possible cost?

We urge you to call upon the services of our dairy experts, in the field and at our headquarters in Cayuga. By all means, take advantage of our free roughage analysis.

Your Beacon Advisor will take a sample of your roughage and send it to our laboratory. There it will be analyzed by one of the dairy experts shown above—a man with a great deal of experience in animal nutrition. His analysis will be sent to you promptly, along with feeding recommendations based on your roughage quality and feed requirements.

There's no charge for the service and no one will try to sell you feed or supplements you don't need.

With Beacon feeds and Beacon's advisory service, your herd will get nutrients, not just ingredients.

Farm Women Societies

Berks Co. Society 6

The October meeting of the Berks County Farm Women Society 6 was held at the home of Mrs. David Hauseman, Oley R1. Speaker for the evening was Mrs. Robert Kepfer, Fleetwood R2, whose subject was the proper brushing and cleaning of hair.

The new officers elected for the 1978-1979 term will be: President, Linda Snyder; vice president, Erma Bauer; recording secretary, Delores Mensch; corresponding secretary, Fan Hartz; and treasurer Pearl Hoffman.

Final plans were made for the society's trip to Philadelphia on November 2. Members were also reminded it is time to pay the 1978 dues. Cancer pads are to be sewn by November 15 at the residence of Mrs. Paul Youse, Oley R2, beginning at 8 p.m.

Berks Co. Society 9

The October meeting of the Berks County Farm Women Society 9 was held recently at the home of Mrs. Linda Shearer, Earlville. The program for the evening was presented by Mrs. Kathy Schaeffer of the Family Crafts and Creations Store in Douglassville, who spoke on plastercraft.

Plans are being made for the bingo party to be held at Berks Heim on November 10, and a cake sale also scheduled for November.

The next meeting will be November 2 at the home of Mrs. Gloria Rhoads, Douglassville R2. Christmas arrangements will be the topic of the meeting.

Lancaster Co. Society 4

Thomas Amico, Lancaster County Park naturalist, was guest speaker at the recent meeting of Lancaster County Farm Women Society 4. Amico spoke of his duties at the park and showed a narrated slide show entitled "Majestic Woodlands of the County Park."

The business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Edwin Yeaglin, president. Tickets were distributed to those members planning to attend the County Convention. Annual dues were collected, as well as items for the needlework ingathering.

Mrs. Cyrus Gamble will be in charge of the craft table on Homemakers' Day to be held November 8, at the Farm and Home Center.

Newly elected officers for the coming year are: Miss Alice Marie Nissley, secretary; Mrs. Robert Garber, treasurer; and Mrs. Ira Barley and Mrs. Cyrus Gamble, convention delegates.

The next meeting will be November 19 at the Mountville Elementary School.

Lancaster Co. Society 12

Lancaster County Farm Women Society 12 met recently at the home of Mrs. Sarah Neudorf, Hershey Estates. Miss Ethel Kindig served as co-hostess.

The Society decided to exhibit their handiwork at the Christmas Bazaar November 8 at the Farm and Home Center, Lancaster.

Lancaster Co. Society 14

Lancaster County Farm Women Society 14 met at the home of Miriam Leaman, Paradise, with hostesses Mrs. Ether Herr, Mrs. Eva Esbenshade, and Mrs. Pauline Stoltzfus.

At the business meeting, it was decided to donate $20 to the United Way, and the election of officers was held. New officers include: Mrs Chimmers took up his guard beside the pumpkin to see if the yellow-eyed pumpkin eater would come.

Chimmers and the pumpkin eater

By KENDACE BORRY

"And the yellow-eyed pumpkin eater was never seen again", said Andy's father as he finished the story.

Andy still sitting in his father's lap, looked at the pictures of the fearsome pumpkin-eating monster. "Do you think the pumpkin-eater will come here to eat my pumpkin? ' he asked.

Chimmers, Andy's Siamese cat, who was laying on the floor next to Andy, perked up his ears. Was he hearing right? Was there really some threat to that pumpkin sitting out on the front porch? But Chimmers knew that Andy loved that pumpkin, so nothing must happen to it.

Andy's father, in reply to the question, said "I don't know, Andy. Who knows where the yellow-eyed pumpkin eater may strike next."

With these words. Chimmers felt a tremor of fear start back at the tip of his tail and twitch forward through his body as he saw in his mind some fearsom yellow-eyed monster come screaming out of the dark and gobbling up Andy's Halloween pumpkin. The thought worried him so much that he walked to the window and hopped up on the sill where he could see the pumpkin outside softly glowing in the dark.

"Well, " meowed Chimmers, "If I have anything to do with it, nothing will happen to that pumpkin."

Soon it was time for Andy to go to bed and Chimmers went outside for his last stroll before sleeping at the foot of Andy's bed. But instead of going back into the house when he was called, he hid in the bushes, determined to stay out all night and protect the jack-o-lantern.

Finally all the house lights went off and Chimmers knew everyone inside was in bed. He crawled from his hiding place and ambled across the yard to take his post beside the brightly lit pumpkin.

"I don't know what you're smiling about," Chimmers grumbled to the pumpkin. "It's cold out here." Still complaining softly to himself, he curled as closely as he could to the pumpkin and started his watch.

At first it seemed completely silent outside and Chimmers began to relax. Then his eyes began to droop and is head felt heavy as he tried to hold it up. His eyes blinked, and blinked again, and then closed...

Suddenly Chimmers eyes flew open as he heard a sound ahead of him. OOOOOOOOOHHHHHHCHOOOO! went the noise. It's just the wind, thought Chimmers, as his tail twitched nervously. But if it was the wind, then why did it sound like it was getting closer?

Then a great flapping noise sounded close by, and Chimmers quickly decided the best way to protect the pumpkin was to hide behind it. There he nervously peered around to the front to see what was happening.

The first thing he saw were two big yellow eyes staring down at him. Then he heard the noise again, "Whoooooooooooooo-chooooo!"

"Meow!" yelled Chimmers, which meant "Don't you dare eat my pumpkin!" From the other side of the pumpkin a startled snort was heard.

Slowly Chimmers took a closer look at the "monster" before him. There stood a big owl with a grin on his face.

"Whoo-choo!" he sneezed again. "Sorry," he added, "all this rain we've been having. Some of it must have gotten under my feathers."

"You mean you're not the pumpkin eater?" asked Chimmers.

"Who, me?," asked the owl "No, no, no, no, no I'm just the hoot owl that lives in the woods. I'm afraid my cold has affected my hoot too. Makes it sound sort of weird. But it adds to Halloween, you know. And he gave another long whooooo-chooooo

"Say you're not waiting for the yellow-eyed pumpkin eater, are you?", the hoot owl asked. "I thought everyone knew he comes around here tomorrow night!"

"Tomorrow night!" Chimmers meowed. "Humphrh! I must have missed that part of the story. If that's the case, I better get some sleep tonight "

And without further thought, Chimmers curled himself up into a ball of fur and fell asleep to dream of yellow-eyed pumpkin eaters

For he knew that when the next night would come, he would again be on guard duty to face the terrible beast of the Halloween season

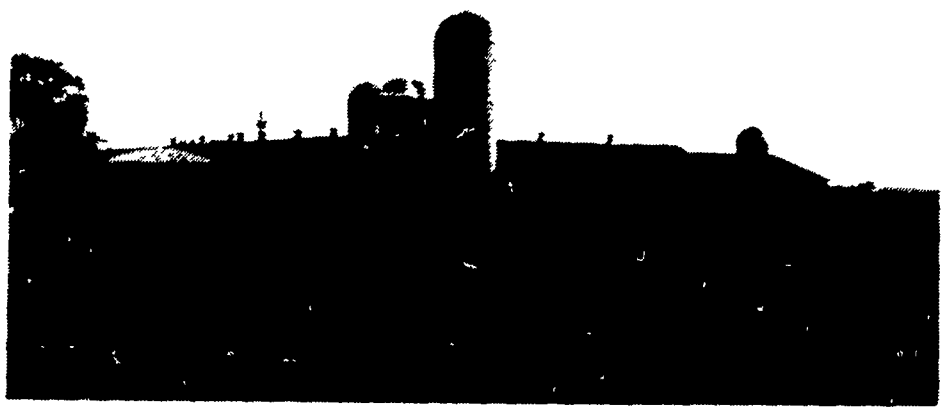
A TRIBUTE TO CARWYTHAM FARMS

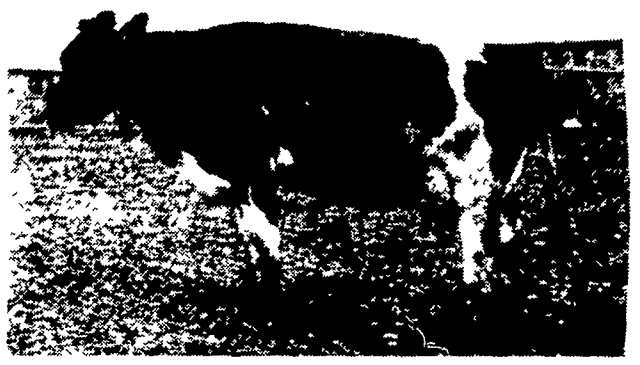
LONG ISLAND, NEW YORK



Carwytham Farms, Long Island, New York, is impressive by any standard. The performance of its Holstein herd is a case in point.
In 1976 Carwytham Farms was the high herd in DHIA in New York state with 266.4 cows, 18,725 lbs. milk, 3.7% test, and 693 lbs. fat. The herd rated 7th nationally for herds of 150-200 registered animals.

Sayre Baldwin, owner, is actively involved in the dairy herd as well as in large farming, and the operation of wholesale potato packing operation.

Individual records are impressive also:
#1550 Carwytham ABC Sally
Calved at 2 yrs. 11 mo. peaked at 88 lbs./day and produced 20,034 lbs. milk and 671 lbs. fat in 295 days; calved at 3 yrs. 10 mo. and produced 23,519 milk and 886 fat during her second lactation.

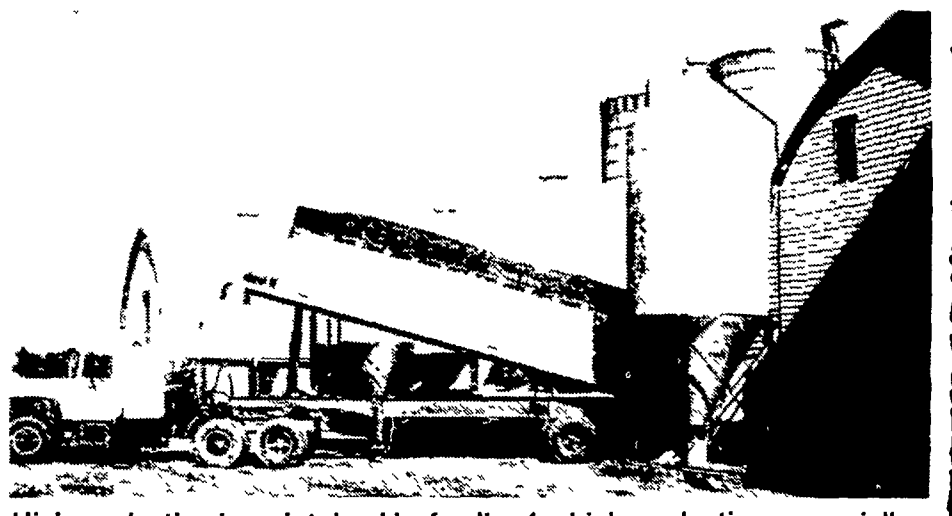


#1638 Round Out Piebe Tammy

Calved 2 yrs. 3 mo	15,634 milk,	544 fat in 276 days
Calved 3 yrs 4 mo.	27,510 milk,	758 fat in 341 days
Calved 4 yrs. 6 mo	25,629 milk,	815 fat in 298 days
Calved 5 yrs. 5 mo	22,903 milk,	771 fat in 274 days

Calving interval is near ideal — about 13 months

Part of the herd - cows producing 70 lbs. or more per day - is housed in a stanchion barn. The remainder is loose housed.
The cows are large and receive high levels of corn silage - all they will consume, limited amount of alfalfa hay and generous portions of Gehman's 16% Pel-Flakes, a coarse textured grain feed of pellets and flaked grains coated with molasses. Feed treatment - pelleting and flaking grains - provide protein that escapes breakdown in the rumen and is available protein to meet the high producing cows need for intact protein for milk production.



High production is maintained by feeding for high production - especially high levels of grain during peak period of lactation - and by judicious culling.
All feed is handled in bulk.
Carwytham Farms has three 15-ton bulk bins. Feed is brought to the farm in 22-ton trailer trucks equipped with pneumatic unloading.

Gehman Feed Mill is proud to serve the feed and nutrition needs of Carwytham Farms' high producing herd and to be a part of their success in good dairy management.

Ruth Combs, secretary, Mrs. Mildred Herr, assistant secretary, and Mrs. Rhoda Landis, treasurer.

Mrs. Dorothy Frey, Stevens, was the speaker, using the book "Momma" by Lee Bennett Hopkins as the basis of her talk on what school children are reading and how parents are reacting to these books.

The next meeting will be November 9 at the home of Mrs. Elma Barge. The program will be corn husk dolls presented by Mrs. Ruth Thome.

Lancaster Co. Society 15

Lancaster County Farm Women Society 15 met for their October meeting at Funnel Lake Farm, Kirkwood R2, the summer home of Mrs. Florence Rhoads. Mrs. Rhoads and her sister, Mrs. Martha Herr hosted the meeting.

The society plans a trip to New York on December 3, to attend a Christmas show and have dinner. It was voted to give $25 to the Library Fund.

For the program, Mary Linton played several selections on the organ and Sadie Greenleaf conducted a talk on historical facts about the area.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Kathryn Wagner, Quarryville. A supper sale auction will be held.

Lancaster Co. Society 22

At their September meeting members of Lancaster County Farm Women Society 22 were treated to a wide array of crafts displayed and explained by Velva McClune. Mrs. McClune showed crafts for every holiday and for the seasons between.

Members were reminded to make plans to participate in the County Convention to be held November 5 at the Farm and Home Center.

Hostess was Mrs. Carl Diller, with co-hostesses Mrs. Henry Balmer, and Mrs. Lester Landis.

The group will meet November 8 at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Henry Hess, 15 Batt Avenue, Willow Street. Mrs William Weller will be co-hostess. Martin K. Brown will present a program entitled, "Peter Piper Picked a Peck of Pickled Peppers"

York Co. Society 26

The November meeting of the group will be held at the home of Mrs. Calvin Wilt, York Havin R1, on Novmeber 8 starting at 12:30 p.m. Plans will then be made for the state convention in January.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Sandwiched between the rainy and dreary days we've had this season Allen and I, with some friends, found a sunny Saturday to travel through the Pocono Mountains.

The Oktoberfest which was planned for the weekend included a German band, free ski instructions, and rides on the chair lifts. It was quite a thrill to travel up the 2800 foot slopes on an open chair. We looked down on grassy areas and on big boulders as we ascended. The view on the way down of surrounding mountains was spectacular as the trees were clothed in orange, red, yellow leaves interspersed with evergreens.

Food of German origin was served outdoors and the hot sun caused the diners to open their ski jackets and to remove their woolen caps. We were served a Polish sausage, red cabbage, and German potato salad.

There were many shops renting ski equipment located nearby in addition to a babysitting service. But, I fear I'm a bit past the "learn to ski" age and will have to leave this experience for my children.

Recently, I hear an unusual story told about this old house of ours.

It seems that a young lady by the name of Adeline lived here in the 1840's and had several boy friends coming to see her.

She told her grandson how, on one occasion, she was entertaining a young man in the parlor while his horse was stabled in the barn.

On this particular night another young fellow came down the lane and seeing the horse in the barn became quite upset and unhitched his animal and urged it up on the front porch. Then he proceeded to clip-clop, clip-clop back and forth for quite a while. This sounds almost impossible, except for the fact that we did uncover a foundation which showed that the porch was on several sides of the house originally.

On being a farm wife —And other hazards

By JOYCE BUPP

Halloween. Does it bring to your mind ghosts, goblins, and ghouls? The scariest thing I envision at Halloween season, though, is not a witch, a black cat, or a spook--but a downright terrifying act that goes something like this:

The Scene: That eternal "farm" in the sky.

The Cast: St. Peter, who guards the heavenly farmgate to the promised land; and the Hazardous Harvesting Hurrying Farmer

St. Peter: What are you doing here; it's the middle of corn picking? Down there sits your machinery. You came to the wrong place if it's parts you wanted.

HHH Farmer: No, no! This is all an awful mistake! I just started to clean out this awful choke-up of stalks and....

St. Peter: ...and you left it running to save time...

HHH Farmer: Certainly! Like I always tell my worrying wife, it takes three times longer to pull out a choke up if you turned the blasted thing off! Besides, I was in a hurry to finish that last corner - it's after 10 p.m. ya' know – and I've been out there since sunup.

St. Peter: You mean you haven't been off that machine in 16 hours?

HHH Farmer: Well, I stopped a half hour to service stuff, gas-oil-grease; gotta' take care good care of this $50,000 harvester. It takes forever to get parts when she breaks down.

St Peter: But you won't take time to refuel and rest yourself? Are parts for you easier to get than for that overgrown corn chopper? No wonder you got so careless! You should've greased your common sense instead of the chains.

HHH Farmer: Now you sound like my wife, too. Tell you what: let me go finish and I promise to do better next year.

St. Peter: Sorry pal, you can't go back from up here. Besides, it'll take you an eternity to explain this whole thing to our resident OSHA inspector.

THE END (literally)

Impossible?.....or is it?

Ladies Have You Heard?

By Doris Thomas

Lancaster Home Economist

IN A STEW WITHOUT ONIONS?

Can you imagine a good pot roast or stew without onions? In fact, just imagine trying to cook without onions. Mild or pungent, the versatile onion is the main ingredient in many dishes and enhances hundreds more as a seasoning.

But what kind of onions should you buy? Even though there are many varieties, picking out a good boiling onion or a nippy onion to slice for hamburgers should not be a problem.

At the start, all onions are technically green or spring onions—young, tender onions with a white or creamy base, little or no bulb formation, and fairly long green tops. Dry onions, however, are grown to maturity and then dried, either in the field or in artificial driers, so that the skin becomes papery and the top dries down.

Because the late Summer crop stores well, and also because there are crops in early Spring, late Spring, and early Summer, the flow of onions to market throughout the year is relatively even. Although there is no peak season, dry onions are now coming to market in plentiful supply.

Globe onions, the most common, are available during the late Summer, Fall, and Winter. They have a strong flavor and are used mostly for cooking. Most varieties are round to oval and range in size from 2 to 3-½ inches. Globe onions are usually yellow, although some varieties are white and a few are red or purple.

Spanish onions, including the Sweet Spanish, also are available in the Fall and Winter. These varieties have a mild flavor, so they are ideal for slicing and for salads. They are the same shape as globe onions but are larger—usually over three inches in diameter. Most Spanish onions are yellow; some are white. Both Spanish and globe onions can be stored in the home for several months in a cool, dry place.

A third class, which includes the Bermuda onion, is available during the Spring and Summer. These onions are mild flavored, too, and good for eating raw as well as for cooking. They are not as round as globe or Spanish onions and are usually two inches or larger in diameter. Although a few varieties are white-skinned, these onions are usually yellow. Because they are not cured as long as other kinds, these onions can be stored for only short periods in your refrigerator.

Consumers may find bags of dry onions labeled U.S. No. 1. This USDA grade means good quality. U.S. No. 1 onions have good shape and are free from decay or defects such as sprouting or necks that have tough, woody centers.

If onions are not marked by grade, check for dryness and firmness. Make sure the necks of the onions are dry. Soggy necks are an indication that decay may have set in.

Dry onions covered with papery outer scales store well. Onions should be stored away from foods that might absorb odors, however. The storage place should be room temperature or lower, dry, and have good circulation.

USING WHAT'S ON HAND

If you're like 78 per cent of those in a recent study, you buy canned soup with no particular use in mind, but rather to have it on hand for an assortment of uses.

If a can of Condensed Cream of Mushroom Soup is sitting in your pantry (as it is in 85.3 per cent of all households surveyed) try this recipe. It's prepared with foods that many homemakers keep on hand.

Potato-Topped Meat Pie

1 can (10-¾ ounces) Condensed Cream of Mushroom Soup
1 pound ground beef
¼ cup finely chopped onion
1 egg, slightly beaten
¼ cup fine dry bread crumbs
2 tablespoons chopped parsely
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
2 cups mashed potatoes
¼ cup shredded mild cheese
Bacon, cooked and crumbled

Mix thoroughly ½ cup soup, beef, onion, egg, bread crumbs, parsely and seasonings. Press firmly into 9-inch pie plate. Bake at 350 degree F for 25 minutes; spoon off fat. Frost with potatoes; top with remaining sour, cheese and bacon. Bake 10 minutes more or until done. Makes six servings.

Black cat is Halloween symbol

Once again, with arching back and luminous eyes, the black cat becomes a symbol of Halloween - companion to witches and the embodiment of the occult and mysterious.

Since the dawn of civilization, cats have occupied a unique place in the human imagination and superstition. The ancient Egyptains worshipped and made them guardians of their holy temples. When the sacred cats died, their bodies were mummified and grandly entombed along with mummified mice to provide for their nourishment in the hereafter.

In medieval Europe the public "image" of cats varied rather wildly. At one time cats, particularly black cats, were feared as harbingers of evil spirits. Later, cats helped get rid of rodents which were carriers of the Black Plague. As a result, cats were welcomed into kitchens and barns and given a well-earned place of honor on the family hearth.

Superstitions die hard, however, and many an otherwise sensible individual will do anything to avoid having a black cat cross his path, just as there are those who will not walk under a ladder or open an umbrella indoors.

Probably no one has polled cat owners as to whether mother cats with new litters have more trouble finding homes for their jet black progeny then for their white or beige or tiger-striped children, but there are a good many cases when an all-black cat was the last litter to fine a really good home.

Perhaps it is time that a campaign be launched to remind animal lovers that love is color blind and that black cats be placed in their proper niche as animals of unusual beauty and good companions to people. A booklet devoted to the interests of cat lovers and their pets of all colors, called the CARE AND FEEDING OF YOUR CAT, is available free of charge. Write: Friskies Pamphlets, P.O. Box 220, Department H, Pico Rivera, California 90665.

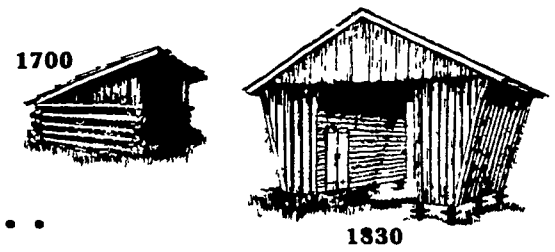
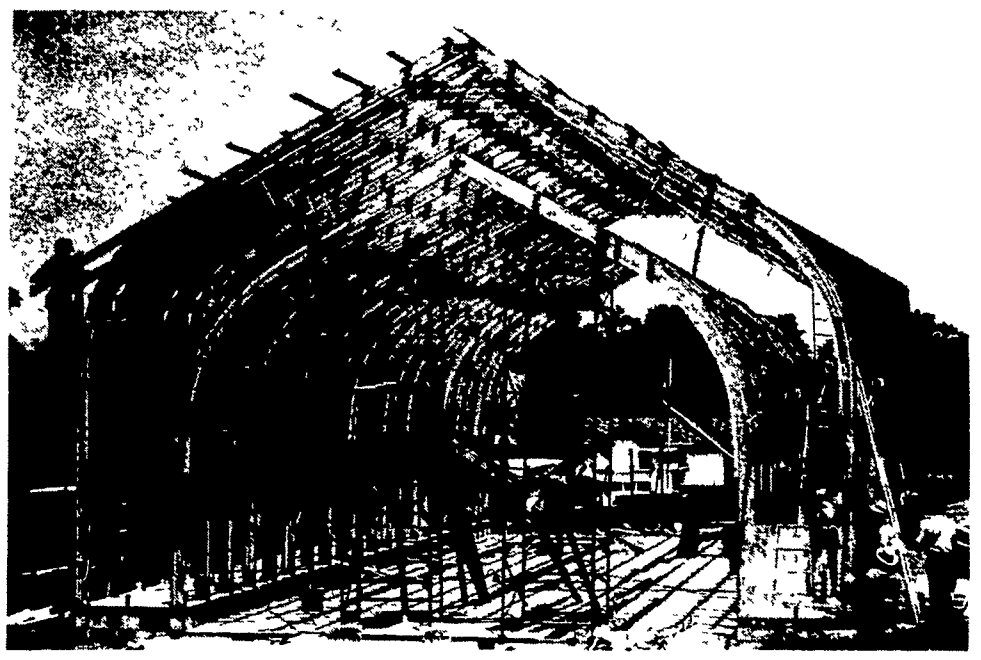
A building with almost unlimited possibilities . . .



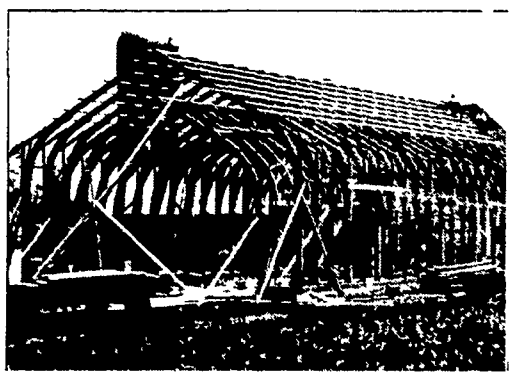
The Evolution of the American Corncrib

1977

Laminated Uni-arch design makes all inside space useful — even close to walls, and permits economical installation of roofing and siding materials



Large Volume Grain and Storage Implement Building



Beginning with the earliest American farms, corn on the cob was seasoned and dried by allowing air to flow around it; this kept away mold. From simple, square cribs of alternately piled logs, covered by a sloping roof, the corncrib evolved to the drive-in crib. The sidewalls always slanted outward at the eaves. On a great many mountain farms this was the beginning of barn architecture, for by adding doors in the driveway wall, you have the simplest American barn.

Today, a much more efficient structure for the storage of corn — along with large farm implement storage — is provided by the imaginative use of the Laminated Rafter. The exceptional strength of this aesthetically pleasing arch may be readily combined with simple construction, requiring a minimum amount of materials and erection time. It is a structure that permits great flexibility, because all inside space is useable, offering so many possibilities for a variety of farming needs.

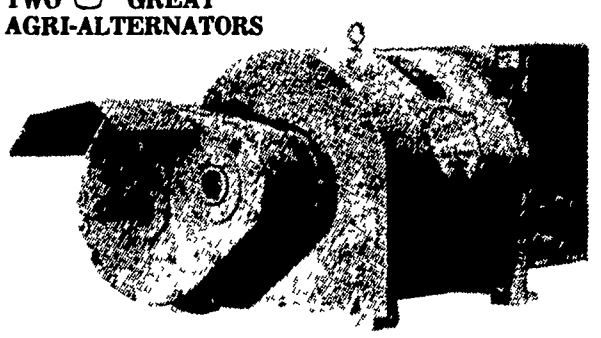
KATOLIGHT LIGHT & POWER PLANTS

Electra Series AGRI-ALTERNATOR BY KATOLIGHT

MODELS: 150S (15,000 WATTS)
-250S (25,000 WATTS)

TWO GREAT AGRI-ALTERNATORS



LOOK TO KATOLIGHT FOR DESIGN WITH ENGINEERING EXCELLENCE!

1. STATICALLY EXCITED - with power boost for excellent motor starting.
2. POWER ENGINEERED - for 80 per cent power factor loads.
3. BRUSHLESS EXCITER - solid state for quick surge response.
4. FARM TESTED - under actual emergency conditions at a confined dairy operation.
5. CLASS "F" - insulated throughout. Weather and rodent resistant.
6. DEPENDABLE - gear drive to withstand shock loads.
7. SLOW SPEED - long lasting 1800 RPM operation.
8. CONVENIENT RECEPTACLES - duplex 120 volt and single 240 volt receptacles.
9. CAST ALUMINUM COOLING FAN - for maximum cooling efficiency.

CHECKLIST for buying a gutter cleaner

If you re now looking for a gutter cleaner, be sure it has all these important features

☐ One-piece chain link with hook and eye for heavy-duty 4 way flexibility
☐ Angled flites for added efficiency
☐ Wear shoe on each flite a full half-inch thick for longer flite life
☐ Flites welded to links — fewer parts to corrode
☐ Easy link removal in 10 seconds — without tools
☐ Removable corner wheel assemblies to eliminate cement break out
☐ Flanged corner wheel to guide chain and protect gutter floor
☐ 4 Tooth drive sprocket reduces strain on reducer
☐ Sprocket and roller chain reducer for complete dependability
☐ Flite cleaner engineered to serve right and last long
☐ Automatic chain tightener works with full or part load
☐ Continuous duty motor eliminates motor overheating
☐ Telescoping slide legs for easy slide adjustment
☐ Chilled cast hold down shoe for longer shoe life
☐ Chain oiler for lubrication and corrosion resistance

The only gutter cleaner which gives you ALL these vital features and more is the PATZ Gutter cleaner Designed by a farmer for farmers this unit will provide years of labor saving trouble free service

CLEAN-CHUTE SILAGE KIT:

Climbing the silo chutes is now an easier and safer chore. Silage is received by the durable molded hopper unit which can be trimmed to fit any conventional silo door opening. Silage flows down the 11" plastic tube—large enough to carry the output of heavy duty silo unloaders. The tube is cut to length at the lower end as the silo is unloaded. All the silage is confined to the silo flow. With silage no longer hanging up on chute and steps, corrosion inside the chute is sharply reduced

L. H. BRUBAKER, INC.

350 Strasburg Pike, Lancaster, PA Phone 717-397-5179

PERRY CO. BLAIN RD. 1

333 Acres with approx. 67 acres wooded ready to timber, remaining land is tillable and in pasture. Land is slightly rolling and has several acres which is level and has been tiled by P.A. conservation office. 41'x85' barn with other buildings, house is frame and structurally very good.

110 Acres all tillable and pasture with stream. This farm will catch the eye with its lovely, well built and well kept stone home. Barn is 49x85 and in very good condition. Much more could be said, so don't miss seeing this beautiful, well producing farm while it lasts.

100 Acres all tillable, is presently being used for dairy. Set-up is not modern but could very easily be remodeled to fit your needs. Another well built stone house goes with this farm. NOTE! The 3 above mentioned farms are land joining and would be ideal for large operation, or for Father & Son who would like to work together.

68 Acres along Fowler Hollow Rd., west of Blain. This farm is located along the main mountain ridge and has very good deer & turkey hunting. All but approx. 7 acres is tillable and has good crop producing soil. Barn is 40x80. House is partly stone and brick and in NO need for repairs . . . ready to move in. If you love peace and tranquility while you work or play, don't wait to see this one, just call today!

NORTHUMBERLAND CO.

104 Acres, may be what you were waiting for. This farm is located on the southern end of Northumberland Co. and is next to Lyken's Valley, Dauphin Co. Between 70 and 80 acres tillable, remaining is wooded. 40 x 80 barn in good condition. 4 Bedroom house which owner says may be log. NOTE! Owner will subdivide 30 acres which boarder's approx. 650 ft. along Mahantongo River with GREAT trout fishing. Hunting is excellent for deer and turkey. Approx. 10 acres is cleared which has a high elevation that would be great for building a hunting camp or home, giving you a lovely view of the valley below. Call now it won't last long.

For more information or for a personal showing contact: Elam V. Stoltzfus 215-593-6292.

If you are interested in buying a farm or in selling yours, it would be our greatest pleasure to SERVE YOU! E. Stoltzfus.

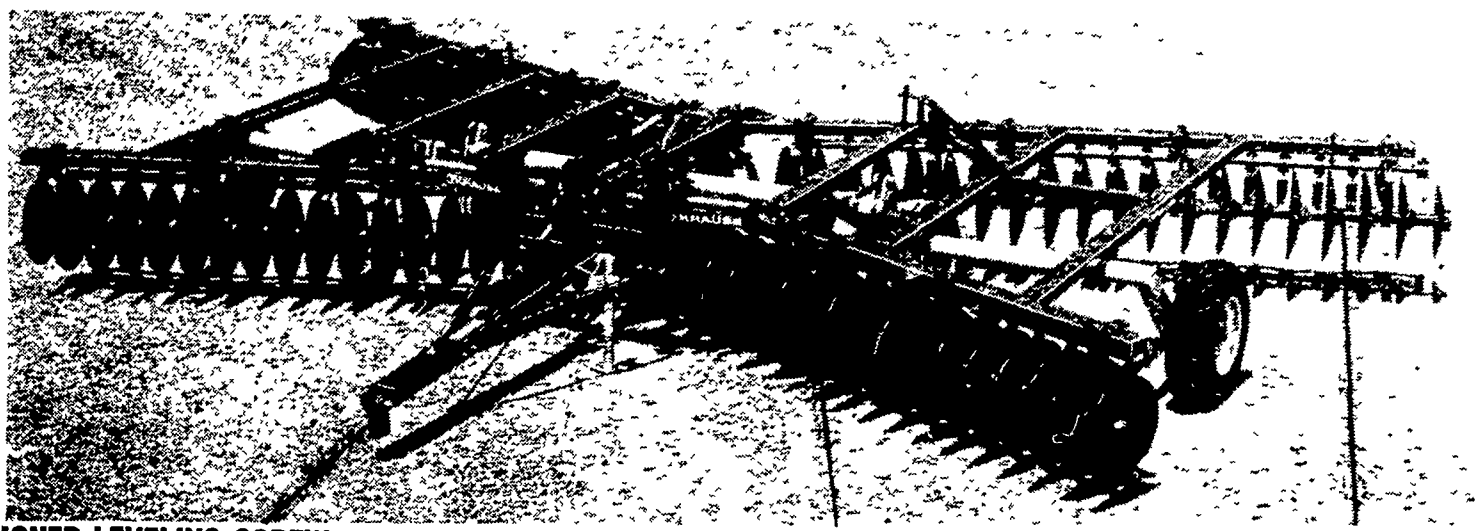
KRAUSE "ROCK-FLEX" DISCS LOVE ROCKS!

HERE'S



WHY:

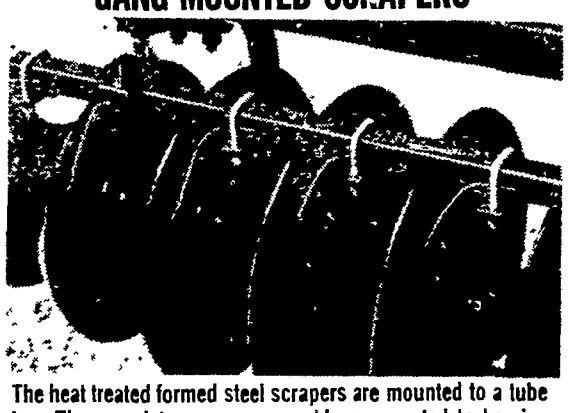
SPRING CUSHIONED LEVELING SCREW

Spring cushioned leveling screw absorbs impact in rough or rocky soil conditions This standard equipment feature lengthens equipment life, also easier on tractor and driver.

SPRING STEEL BEARING ARMS

Spring steel bearing arms are made for flexibility and long life. This proven design permits disc gangs to flex up individually as rocks or stumps are encountered, yet provides plenty of weight to do an excellent discing job in normal field conditions

GANG MOUNTED SCRAPERS



The heat treated formed steel scrapers are mounted to a tube bar The complete scraper assembly is mounted to bearing hanger so they move with the disc gang. This keeps the scraper next to the blade at all times.

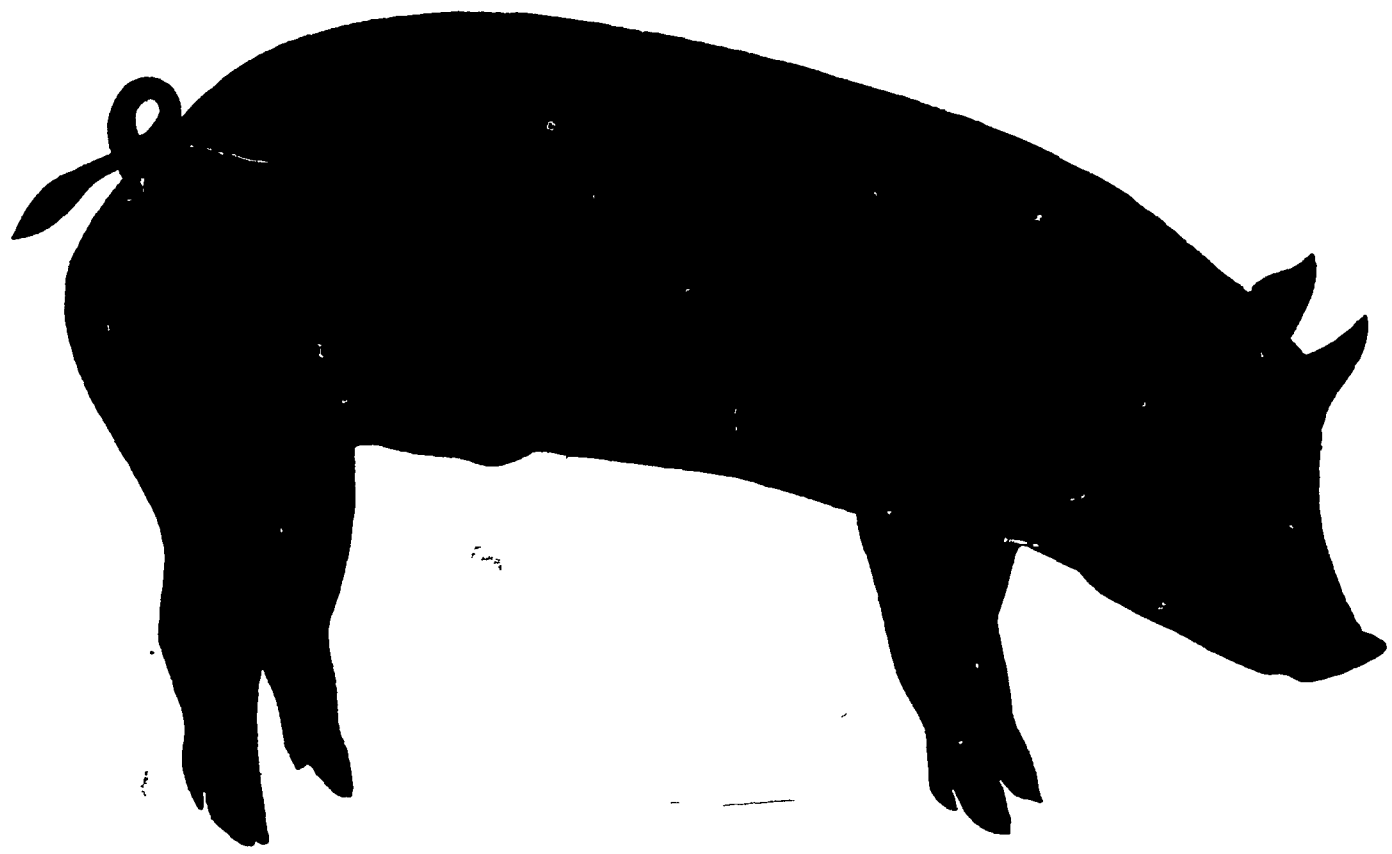
PROTEIN



WHO NEEDS IT?

It may surprise you to know that a pig doesn't even require protein.

What he does need are Amino Acids - those funny little "building blocks" that are referred to as "protein".

Lebanon COUNTY DHIA MONTHLY REPORT

SEPTEMBER 1977

Cows named Marie and May made more milk and butterfat for lactations completed last month than any others enrolled in the Lebanon County DHIA program. Marie, owned by Willow Maple Farm, churned out 25,245 pounds of milk, tested 4.0 percent, and stacked up 998 pounds of butterfat. That put her first in milk and second in butterfat. May took the butterfat honor home to her own owner, Edwin Funck. Her record reads 22,873 pounds of milk, 4.8 per cent, and 1089 pounds of butterfat.

IT PAYS TO INSULATE NOW!

No matter how you heat your home, no doubt it's costing you more than ever before. That's why it pays to insulate.

Sure, buying insulation means laying some money out now. But, the beauty of it is, you get it back . . . in energy savings . . . year after year.

Why is PP&L telling you this? Because we want to help you hold your electricity costs down—even though you may not heat your home electrically.

You see, even fuel-fired home heating systems depend on electric motors to circulate heat. If your home is well insulated these motors don't work as hard. And that saves electricity.

What's more, electricity powers air conditioners. In summer, that same insulation keeps your home cooler. That saves, too.

So, if your home is not insulated to the R-values shown above, consider adding at least enough insulation to reach these levels. "R" values indicate the thermal "resistance" of the insulation. The higher the R-value, the more effective the insulation will be.

Remember, energy is too valuable to waste . . . it pays to insulate.

"Saving energy . . . saves for all of us" PP&L

Use of stoves, fireplaces explained

NORRISTOWN - Solid wood, whether round, split, slabs, or lumber scrap, can be burned in almost any stove or fireplace equipped with a hearth or grate fine enough to retain the wood ash, but efficiency will be low if the combustion space is low, say experts.

In some stoves equipped with deep firepots, the use of short lengths of wood and the close packing of the pieces provides for a more efficient operation. Generally, these stoves are not operated at uniform rates but at burning rates that vary widely according to the weather and heating requirements. Under such conditions, it is sometimes difficult to maintain the temperature in the firebox at the ignition temperature. As a result, the unburned tars and gases go up the chimney where they are deposited as creosote or lead to metal stovepipe corrosion. If the stovepipe is long, there is strong likelihood that the flue gas will be cooled to the point where the tars, and sometimes water, will condense and leak through the joints. A rapid increase in the flue-gas temperature may cause chimney fires by igniting the accumulated tar.

The burning of wood in fireplaces is the least efficient method of generating heat. Ordinary fireplaces deliver to the room only a tenth of the heating value of wood, the balance being lost in heating the large amount of excess air passing out of the room through the chimney. A chimney damper, closed down as much as possible, will reduce the amount of air drawn from the room. A duct supplying air to the fire from outside the building will tend to conserve the heated air in the room.

Many of the modern heating-type fireplaces have metal side walls and back with space for air to circulate between the walls and the metal fireplace backing. They have air inlets near the floor level and outlets near the mantle to circulate air around the fireplace shell, thus providing convection air heating in addition to radiant heating. Ashes should be kept to the bottom of the andirons to prevent rapid wood burning as well as to accumulate a bed of glowing embers which provide maximum radiation and ignite fresh wood. The fire can be checked by sprinkling lightly with ashes and a fire so banked may last for 10 hours or so.

Improved wood stoves of the slow combustion type have been used in Europe for many years. A few were imported into the U.S. as early as the late 1930's and several American designs now utilize the basic principles of the European stove. Essentially this type of wood stove consists of a relatively airtight fuel chamber which has a grate at the bottom and is fed from the top. Primary combustion air is admitted at the bottom of a shell which surrounds the fuel chamber, the space between the shell and chamber wall forming a secondary combustion chamber in which the escaping gases driven from the wood are burned. Air ducts in the secondary chamber provide the air required for complete combustion of gases. The draft for this air can be carefully controlled. The gases distilled from the wood must pass down through the bed of coals where they are heated to the required temperature for complete combustion before passing to the secondary chamber. These burning units when properly controlled can hold a fire overnight.

Wood for the slow combustion stove should be cut shorter than the firebox to enable the fuel charge to move down as the lower wood burns. Wood should be stacked closely and evenly to ensure uniform burning. Caution should be exercised in recharging the firebox due to the buildup of gases in the combustion chamber. If the gases have not been driven or vented off, the smoke in the chamber will escape into the room and gases may back flash if the stove is very hot. Such back flashes are rare and can be avoided by the proper choice of refueling time.

HARRISBURG - The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Consumer Services Division has published a series of posters promoting Pennsylvania products and commodities, Secretary of Agriculture Kent Shelhamer said recently.

The posters are available to educational facilities, state agencies, farm organizations, county agriculture and health offices, or interested groups.

Subjects include: Pennsylvania Produces a Good Lunch For You; Pennsylvania Products Provide a Good Snack For You; Try Nature's Sweetener - Pennsylvania Honey; Pennsylvania Provides Vegetable Versatility - See How They Grow; Pennsylvania Products Provide the Basic 4 Goods; and Vitamins and Fluids.

Also available are educational leaflets explaining the nutritional values of apples, peaches, pears, cherries, grapes, vegetables, potatoes, mushrooms and maple syrup. Another leaflet explains how Pennsylvania consumers are protected under the various food laws through the Department's Bureau of Foods and Chemistry.

Pennsylvania is one of the leading agricultural states in the nation and ranks first in the production of mushrooms. It also ranks in the top five states for the production of tart cherries, peaches, apples, grapes, eggs and milk.

To obtain the material, contact the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. Consumer Services Division, Room 210, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, Pa., 17120 or call 717-783-8460.

The dairy cow is the most efficient farm animal in converting forage and grain into food. Every year dairy cows munch a mountain of 13 million tons of byproducts. Because of microorganisms living in their rumen, cows have the unique ability to transform these worthless materials into nutrients that can be used to produce milk. It is estimated that cows can be maintained on a ration of 80-100 percent non-grain feeds. That makes the dairy cow a truly remarkable milk making machine.

Noll, Hellerick Leb Co.'s outstanding 4-H'ers

By JOANNE SPAHR

LEBANON - Two members of the Lebanon County Happy Variety 4-H Club earned the county's highest 4-H honors on Saturday evening when they were named outstanding 4-H boy and girl at the teen award program held in the Lebanon Brethren Church.

Earning the awards were Maxine Noll, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Noll, 1735 Colebrook Road, Lebanon, and Bruce Hellerick, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Hellerick, Pennwood Road, Lebanon.

Miss Noll, an 18-year-old freshman majoring in nuclear engineering at Penn State University, has been involved in the Happy Variety Club for nine years where she has been a teen leader for five of the nine. She has carried 13 projects ranging from photography to knitting to flower gardening.

Active in club congress, leadership school, and other state events, Miss Noll credits 4-H with helping her become what she is today.

"4-H started me out and gave me confidence in myself," she said at the honors night. She also got her first glimpse of a nuclear reactor at Penn State during a 4-H activity. This, she recalls, "really made an impression on me."

To Bruce Hellerick, who at 16 years of age has started his own club, 4-H means "being able to learn and being able to talk bettter to people as well as having a lot of fun."

The club he began is the 4-H Entomology Club, which has approximately 15 or 20 members. Their major activities this year included visiting Penn State University, watching entomology movies, collecting insects, and studying texts.

Other projects Hellrick carries includes strawberries, geology, design with line, design with texture, vegetable gardinging, and indoor and outdoor flowers.

Along with his projects, Hellerick has participated in the club congress achievement days, teen retreat, and the Lebanon Fair.

Both Hellerick and Miss Noll were judged from blue forms.

Other awards handed out during the evening included certificates, pins, ribbons, and premium checks Patricia Krall, Extension 4-H agent, and Alletta M. Schadler, county Extension director, presented the honors

Receiving certificates and pins for leadership service in their 4-H club were Joel Fahnestock, Holly Kneasel Jim Connor, Dorothy Bemesderfer, Robert Bensing, Jeff Bensing, Ron Kneasel, Ken Hoke, Kevin Hoke, Karen Hoke, Ray Moyer, and Beth Troutman from the Norsolebco 4-H club, Michael Noll, Michelle Noll, Maxine Noll, and Dave Noll from the Happy Variety 4-H club, Bruce Hellerick from the Entomology 4-H club, Becky Zellers from the Annville Little Dutchmen 4-H club, Susan Heilinger from the Fort Zellers 4-H club; Melissa Weaver from the Happy Mountainers 4-H club; Lisa Kauffman, Johan Berger, Debra Kreider, Kathey Murray, Sue Bomberger, Linda Sellers, Lois Buchmoyer, Brian Wenger from the South Mountain 4-H club; Jane Bomgardner from the North Annville Cloverettes 4-H club; Amy Balsbaugh from the Myerstown Raiders 4-H club; Karen Rittle from the Avon-East Lebanon 4-H club; Karen Yingst, and Karen Kopecky from the North Cornwall Trailblazers 4-H Horse club; Kirby Horst, and Ricky Horst from the Elco Dairy 4-H club; and Jeanne Pierce from the Spur and Bit 4-H Horse Club.

French visit Berks County farm

FLEETWOOD - Vista Grande Farm, Fleetwood was the host to approximately 150 Frenchmen touring the United States last week. Most of the visitors, who are involved in cheese production in France wanted to see where the milk of America's cheese factories is produced.

Earlier during the day the tourists visited the Lehigh Valley cheese plant.

Alpheus and Joe Ruth, owners of Vista Grande Farm explained their dairy operation to an interpreter who in turn explained the operation to the Frenchmen.

The tourists had arrived in New York City a few days before their visit to the farm and explained their impressions of what they saw of the United States.

The first impression many of the people had was how big everything was. They also felt that New York was dirty compared to their own cities. The American people seem very open and friendly to these people one Frenchman explained, adding that the French are more formal. They were also impressed with the "roominess" of the countryside. In France everything is smaller and closer together, they explained. As for the dairy farm they toured, it was big compared to the average French farm and the yields that the Ruths were getting were much higher than their yields.

The tour was arranged by Touramerica Inc., an agency from New York City.

She has double the fun at Halloween when she sews her twin daughters' costumes

By JOANNE SPAHR

LANCASTER - Depending on how you look at it, Halloween is double trouble or double the fun for Mrs. Susan Doyle, 145 Hess Blvd., Lancaster. Susan is the mother of adorable blonde-haired, blue-eyed twin daughters who are four years old, and for four years now, she has been creating their trick or treat costumes.

Susan, who is known to Lancaster County homemakers for sewing and cooking courses she teaches on a part-time basis through the Extension Service, plays down the costumes she has created.

"I use patterns," she says, "so it's really not that difficult. Even a beginning sewer could make costumes I've made."

But, the point is that she actually takes time to create her children's outfits, which makes Halloween just a little more special for herself and her children.

"For Jim and me it's just a kick to take them trick or-treating," says Susan.

It is also fun to create and change the costumes each year.

"I've only, actually, made two sets of costumes," Susan notes. "I've just modified them from one year to the next."

For instance, the first year the girls, Pollyanna and Katherine, went as white bunnies, and for the second year, Susan just changed the ears and the tails and made them white kittens.

"Everybody still called them white bunnies, though, the second year," she laughs.

Last year Polly and Katie chose to go as an angel and a devil. This year the line up will be changed to an angel and a witch, if the girls can make up their minds as to how they want to masquerade.

Being able to use a costume for two or more years in this manner is a big plus for creating, rather than buying, ready made costumes.

"If you are going to take the time to sew them, you can plan to get more than one year's wear out of them. To do this, you should build in flexibility," advises Susan. "As far as size is concerned, big hems in both the sleeve and the hem and tucks in the middle can be used. With a Halloween costume, if you do have a tuck, it really doesn't matter."

Elaborating further, she said, "You can also pick a pattern that can be used in a variety of outfits such as an angel's suit which can be made into a princess costume or a devil's outfit that can become a clown."

For twin sisters Polly and Katie Doyle, Halloween is lots of fun, especially since their mommy makes their outfits.

"If you build your costumes with flexibility, you get more money's worth out of your fabric as well as your time," she says.

Other factors homemakers should consider is that a costume should be built with warmth in mind.

"I look for something which they could wear over even a heavy jacket," she says. Her choice of material is flannel, which isn't bulky but which does keep in the warmth.

Another reminder that Susan passes along to mothers is to remember that costumes should not be long enough for children to trip over them. They should also be made of flame resistant material for safety.

According to Susan, a handmade outfit can turn out to be more expensive than a store purchased item, but in the end, if it is made properly, the child can get more wear out of it.

"There's one other thing that you can do with Halloween costumes," says Susan, "The bunny costumes I made for them the first year are now far too small, but I've put them in their dress-up clothes and they still play with them."

Susan says that it is also fun to give the costumes to other children when they are outgrown.

While she does use a pattern, Susan admits that it doesn't necessarily take a ready made guide for creative seamstresses to come up with new costumes ideas. However, one good benefit from a pattern is that they show a lot of shortcuts for busy mothers to employ.

So, if you're in the mood to participate in your child's Halloween by making his or her costume, this year, take some of Susan's hints and have double the fun for yourself.

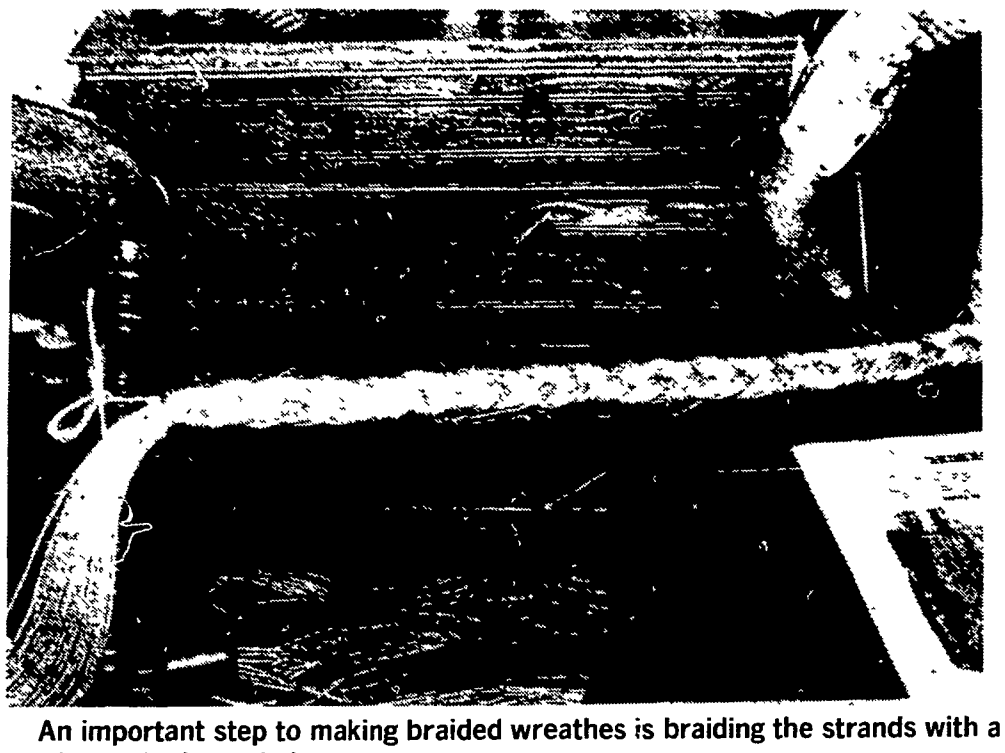
Christmas craft parties make learning fun

By SUSAN KAUFFMAN
Feature Writer

QUARRYVILLE - When a group of women gather during this time of year - whether it is a group of three who meet at the supermarket or 30 at a Farm Women or church meeting - the conversation eventually, if not immediately, turns to - "What are you doing for Christmas gifts this year?" or "Have you seen those new craft items at so- and so-'s house or such-and-such's store?"

In recent years, homemakers have made an about-face when it comes to decorating and gift giving. Whereas a store-bought gift was once the popular item, today women, young and old alike, take great pleasure in handcrafting their own decorations and gifts which they part with, sometimes reluctantly, to special people on special occasions.



An important step to making braided wreathes is braiding the strands with a hank attached to a chair.

Expensive craft books, even more expensive supply store merchandise, and commercially marketed craft classes can, at times, however, deter would-be craftpersons from taking the first step.

To combat this problem, many craft enthusiasts have devised less costly and less disquieting circumstances in which to learn a new skill - they use their friendsly neighborhood "crafty" person.

Every club or neighborhood has its handful of "crafty" people. These women have a flare for artistic design, for remembering forms, materials, effects, and for devising or improvising steps which make the end result a real creation.

Rather than demand an entrance payment and the requirement that all supplies be purchased from a certain business firm, these gifted women polish off house cleaning, make a pot of homemade soup for lunch to share with their "students", provide plenty of toys for the toddlers who accompany their mothers, and then teach the class in pleasant surroundings.

Several benefits can be derived from this type of craft class. First of all, by forming a small group of three to five people, the materials can be bought and divided so that there will be little unused, but very costly, material left over. The experienced teacher has usually learned where to purchase the best quality, the right size, and the right quantity materials needs, whereas a novice is at the mercy of a book list and attractive displays at stores. This lack of direction with novices often results in over-buying and expensive waste.

FARM DRAINAGE IS A GOOD INVESTMENT
HERE ARE 10 REASONS WHY:
1. Better soil aeration results from good drainage This permits deeper and more extensive root development and a more favorable environment for beneficial soil micro organisms and earthworms
2. Better soil moisture conditions with good drainage permit more efficient operation of tillage, planting and harvesting equipment. There is less chance of destroying soil tilth due to working soil when it is too wet.
3. Longer growing seasons can be achieved with good drainage due to earlier possible planting dates
4. An increased supply of nitrogen can be obtained from the soil where water tables are lowered by a drainage system
5 Soils warm up more quickly in the spring when free water is removed by a drainage system
6. Certain toxic substances and disease organisms are removed from the soil due to better drainage and better aeration
7. Soil erosion can be reduced on a well-drained soil by increasing its capacity to hold rainfall, resulting in less runoff
8. Deeper root development enables plants to better withstand summer droughts. High water tables in the spring due to poor drainage cause shallow root development and a smaller soil volume from which plants can obtain moisture and nutrients.
9 Valuable livestock water supplies are obtained by draining hillside seeps and piping the water to stock water tanks
10. Increased crop yields and improved crop quality result from favorable soil moisture conditions with good drainage

AFBF studies farm labor problems

PARK RIDGE, Ill. - The American Farm Bureau's board of directors have received a far-reaching report from a special Labor Study Committee, recommending a wide-range of revised policies and programs on farm labor problems; and a course of action designed to bring into balance the excessive political and economic power of organized labor.

Headed by Elton Smith, president, Michigan Farm Bureau and a member of the AFBF Executive Committee, the 10-member Committee spent six months studying the labor situation in general; farm labor problems in particular; and in developing an overall strategy for coping with these growing problems.

The Committee's printed report was distributed to all state Farm Bureaus, urging that the recommendations on policy and action be considered during this fall's policy development activities. Final action will be taken by the state Farm Bureau voting delegates at the AFBF annual meeting in Houston, January 8-12.

Tackling the Labor Monopoly

In his report to the directors, Committee Chairman Smith stressed that the Committee's assignment had not been limited to farm labor problems. It included an in-depth look at the political and economic power of labor unions, the effect this power has on agriculture and the rest of the economy, and what can be done to bring this power back into balance.

Making it clear that it does not recommend an anti-labor or anti-union attitude or position for Farm Bureau, the Committee makes the point that farmers are working people themselves and believe in the right to form non-profit associations for the purpose of advancing social and economic goals. "We believe in free collective bargaining and feel that labor organizations have played an important part in the advancement of our economy and way of life, and that they serve a necessary purpose in maintaining a balance of forces in the economy."

"But we also believe," continues the report, "that our private competitive system must be a balanced system, as free as possible from monopoly power," and "we believe that the pendulum of power has gone too far in the direction of labor and that we must restore a balance of power between labor and management."

After presenting analysis of the basis and means of the power that the unions have achieved over the past 40 years, the Committee says: "It is evident that the excessive power of the unions cannot be brought into balance without the cooperation of Congress, and it will not be possible to secure the necessary legislation until a way is found to elect more independent-minded persons to state legislatures and to the United States Congress."

Begin With Farm Bureau

To accomplish this restoration of balance, the Committee recommends that we start with Farm Bureau itself as the organization best equipped and least hampered to provide the necessary leadership and drive to get the job done.

Such an effort would involve (1) further steps to improve the prestige and effectiveness of the AFBF's office in Washington; (2) a reassessment by every state Farm Bureau of its participation in national affairs and how more Farm Bureau members can be made a part of the Receiving showing and fitting day awards from the York County Holstein Association were junior members Debbie Wolf, left, Greg Fantom and Lesley King.

Evans speaks at Holstein Association meeting

By JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Reporter

YORK - Avalong Farms dining room was the site of the annual banquet and meeting of the York County Holstein Association held October 21 with 140 in attendance.

The program for the evening was presented by Dr. James Evans, of the New Bolton Center. A specialist in cattle reproduction, Dr. Evans is pioneering research into embryo transplants.

Working closely with the Pennsylvania Holstein Association, the researcher is perfecting techniques of embryo collection using a flushing technique. Some collections are performed on farms, with the microscopic embryos rushed back to the Kennett Square hospital for transplanting into recipient grade heifers.

Using a slide presentation, Dr. Evans detailed the procedures and related statistics on success rates. He predicted that sex selection of offspring will be the next major breakthrough available to breeders of top quality purebred cattle.

During the business session, three new directors were chosen to serve three year terms. Newly elected are Donald Fantom, Delta R1; Philip Laughman, Thomasville R2; and Robert Smyser, East Berlin R1. Other directors finishing out one and two year terms are Thomas Boyer, York; Herman Stebbins, York R5; Michael Stewart, Airville R1; Frank Feeser, Hanover R2; Ellis Crowl, Airville R2; and Jed Beshore, New Cumberland R1.

Trophy awards were presented to winners of the Summer fitting and showing day, held annually by the junior association. Purpose of the training day is to teach techniques of preparing an animal for exhibition, with older members teaming with younger for the clipping, washing, and showing of a previously unbroken calf.

Capturing the team fitting trophy were Debbie Wolf, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Wolf, Abbottstown R1, and Tim Rutter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Rutter, York. Trophies for showmanship were won by Tim Rutter in the senior division, Greg Fantom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Fantom, Delta R1, in the intermediate division, and Leslie King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul King, Delta R2, in the junior division.

Entertainment for the program was provided by Inner Peace, a five-member gospel group from the York-Adams county area.

Banquet set

LANDISVILLE - The Lancaster County Holstein Breeders will hold their annual meeting and banquet on November 8 at the Indian Springs Golf Club, 949 Church St., Landisville, Pa., beginning at 6:45 p.m.

An election of new directors will be held at this meeting. Entertainment will be provided by the musical group, Real Happiness.

Tickets can be purchased until November 1 from any director or member of the banquet committee. Chairman of the banquet committee is Clyde M. Duchen, who can be reached at 717-665-4339.

Angstadt wins 4-H award

UNIVERSITY PARK - Deborah Angstadt, 16, of Maxstawny, who last month was named a state winner in the bicycle category of the National 4-H Awards Program, was recently selected as a northeastern United States sectional winner.

According to Mr. Carroll L. Howes, associate 4-H-youth division leader at The Pennsylvania State University, Deborah will receive an expense-paid trip to National 4-H Congress in Chicago, November 27 to December 1, provided by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company. She also will compete for awards at the national level.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Angstadt, she is a senior at the Kutztown Senior School. She has been a 4-H member for eight years.

A member of the Kurtztown 4-H Club, Deborah served as president leader, and member of the Kutz- porter, and as with bicycle proje work as a teen leader.

The sectional contest winner completed projects in several units of bicycle, teen leadership, and home improvement.

She took part in the County 4-H Fair, Regional 4-H Teen Leaders Retreat, and Pennsylvania 4-H Leadership Congress.

A second benefit is therapeutic. Even the least talented novice can go home from a few hours of relaxed socializing and have an attrative craft to display. Then, added to that victory is the fact that the item cost a fraction of the usual ready-made market value because costly. lefovers where avoided.

Recently, a craft session such as this was held by Mrs. Kenneth Rutt, Edgefield Farms, Quarryville R3, in which herb wreathes and twine wreaths were demonstrated. The following were the instructions given to the three women present:

HERB WREATHES

The herb wreath may be used as a door wreath or as a centerpiece with a candle inserted in the center for a candle ring. The wreath is very delicate in appearance with a base of statice. The accent is provided by small clusters of strawflowers surrounded by bay leaves. Additional texture and color is developed by using cinnamon sticks, small pine cones, and tiny dried flowers. The selection of a complimentary bow and accent flowers placed at the bow knot provide the finishing touches.

The list of items needed to make the herb wreath include:

-10 inch straw wreath purchased at craft store

- approximately one-half bunch of nice statice (white, star-shaped dried flower) purchased at craft store or florist

-Yarrow

-Strawflowers

-Small pine cones

- Clover shaped strawflowers

-One and one-half to two yards of one-half inch wide burlap ribbon

-White glue

-Sturdy floral wire (green)

-Wire cutters

-Cinnamon sticks

-Bay leaves (whole)

-Approximate cost - $5.

First step: make the bow from the ribbon.

Be sure to hold the ribbon so that the shiny side is not facing out. Create a bow with three or four loops to a side, leaving one end of ribbon long enough to wrap around loops to form the knot. Before wrapping the long end, loop a six-inch long piece of wire over the knot section of the bow and twist wires together at back of bow. Wrap long ribbon over wire by going between the two ends of wire then up over the top of the knot, down the front and finally end at the back. Twist wire ends around end of ribbon. Pull bows out to pleasing arrangement. Twist wire to hold in place.

The third step to making a braid wreath is attaching the braids to a wire frame with a slip stitch.

Step two: make a hanger. To do this use a six-inch length of wire. Push each end of a loop of wire through the straw wreath. Try to push the wire through the back of the wreath deep enough to hold firmly, one-fourth of an inch deep. Pull wires through leaving a loop above the wreath and twist the two ends securely together.

Step three: apply the base of statice.

To do this, take the bunch of statice and clip off branches leaving short stems on each bunch. Dip stems into glue and place on the straw wreath with the stems lying in the same direction. Fill top and side areas as you go around the wreath. Cover so that straw is not easily visible but not so dense that additional ornaments cannot be placed.

Step four: place the bow on wreath. Use wire ends and glue.

Step five: add color. Snip stems from strawflowers, dip into glue, and cluster the smallest ones over the wreath (perhaps five or six groups). Add small pine cones lying in the same direction and cinnamon sticks also lying in the same direction. Color design will tend to swirl or draw eye around the wreath. Place bay leaves next to and around the clusters of flowers to create effect of real flower leaves around a

WHAT ARE YOU WAITING FOR, MR. DAIRYMAN?

Oh, you say you haven't got the results back yet on those forage samples you sent to the that other lab? You say it's been two weeks, and you wouldn't be surprised if it took two more weeks? But you know that when those results do finally get there, the forage you'll be feeding then could be a lot different from the material you sampled four weeks earlier. And that means those results won't be as valuable to you as they might have been.

But if you had sent those samples via First Class Mail to the New Jersey Feed Laboratory, Inc., you would have had your results at least a week ago! That's right, seven day service is what our eastern states customers get from us. Why, we even have customers in California who say they get speedier service from us than from their homestate labs!

And we do this with no loss in accuracy. Pitted against over 100 other commercial and state labs in a monthly collaborative check sample, we consistently score in the top 25%.

And take a gander at the prices:

Moisture, Protein, Fiber, and TDN or ENE $10.50
Same as above plus Calcium and Phosphorus . . $22.50

(deduct $1.00 for dry hay or ear corn samples)

So what ARE you waiting for, Mr. Dairyman? Send your 3 - 4 oz. sample with a check in the proper amount today to:

FFA holds snowmobile show

LEBANON - The Little Dutchman FFA Chapter of the Anneville-Cleona School District held their annual snowmobile show October 20 to 22 at the Lebanon Valley Mall, Lebanon, Pa.

The show was co-sponsored by the BOAC and safety committees of the local chapter. The members hoped that by having all the county snowmobile dealers display their machines, prospective buyers would be able to compare features of the various machines.

The safety features of the snowmobiles were also stressed. As part of the safety program, the Pa. Snowmobile Drivers Certification course was conducted for youth between the ages of 10 and 16.

One feature of the show this year was the comparison of a 1963 Polaris Sno-Traveler and a 1978 Polaris TX. The 1963 model had no brakes, no headlights, no taillights, and the shields were few and not too securely fastened.

Dealers that participated in the show were Anneville Body Co., Blue Mt. Enterprises, Evergreen Tractor Co., P & P Cycle, and Northside Recreation.

Weeds don't talk, but they do tell

BELTSVILLE, Md. - Weeds all over the world are telling their story to the USDA's Agricultural Research Service (ARS). They are telling where they grow and under what conditions they thrive.

Dr. Thomas C. Davidson, ARS botanist, and Dr. James A. Duke, chief of the ARS Plant Taxonomy Laboratory, here, are using the information as a basis for recommending crops for remote areas of the world.

No, weeds haven't learned to talk. The scientists are learning about them through responses to ARS questionnaires which were sent to people at agricultural experiment stations, farms, botanical gardens and similar places, a total of 1000 locations, on six continents.

"Weeds tell man a lot about a particular environment's potential for agriculture", explains Dr. Davidson. "By knowing as few as 30 weeds for a given area, we get a good idea of soil conditions, annual temperature range, annual precipitation and other factors."

Requests reach the Plant Taxonomy Lab almost daily from other parts of the world, asking scientists to recommend additional crops for a particular area.

To help make accurate suggestions, Dr. Davidson and Dr. Duke used a computer to determine the general ecology of over 2000 weeds native or exotic to the U.S. If a request includes an extensive list of weeds, the scientists project the climate of the area by computerized analysis of the combination of weeds listed. Then, they compare the projected climate with 10 to 50 years of recorded weather data for the area before returning a final recommendation to the sender.

The idea of using weeds for crop recommendations is a direct extension of a computerized crop information system set up originally by Dr. Duke.

Also based on questionnaire responses from correspondents located around the world, the crop system keeps data on the locality, latitude, elevation, pH range, growing season, temperature range, rainfall and other environmental factors for 1000 economically useful plants. The sytem helps scientists and farmers identify those crops which will thrive in salty soil, drought conditions, extremes of temperature, air pollution and other adverse conditions affecting marginal agricultural land.

Weeds that have survived for generations under circumstances that cultivated crops could not tolerate become valuable tools for agricultural planning, according to Dr. Duke. They act as ageless weather stations. Using weeds is a lot less expensive than putting a real weather station in a remote area to monitor conditions and is possibly more accurate than short-term climatic monitoring.

School plans auction

MORGANTOWN - The Conestoga Christian School cordially invites all area residents to the Fourth Annual Auction Sale, and Open House, to be held on Saturday, November 5, 1977, starting at 9:30 a.m. on the school grounds. This is a special year for the school because it marks the 25th year of service to Eastern Lancaster, Berks, and Chester Counties.

During the sale the events will be broadcasted live over WBYO-FM in Boyertown from 2-4 P.M. There will be interviews with students, teachers, and patrons. Singing by different musical groups from the school will also be broadcast according to Dean Landis, principal.

Open house set

WENONAH, N.J. - An open house of the Lively Leaders 4-H Seeing Eye Puppy Club will be held November 1, from 7 to 9 p.m., at the Gloucester County Office Building, Clayton, New Jersey.

The program includes the film "Man and Dog", which tells the story of America's oldest and largest dog guide school. A slide presentation showing what the club and families of the 4-H'ers are doing in the club will also be shown. There will also be displays of different aspects of the club's activities and what is being done at the Seeing Eye School.

Members of the club and their dogs will be there to answer any questions.

Step six: add finishing touches. Add flowers at bow knot for accent and check for symmetry.

TWINE WREATH

The twine wreath became very popular last year. Mrs. Rutt showed the small group how to make a very sturdy creation placed on a frame constructed from two-heavy wire frames. She remarked that most people use a single wire circle, but that she finds it easier to use two wires with each twine braid having its own wire for support.

The twine may be new or used. Mrs. Rutt suggested that used twine should be cut from the bale at the knot in order to have the necessary length.

The seasonal use of the twine wreath is less a factor of consideration than for many other decorations. Calico bows and figurines can replace the Christmas trim in order to remake a Christmas wreath. Mrs. Rutt's twine wreath on display consisted of a calico bow and a cornhusk doll.

Materials needed:

-One 15-inch, two-wire wreath frame purchased from craft store

-Twine

-Needle and yarn

-Scissors

Step one: cut twine in lengths of 92 inches (36), 82 inches (36) 50 inches (9).

Step two: braid like-sized lengths. For the 36 strands of 92 inch long twine and the 36 strands of 82 inch long twine, tie a piece of twine onto the hank of strands about one and one-half feet down the hank. Secure to a chair or stationery object and braid using three sections containing an equal number of strands, until one and one-half feet from the end of the hank and tie with another piece of twine.

Mrs. Kenneth Rutt adjusts a cornhusk doll on a braid wreath which she made last year. She redecorated the wreath after Christmas with the corn husk doll making it appropriate for more than one season.

Braid the 50-inch-long strands without leaving loose strands at the end as was the case with the other two lengths. Knot ends securely.

Step three: sew braids to wire form. To do this use heavy thread. Place longest braid on table and lay wire frame on top so that the longest braid will cover the outside wire. The 82 inch strand braid will cover the inside wire circle and just touch the inside edge of the longest braid. The wreath will not lie flat if the braids overlap. Use a long slip-stitch every two inches around the wire frame. Start the 82 inch braid at the same place as the 96 inch braid and sew around frame making sure to cover the inside wire and still touch the edge of the outside braid. Slip-stitch the two braids together if you wish, down the inside edges.

Step four: attach the smaller braid. To do this

Brucellosis cases down significantly

WASHINGTON, D.C. - "We've finally reversed the trend in brucellosis," Dr. Frank J. Mulhern reports. "For the first time in five years, we've got a significant decrease in the amount of infection in U.S. cattle. The increased emphasis on this disease is paying off."

Dr. Mulhern, administrator of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS), refers to the fact that both the number of cattle herds quarantined because of the disease and the reactor rate of cattle tested under the Market Cattle Identification program (MCI) dropped dramatically during the first half of 1977. During this time, about 14 million cattle were tested for brucellosis.

Brucellosis, also called Bang's disease, is a highly contagious disease of cattle and other livestock. It also affects humans as undulant fever.

APHIS reports that from Aug. 1, 1976, to Aug. 1, 1977, the number of herds quarantined for the disease fell 17 percent - from 9,829, to 8,163. States showing the greatest decreases were: Louisiana, from 1,155 to 624; Texas, from 3,260 to 2,835; Mississisippi, from 1,028 to 708; Georgia, from 374 to 266; Missouri, from 239 to 164; Nebraska, from 73 to 34; and Montana, from 63 to 30.

Perhaps even more significant, the MCI reactor rate decreased from 0.716 percent in 1975 to 0.660 percent in 1976 and to 0.473 percent in the first half of 1977. About 90 percent of all mature female cattle slaughtered annually are tested under MCI for brucellosis.

Dr. Mulhern explained that the MCI rate "is the best indicator of the impact of our program." The rate had risen for three years previously.

In the first half of 1977, 35 states reported drops in their MCI reactor rates. Those with the greatest drops were: Rhode Island, down 100 percent; Massachusetts, down 91 percent; New Mexico, down 86 percent; Minnesota, down 80 percent; Arizona, down 74 percent; Maryland, down 70 percent; Iowa, down 64 percent; Montana, down 54 percent; and Michigan and Colorado, both down 51 percent.

The principle reasons for the recent progress in combatting brucellosis are increased spending and concentration on the disease. Also, those states with the greatest brucellosis problems increased their participation in the program to eradicate the disease.

"Brucellosis infection went up in the early '70s mainly because the states and APHIS were concentrating their efforts on other diseases. We didn't have unlimited resources and personnel," Dr. Mulhern said. "We had outbreaks of Venezualan equine encephalomyelitis and exotic Newcastle disease. We also were heavily involved in a national hog cholera eradication program."

These emergency programs diverted animal disease control personnel away from the brucellosis program. Now that these problems are under control, greater resources and funds are being directed at the brucellosis problem. (USDA is spending $53.9 million next year on the program as compared with about $41.5 million this year and $34.8 million the year before.)

"We can not paint an entirely rosy picture, however," Dr. Mulhern said. Although nationwide a number of herds quarantined for brucellosis decreased during the first half of 1977, some states showed increases. Of the problem states - those in the southeastern and south central United States - quarantined herd numbers went up in Kentucky from 289 to 314, and Florida from 505 to 507. Florida's numbers are expected to increase next year also because area blood testing programs are now under way there.

States that formerly had few or no cases of brucellosis also showed increases. These are: New York from 9 to 33; North Carolina from 2 to 9; North Dakota from 0 to 3; Ohio from 2 to 5; Pennsylvania from 4 to 14; South Carolina from 2 to 9; Washington from 8 to 15; West Virginia from 4 to 7; and Puerto Rico from 105 to 134.

Dr. Mulhern offered several reasons for these increases. In Pennsylvania and New York, importation of infected cattle from Canada has created a problem. "We took some drastic action to restrict these imports," he said. "The infected cattle were coming from 'dealer herds.' We no longer allow the importation of cattle from these 'dealer herds.'"

Other states attribute their increased infection to illegal interstate shipment of known-infected and untested cattle for sale. Dr. Mulhern said cattlemen sometimes take their animals to a neighboring state where negative brucellosis tests are not necessary for sale. At the market, they register a fictitious name and address and sell their infected cattle to an unsuspecting buyer. The disease then spreads. This type of scheme may have led to the increases in the number of quarantined herds in states such as Ohio, West Virginia and the Carolinas, which border problem states.

As a basis for evaluating the extent of problems, however, quarantined herd figures may be misleading. Changes in these numbers could be due to an increased or decreased effort in the search for infection rather than a change in the amount of infection itself.

The MCI rate usually detects changes in brucellosis prevalence faster and is a more accurate measure of actual infection. Some states reported decreases in the number of quarantined herds yet showed increases in MCI rate. They were: Louisiana (down 531 herds, MCI rate up 20 percent); Nevada (down one herd, MCI rate up 12 percent); and Georgia (down 108 herds, MCI rate up one percent).

A total of 15 states, mostly in the south, had MCI rates of greater than 0.2 percent - rates which must be reduced before eradication efforts can be successful. APHIS officals see several reasons for these high rates. Many of the Southern states were slow getting started on eradication. They are as much as 20 years behind a number of Northern states which have practically eradicated brucellosis.

Another reason cited for the high infection rates is the "milk factory." In some areas, huge herds of cattle are kept in highly concentrated lots. The possibility of spreading disease is greatly magnified. Operators are concerned with volume milk production. Cattle are viewed only as machines which change grain and forage to milk. Disease control is often neglected.

For years, critics of the program have said that, with high infection rates and a few dishonest dealers who keep spreading the disease, the government should seek only to control brucellosis. They say eradication is impossible and costly. (They point to the more than one billion dollars the state and federal governments and producers have spent on the program since 1934.)

Dr. Mulhern counters that argument by pointing out that the animal infection rate nationwide has decreased from 11.5 percent in 1934 to less than a half of one percent today. "When we first started the program, success was rapid," he said. "As the infection rate decreased, however, it became more expensive to find the fewer infected animals. They were harder to find. The program moved from a stage where it was of major interest to the cattle industry to a program of minor importance.

"We can't think of the cost of the program in terms of the present losses created by the disease. We have greatly reduced those losses," Dr. Mulhern said. "We must think of what the disease could do if it were left uncontrolled. All the expenses of the program will be counteracted by losses we won't have after the disease is eradicated. It's like putting money in the bank. In the long run, a control program would be more expensive and a disease threat would always be present."

Losses due to brucellosis annually are about $30 million now. Losses come from abortion, decreases in milk yield and the need to buy more replacement cattle. In 1947, before an intensive brucellosis campaign was started, losses from the disease were greater than $100 million. That's about $300 million in 1977 dollars. A recent study concluded that, left unchecked, the disease could create annual losses of up to $850 million annually within ten years.

Losses from brucellosis have already reached zero in nine states and the U.S. Virgin Islands. States with no brucellosis quarantined herds are: Alaska, Connecticut, Delaware, Hawaii, Maine, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Hampshire and Rhode Island.

As for combatting dishonesty, Dr. Mulhern commented, "Even if you have a leaky boat, you can get the water out if you bail fast enough. I think we can wipe out brucellosis despite this problem."

For the battle ahead, Dr. Mulhern feels that APHIS has most of the necessary tools to eradicate the disease. He said there may be a need for changes in regulations, however, as problems arise. Epidemiologists - animal disease experts - are continually studying brucellosis and recommending changes as they are needed.

Changes which may soon be necessary to prevent the spread of infection are: the replacement of the county certification status with a state status and stricter rules governing the interstate movement of cattle. Dr. Mulhern said these changes are necessary because of improvements in transportation that enable dealers to move cattle long distances with ease.

"We've turned the table on this disease," Dr. Mulhern said. "The most important need of the brucellosis program right now is commitment. We must change the attitude of industry and regulatory officials.

"I feel confident that we have the technical know-how to eradicate the disease. But wishing it away won't make it so," he emphasized. "We've got a lot of hard work ahead. With cooperation, we can beat brucellosis."

The American Presidency is firmly rooted in agriculture through the farm ties of over half the men who have held that office. From the first, George Washington, to the 39th, Jimmy Carter, 23 U.S. Presidents were raised on, owned or ran farms.

xxx

In 1976, American dairy cows produced enough milk to form a river that would measure 2,904 miles long, 41 feet wide and three-and-a-half feet deep. It would stretch from Boston to San Francisco. If put in gallon cartons and placed side by side, the 120 billion pounds of milk produced would form a band around the world 85 times at the equator.

xx

The most prolific dairy stud bull in the country, Paclamar Astronaut, has sired over 100,000 offspring. He is estimated to have a female descendant in one of every three dairy herds in the U.S. These cows produce more than 600 million quarts of milk in one year, enough to supply every American with three glasses of milk a day for a full year.

xxx

Careful research, improved methods of selection, breeding and feeding have made the dairy cow the world's most productive source of milk. During the past 150 years milk production per cow has jumped from an estimated 1,500 quarts annually to over 4,800 quarts!

Farmers' financial security queried

CHICAGO - U.S. farmers own 38 per cent of the land in our country today. The future of much of that land depends on effective estate planning by the farmers. But are today's farmers taking the necessary steps to secure the future of their farm lands?

According to a recent survey conducted by International Harvester's Farm Forum Magazine, 82 per cent of the farmers who responded indicated that they have wills for the execution of their property. Despite a high percentage who said they had wills, only 36.9 per cent of the respondents had a comprehensive estate plan for their farm.

"Estate planning is more than making a will," notes J.W. Lonney, assistant professor of agricultural law, Virginia Polytechnic Instutite and State University. "The total estate planning process involves looking into property ownership, the business organization, insurance programs, as well as tax considerations."

When asked about setting up an estate plan, 35.6 per cent said they relied mostly on a will. Other farmers indicated the following for their estate plans:Set up a trust 18.5 pct.
Property and assets held in joint tendancy18.0 pct.
Giving away money and-or property 15.5 pct.
Property, assets held as tenants in common 11.6 pct.
Relying mainly on life insurance payments 10.3 pct.
Have formed a family corporation 9.0 pct.
Formed a partnership 5.2 pct. Other 3.4 pct.
Have no estate plan 14.6 pct.

According to a book published by E.S. Publishers, 11211 Katy Freeway, Houston, Tex., the average family farm unit is worth a million dollars, based on today's present valuations. To probate such an estate could cost as much as 15 per cent to 25 per cent or more of that value. Some ways of distributing farm assets are better than others, and one of the better ways is through an equity trust, claim authors of E.S. Publisher's book on the subject. It is available free to farmers and ranchers.

An equity trust is created by conveying assets in return for units of beneficial interest rather than by direct gift or bequest. This beneficial interest, in turn, may be given to other beneficiaries at a later date.

The equity trust, also known as a common law trust, can take several forms. Some are fairly well known - the "Massachusetts" or business trust, the "Illinois"-type land trusts, and such highly specialized forms as the real estate investment trust.

While each varies widely in use and application, it is the family trust that will hold special interest for the family farmer or rancher, say authors of the book on equity trusts for the family farm or ranch.

Following are some points to consider:

Estate Taxes

The 1976 Federal Tax Reform Act contains some changes that can benefit the family farm or ranch. For example, a more valuable tax credit now replaces the specific exemption. The marital deduction has been increased in effectiveness. Evaulating farm property for tax purposes has been changed to allow the farm to be evaulated as a farm rather than at a higher value for other land uses. The new law also permits a longer installment schedule for payment of estate taxes.

While these changes are helpful, the family farm or ranch is still not out of the woods. Consider, for example, the effect when the surviving spouse also dies at a later date. Using the marital deduction to maximum effect, the first spouse can leave an adjusted gross estate as large as $400,000 in 1981 or after and pay no estate tax. When the surviving spouse later dies, however, his or her heirs will face an estate tax of almost $70,000. This does not include costs of probate or state inheritance tax.

To make things worse, the chance to take advantage of changes in farm property evaluation and the installment payment plan for estate taxes depend, in part, on family members continuing to operate the farm without disruption. If part or all of the farm must be sold in order to meet estate taxes and expenses, the tax itself can be increased and become due immediately.

Furthermore, if the farm is sold at a later date, the heirs may face high capital gains taxes, assuming that inflation will continue. The cost basis for capital gains is no longer the market value of the property at the death of the owner, but the cost of the property to the deceased or its value on January 1, 1977, if he bought it before that date.

What then can you do to insure the continuation of your family farm? One effective alternative is to establish a family equity trust and spread the beneficial interest among family members. This can greatly reduce or even eliminate the estate taxes that would otherwise be due. Here are some other points to consider:

Probate

By placing your farm in a properly established trust, you can completely avoid probate on the trust assets. This not only avoids probate expense, but also some costly interruptions in farm and ranch operations as well. With no frozen bank accounts, safety deposit boxes or encumbered assets, your farm or ranch lives on.

Management

Contrary to folklore, putting your farm or ranch in trust does not necessarily mean giving up management of your farm to

The satisfaction that comes from doing a good job of farming

It's a great feeling to know that you are the master of your farmlands . . . that when you treat your soil right, it will treat you right. Liming is one of the most important factors in keeping your soil in the highest productive range. A good pasture with a pH of 6.5 or higher, for example, will make 300 to 400 lbs. of beef per acre and produce up to $100 gross income per acre. This means with the help of lime, profits from pastures can compare favorably with feed or grain crops.

reasons for being in the registered Holstein business.

"One should always pass on to the next generation a better herd than what he started with," is Seipt's philosophy of the cattle breeding industry. He added that the greatest deterrent to improving herds is not properly upgrading and culling questionable animals.

"A grade dairyman is quicker with the knife," admits the state breed leader.

Believing that strong pedigrees mean greater values, Seipt rated three key reasons for working with purebreds that commercial dairymen lose. Surplus breeding stock can readily be marketed to both domestic and foreign buyers. Also, excess bull calves can more easily be sold. Finally, building pedigrees increases future estate values.

Members of the Adams County 4-H dairy judging team received special recognition for their top placing in the statewide competition. Each of the four youths received a tru-type Holstein model cow, presented by the county Holstein breeders. Team members are Christine Gitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gitt, Littlestown R2; Monica Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Miller, Gettysburg R9; John Clowney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clowney, Gettysburg R1; and Daniel Waybright, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Waybright, Gettysburg R1.

Christine Gitt, left, and Monica Miller, made up half of Adams County's 4-H dairy judging team, which placed top in Pennsylvania. They were awarded true-type Holstein cows by the county Holstein association. Absent from the presentation were team members Daniel Waybright and John Clowney.

Chris Gitt also placed first individual in the state, receiving a trip to the National Dairy Expo at Madison, Wisconsin, early in October. During youth dairy judging there, she finished fifth high in Holsteins, 16th high in all breeds, and the state team captured the 14th placing in the national competition.

Three new directors were elected to seats on the county board. They are John Hess, Gettysburg R5; Scott Whiteford, New Oxford R1; and Adam Lobaugh, Aspers R1. Others on the nine-member board are Paul Waybright, Gettysburg R9; Eldon Baum, Abbottstown R1; Alan Zepp, New Oxford R2; Marvin Brown, Littlestown R3; Larry Mummert, East Berlin R2; and Leroy Basehoar, Littlestown R2.

Presenting his state directors report, Robert Gitt noted that the association has handled over a million dollars of export cattle this past year. The debt on the Middletown area farm, owned by the state group, has been paid off, and building plans are now underway to construct an 80 by 120-foot pole barn with offices on the property.

Inner Peace, a five-member gospel group, entertained the farm families attending the dinner. Other speakers included Adams County Extension agent Thomas Piper, and Robert Morris, promotion director for the Holstein association.

Record breaking hog at Nationals bred locally

John Strawbridge, Stewertstown, stands with his champion-producing boar, Iron Horse 73-3. Iron Horse sired the recent champion market hog of the Eastern National show which commanded $100 per pound or a total of $24,500.

By JOANNE SPAHR

STEWARTSTOWN -- When that record-breaking $100 per pound was paid for the grand champion market hog at the Eastern National Livestock Show in the beginning of October, the news spread like wildfire throughout the livestock marketing world. But, for one farmer near York County, the news had a much bigger impact than for many others.

That farmer was John Strawbridge, a swine raiser from Stewartstown who owns the boar that bred the record-breaking $24,500 hog.

Strawbridge, known and recognized for his top quality Hampshires and Yorkshires, sold a pair of purebred Hampshire bred gilts to John Muncaster from Hamilton, Va., last March. After the gilts farrowed in April, Muncaster sold 10 out of the two litters to Tommy Payne, the Virginia 4-H'er who catapulted into the spotlight when these animals, bred by Strawbridge, topped the sow at Easern Nationals, taking the grand champion over all breeds as well as the champion pair and reserve champion pair. Previous to Eastern Nationals, another pig out of one of the two bred sows purchased by Muncaster, and then sold to Payne, was named the grand champion market barrow of all breeds at the Virginia State Fair. At $5.05 per that animal was one of the highest priced hogs ever sold in Virginia.

Strawbridge's boar that bred all these winners was Iron Horse 73-3, whose sire was the champion of the National Barrow Show held in Austin, Minn., in 1974. That boar brought $7500.

According to Strawbridge, Iron Horse 73-3 is one of the most consistent sires he has ever used, producing a long list of champions which includes the champion and reserve champion carcass over all breeds at the Maryland State Fair and the champion and reserve champion boar and gilt at that fair, as well. At the York Interstate Fair, Iron Horse's offspring were named the champion barrow and the champion carcass as well as the champion and reserve champion boar and gilt. At Hagerstown, Carlisle, and Montgomery County Fairs, animals sired by Iron Horse were named the champion and the reserve champion boar and gilt, as well.

Also, thus far, barrows out of Iron Horse have won every carcass show in which they have been entered. At the Maryland State Fair carcass contest, in competition against 35 other animals, barrows sired by this boar were named champion, reserve champion, and third place carcasses. The champion had a 6.41 inch loin eye, was 33.3 inches in length, and had 1.10 inches of back fat.

According to Strawbridge, the main ingredient of raising this type of top quality animal is an excellent boar.

he says. "They have to be made right, they have to look right, and they also have to breed right."

Asked how he felt when an animal out of his stock commanded $100 per pound, Strawbridge replied, "I thought it was pretty good, that's all. It'll be a good start for that boy."

The dairy industry is the second largest single segment of American agriculture. It produces more than $10 billion of farm income annually and the packaging, processing and distribution of dairy products provides employment throughout the country. The retail value of dairy products sold in the United States was more than $23 billion in 1976.

a bank or trust company. The trustees can be family members. Management of the farm can remain in your family as long as you like. The grantor or creator of the trust can even by one of the trustees himself, so long as he meets the relevant regulations governing his powers.

Gift Taxes

Most methods of removing property from one's estate can mean gift taxes nearly as large as the estate taxes that would otherwise occur. Creating a properly established trust, however, can result in substantially lower gift taxes or even eliminating them, except for very large estates. It would be possible, for example, to avoid gift taxes on an estate as large as $1,000,000 or more, depending upon individual circumstances.

Income Taxes

A properly established trust allows you to reduce income taxes by "sprinkling" income to beneficiaries where it would be taxed at lower rates and with the possibility of greater deductions. For example, the farm house may be comletely deducted where the trustees or other employees of the trust live in it.

Corporations

Family trusts can be excellent alternatives to incorporation. Many states restrict corporate farms. Such restrictions do not apply to trusts. In addition, a trust can be more flexible and enjoy significant income and estate tax advantages. In other situations, a trust can often be used in a combination with a corporation for maximum advantages.

Capital Gains

The trust is a taxable entity and will be subject to capital gains treatment on the same cost basis that applies to the original owner. But, as with oridinary income, capital gain income can be "sprinkled" among beneficiaries to lower the overall tax.

Credit

By careful and close cooperation with your lender, a trust may also increase your credit rating. One of the risks a lender ordinarily assumes is that the possible death of a farm owner may seriously interrupt and impair the financial status of the farm or ranch. If your lender can be shown that your death would not create such a risk, your credit rating will rise accordingly.

Multiple Trusts and Liability

By using trusts for different facets of the farm or ranch, you can isolate liability and provide still further opportunities for income "sprinkling". You might, for example, put land in one trust, expensive equipment in another, and the actual management in still another.

Inflation

Inflation in land values and operating costs have often combined to make the farmer and rancher "asset rich" and "cash poor". The family trust won't get rid of inflation, but it can soften some of its effects. Paying estate taxes, capital gains taxes, probate and other costs on inflated assets with limited funds is no one's favorite activity. You can reduce these taxes and costs with a family trust, and spend those limited funds where they are needed, for the operation of your farm and for your family's welfare.

4-H award won by Shaub

UNIVERSITY PARK - Megan Shaub, 17, 350 West Railroad Avenue, Shrewsbury, who last month was named a state winner in the gardening category of the National 4-H Awards Program recently was selected as a northeastern United States sectional winner.

Megan will recieve an expense-paid trip to nationa 4-H Congress in Chicago, November 27 to December 1, provided by the Chevron Chemical Company. She also will compete for awards at the national level.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Shaub, Megan is a senior at the Susquehannock High School. She has been a 4-H member for nine years.

A member of the York County 4-H Horticulture Club and Shrewsbury 4-H Community Club, she served as vice president, game leader, and teen leader.

The sectional gardening contest winner completed projects in three units of vegetable gardening, flowers, canning and freezing, jams and jellies, teen leadership, and strawberries.

Locally, she took part in day camp, potato judging training, demonstration day, roundup, dress revue, and exchange program.

Megan also participated in the Regional 4-H Camp, Regional 4-H Teen Leaders Conference, Regional 4-H Demonstration Day, State 4-H Capital Days, State 4-H Achievement Days, Pennsylvania 4-H Leadership Congress, Farm Show, National Junior Horticultural Association Convention, and 1976 Commodity Marketing Symposium in Chicago.

Megan was named as York County's Outstanding 4-H Girl and won special honors in achievement, leadership, horticulture and clothing.

Dairying is one of the most demanding jobs in farming. The cows have to be milked morning and night 365 days a year. There is no shutting off the cows for a couple days of vacation. Labor is hard to get for that job, and expensive to keep; so dairying remains largely a family enterprise.

T & T Supply gets Case tractors

DANVILLE - T & T Supply, Inc. Danville R5, has been named as a dealer for Case Company products. Included in the products to be handled are the full line of Case tractors, tillage tools and utility equipment.

There are eleven 2-wheel drive and three 4-wheel drive tractors in the Case power lineup. The 2-wheel drive units range in PTO horsepower from 43 for the model 885 to 180 for the Case Agri King 1570. Rated engine horsepowers of the big 4-wheel drive Case Traction Kings are 213 for the model 2470, 256 for the model 2670 and 300 for the model 2870. The product line includes dozers, crawler loaders and the industries leading selling backhoe.

Heading T & T Supply, Inc. as president is Tom Zampano of Danville. Other administrative personnel include Ron Mansell, Elysburg, sales manager, and Dave Becker, service manager.

Zampano said full service and warranty will be provided for JI Case products handled by his firm. He noted that his company's facilities also include complete hydraulic service and bucket rebuilding. Modern testing equipment and tools meet the exacting standard's set for Case dealerships, he said.

Owners Tom Zampano and Ron Mansell indicated they are pleased that their firm has been selected to represent Case in this area. They are particularly pleased with the number of Case owners who have stopped in already to introduce themselves. Headquartered in Racine, Wis., Case Company is one of the world's major suppliers of farm, construction and utility equipment.

Two Columbia Boy Scouts win World Conservation Award

COLUMBIA - Eric Hershey and Kevin Hartman, Scouts in Troop 66 of Columbia, sponsored by the Men's Association of Saloame United Thodist Church have earned the new World Conservation Award, announces Tom Lehmier, scout executive of the Lancaster-Lebanon Council.

The award is made by the World Wildlife Fund of Washington, D.C. through the Boy Souts of America and recognizes achievement in environmental improvement, natural resource conservation, and an understanding of world conservation problems.

The purpose of the award is to point out to young people that countries of the world are closely interrelated through natural resources and that we in this country are interdependent with our world environment.

To win this award, Eric and Kevin earned Conservation and Environmental skill awards, merit badges in Environmental Science, Soil & Water Conservation, Fish & Wildlife Management, and Citizenship in the World.

Christmas craft parties

Herb wreathes are very delicate in appearance. They are made with a base of statice and can be used as a door wreath or as a centerpiece with a candle inserted in the center for a candle ring.

place the long loose strands of the two braids now one the wire frame so that they form fairly flat layers at the end of the braiding. Wrap the nine strand braid over and over the unbraided section and tuck the ends of the braid inside itself to hold it securely or stitch the ends in against the back of the wreath.

Step five: finishing touches. Trim the tails of the wreath to the same lengths, attach bow and figures permanently or temporarily, depending upon intended use. Attach desire hanger-length of string or wirehook - to back of wreath.

In the boot race, everyone rushed around the ring, looking for boots, and putting them on as fast as possible.

Boots and Saddle riders compete in fun show

By KENDACE BORRY

LITITZ - Take one sunny Saturday afternoon, a group of 4-H'ers and their horses, add some parents, friends, and guests, mix them all together at a riding ring and you get a fun horse show.

That's what happened October 22 to the Boots and Saddles 4-H Horse and Pony Club. The fun show, held at the farm of leaders, Daniel and Rose Fellenbaum, held a variety of classes to test the wits and imagination of any rider, along with some standard contests to challenge those who wanted to try their luck.

One of the more unusual classes was a "polebending class with a tennis racket and ball." In a normal pole bending class, riders have to weave their horse back and forth between poles, with the fastest time winning the event. But in the Boots and Saddle class, besides weaving the horse in and out through the poles, the riders had to carry a tennis racket and balance a tennis ball. If the tennis ball fell off the racket, the rider dismounted and picked it up. Fastest time still won the event.

Another fun class was the wheel barrel race, involving two people, and one horse. One person pushed a wheelbarrow down the ring, while the rider ran his horse down the ring and around a barrel. Then he dismounted, and one of the two people climbed into the wheel barrel while the other pushed him back across the ring, still leading the horse.

About 25 riders participated in the fun show throughout the afternoon with family members getting involved in the classes too.

The club's next activity will be the 4-H State Horse Show on November 10 and 11 in which four members will compete.

Complete results of the show follow:

The Advantages of Speedy Corn Cribs

1. Easy to Erect
Speedy's Corn Crib goes up fast and easy because of roof rafters and Bar-Lok side panels. The steeply pitched roof pushes the corn to the edges—NO WASTED SPACE!

Step 1 — Bar-Lok Construction saves you time — gives you a strong, sturdy crib. Crib wire panels are interlaced to form an eye A 13'x3/8" rod is then inserted through the eye and pushed down to the foundation. Easy, simple, fast construction

Step 2 — Rafters are bolted to assembled rafter ring Now you're ready to put the roof panels on. Rafters assure you of proper roof panel placement the first time. No wooden framework to build.

2. Wide Selection
There is a Speedy Crib for every farm need, priced right for every budget.
• Choice of 900, 1200 or 1700 Bushel Sizes.
• 5 or 2 Gauge Wire Mesh Side Panels.

3. Durable
The Speedy 5 Gauge Crib won't bulge or sag—stands straight and tall year after year. For extra strength and durability get the Speedy 2 Gauge Crib—outlasts other cribs—even with full capacity loads. Galvanized wire, not aluminum paint.

4. Save Money and Energy
Corn stored in a Speedy Crib is dried by Mother Nature without the use of costly energy. This saves money and also helps conserve our scarce energy resources.

Some forages may poison livestock

COLLEGE PARK, Md. - Taking liberties with the mythical Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse, livestock farmers can personify the dread quartet of riders as tetany, aflatoxins, nitrates- and prussic acid poisoning.

In terms of potential toxicity and even lethal effects, they probably have no equal among non-contagious livestock maladies, notes Dr. William E. Kunkle, assistant professor of animal science and Extension beef cattle specialist at the University of Maryland, here.

The two non-contagious livestock maladies which are most likely to cause problems this Fall and Winter are nitrates and prussic acid poisoning, Dr. Kunkle commented in a recent interview.

He grants that nitrate poisoning is largely a late-Summer phenomenon - and more cases usually appear in drought years like 1977 - but it could still cause problems in some silage fed to livestock through the Fall and Winter.

Prussic acid poisoning produces symptoms in cattle very similar to nitrate poisoning. But it has a different cause. And it is the one non-contagious livestock malady most likely to be encountered at this time of year, the Maryland Extension specialist said.

During Summer months, prussic acid poisoning can occur in cattle ingesting wilted leaves from certain perennial plants and shurbs. In the late Fall the poisoning is most likely to occur when cattle graze on new growths of certain annual plants which have been damaged by frost - particularly sundangrass and sorghums and their hybrids.

Even green chop feed made from new growth of such plants can be dangerous to animals. But the prussic acid poisons are lost if the plants are cut and dried for haymaking, or chopped and stored in a silo.

Forages with high nitrate content also lose some - but not all - of their toxicity when stored as silage. Since 40 to 60 per cent of the nitrate poisons could still remain in silage, farmers who suspect that they might have ensiled high-nitrate forages should have a sample of their silage chemically analyzed for nitrate content prior to feeding.

Forages with less than 0.15 per cent nitrate nitrogen are safe to feed. Those with more than 0.45 per cent are extremely toxic, and those containing more than 0.9 per cent are probably lethal.

If the analysis falls between the first two ranges, the forages can be fed to livestock on a restricted basis. They should be diluted with other feeds - particularly high-energy feeds - Dr. Kunkle explained.

For information on submitting silage or other forage samples for testing, check with your local county Extension agricultural agent. Such testing is done at Penn State University through a cooperative agreement.

Nitrogen gases escaping from newly filled silos are toxic to humans, Dr. Kinkle warned. So provision should be made in upright silos to allow these gases to escape during a two or three-week period following ensiling.

Prussic acid poisons, on the other hand, do not present this kind of danger to human health.

In planning their forage crops for another year, Maryland farmers should take note that the agronomy department at the University of Maryland does not currently recommend planting either sorghums or sudangrasses or their hybrid crosses. Instead, it recommends corn silage and pearl millet as annual forage crops for most cattle.

Pearl millet has growth characteristics similar to sudangrass, reports Dr. Neri A. Clark, professor of agronomy and Extension forage crops specialist at the College Park campus. And it does not cause problems with prussic acid poisoning. But it should not be fed to dairy cows during their lactation periods.

Major reason for the Maryland recommendation against planting sorghums and sudangrasses is the fact that they hybridize so easily with johnsongrass, a troublesome perennial weed. These resulting hybrids produce a perennial sorghum or sudangrass, which closely resembles johnsongrass.

The seeds from these hybrids are practically impossible to distinguish from those of the annual sorghums and sudangrasses.

In addition, the seed trade obtains most of its sorghum and sudangrass seeds nowadays from Texas, where the problem of unwated hybrid crosses with johnsongrass is especially troublesome, Dr. Clark commented.

Grange meets

VIRGINVILLE - The Virginville Grange recently held their Halloween party. Pumpkin winners at the event were: Most original, Lillian Mengel; ugliest, Joan Dietrich, funniest, Debbie Sheetz, prettiest, Diane Gassert. In the costume contest, the winners included: most original, Tracy Merkel; prettiest, Dorothy Klopp; ugliest, Brian Mengel; funniest, Charles Seidel and Lisa Dietrich.

James Schlegel, accompanied by Mrs. Esther Stitzel won first place in the state vocal talent contest. He also won the best of show award at Danville and will represent Pennsylvania at the National Grange convention held November 18 in Greensboro, North Carolina.

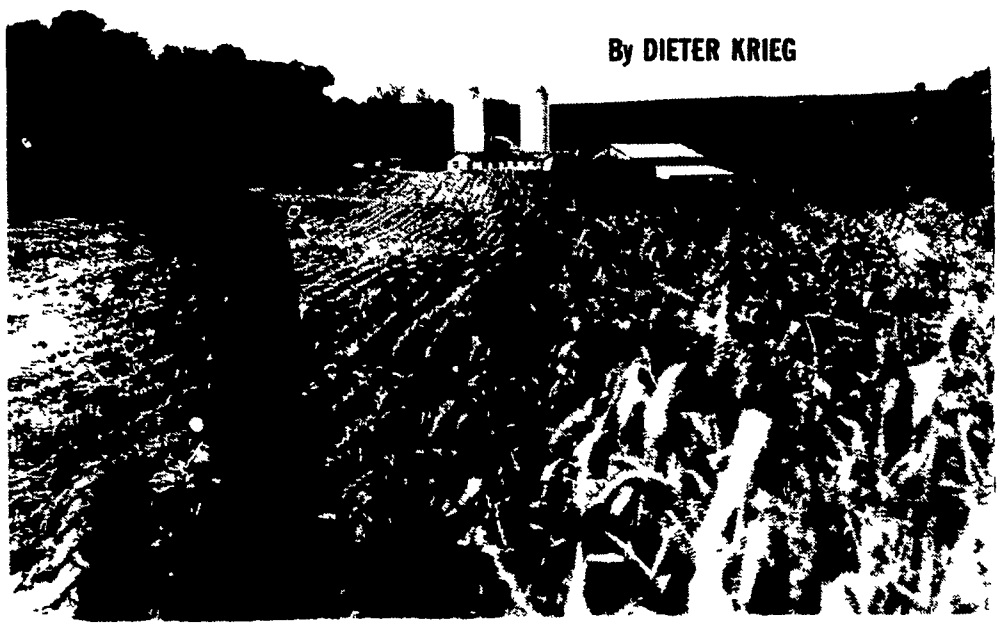
LIFE on the farm

By DIETER KRIEG



We had a couple of fellows live in our neighborhood who were in the Halloween spirit the year around. Only with them the trick portion was all that mattered in trick or treating.

Perhaps it was the fact that we had some old, abandoned buildings, a few black cats, and even bats, that got the boys into their frequent mood for pranks. More likely, however, it was their inborne desire for mischief.

Roaming the countryside by dark, they'd pitch ears of corn at cars, topple mailboxes and help themselves to gasoline for a car they weren't licensed to drive. Halloween or not, they were up to their tricks on a routine basis. It was common enough that we often pinned blame on those teen-aged rascals even though we had no proof who did the deed. From time to time, we were left with a broken window, a disassembled piece of equipment, flat tire, or missing part.

Every neighbor, including ourselves, was convinced the boys were incorrigible, and not much time would ever elapse before one of them would ascertain that conviction. One farmer took one or two of the boys to court one year after having caught them stealing gas at his farm. It did no good, however, since the jury pretty near insisted on seeing the culprit with gas can in hand. Whenever state police cruisers drove by, it usually meant they were looking for the local villains. That didn't do much good either.

We usually got along amiably enough, I must say. My brother and I usually took care of that in one way or another For instance, they never tossed corn at my car when I drove by, realizing that I'd be ornery enough to chase them until I had them collared

Although we never quite eliminated the frustrating moments when we found something broken or missing, we got a lot of heifer pens cleaned out for nothing. And it was all done by hand, too. They knew we'd come after them if we got riled enough, and dealing that way required no jury or police officer. To a degree, it built respect.

One incident was maddening at first but ended with me having the last laugh despite a little extra work. It was on a Halloween night and a prank was naturally suspected. So I waited for them in the shadows outside the barn and watched them go about their mischief. When they were just about done hiding milking equipment, letting a couple of cows loose and spreading manure in the alley, I walked in and filled them with a scary charge by turning the lights on.

They ran like mice.

With heifers standing on packed manure 1½ feet deep, it wasn't long before I had a different kind of a party organized for them.

York Countians sweep judging contest

TIMONIUM, Md. - York County teams swept all competition in the Junior Stockman's judging contest held at the Eastern National Livestock Exposition in Timonium, Md., recently. Out of the 76 teams representing Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio, and Indiana, the top three teams placings as well as the high individual contestant went to York Countains.

The top team was comprised of Tim Beck, Seven Valleys R2; Brenda Werner, Hanover R2; and David Wise, Spring Grove R2. Beck was the high individual with a score of 563. Miss Werner placed 11th with a score of 515. All in all, the team scored 1543 points.

Harris Wright, Abbottstown R1; Chris Sunday, York R1; and Brenda Walters, Airville R1, made up the second place team with a total score of 1527 points.

From that second placed team, Miss Walters took fifth place overall, individually with a score of 528 points.

Pulling into the third ranked berth was a York County team made up of Laurie Dobroksy, Glen Rock R2; Linda Ebaugh, Deltz R2; and Lisa Dobroksy, Glen Rock R2. This third placed team had a score of 1520 points.

The top 10 individuals in the contest were interviewed by a five man committee. They also had to show a beef animal, a sheep, and a pig. The high individual in the overall contest was Tim Beck, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Beck. He received a $1000 scholarship from the Eastern National Livestock Exposition.

Over the last 20 years, the output per hour on the farm has increased more than three times as fast as output in non-farm activities. Whereas one farm worker produced enough to feed himself and 19 others 20 years ago, he can now feed 56 people besides himself.

Autumn is the time for apples to become cider

By KENDACE BORRY

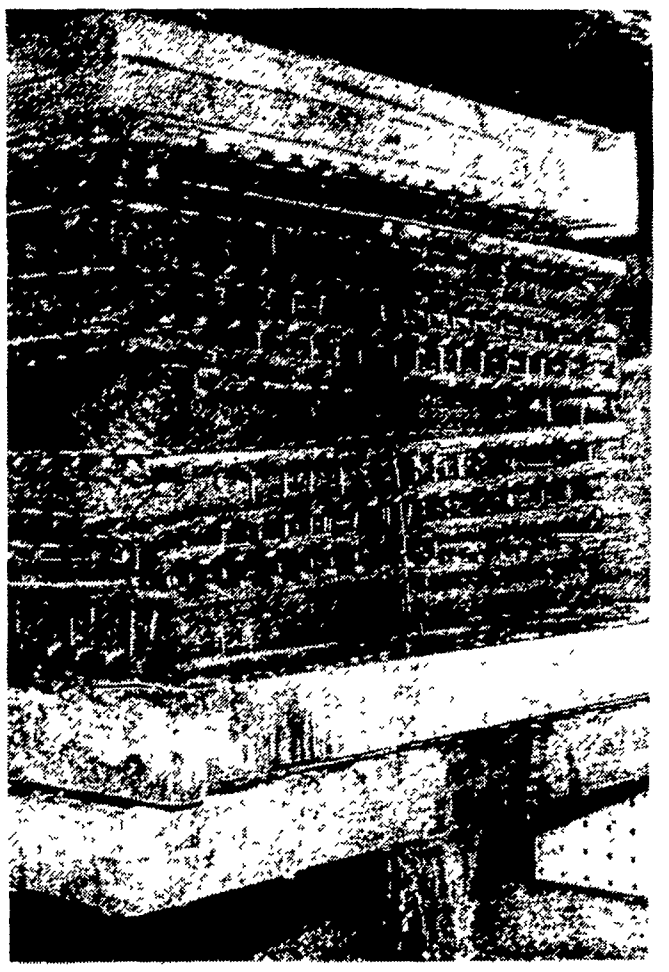
MOUNT JOY - Autumn is the time for cider making, and at the start of the month of October, Wolgemuth's Fruit Market, Mount Joy, begins preparing the cider press for use. Shortly thereafter, the apples find their way to the back room where the press is located, and cider making time is again begun.

The huge hydraulic press, according the Lloyd Wolgemuth, is the type that has been used for the past forty to fifty years, with few changes made. He has customized his own cider press, however to fit his needs and streamline his operation of cider making. Wolgemuth believes he has been making cider for 30 years.

The apples to be used are stored in large 18 bushel bins until they are needed. Each bin makes about one batch of cider. The apples used are a mixture of Stayman, Red and Yellow Delicious varieties. All the apples made into cider are either locally grown or come from Adams County, Pa.

The bin is dumped into a chute which carries the apples up to the top of the press. There the apples are mashed, as they enter the first section of the press.

The apples come out the mashing machine as a soft, light colored pulp, and they are immediately placed in wooden frames, and wrapped in heavy cloth. Layer after layer of the soft pulp is made, with slotted wood placed between each wrapped layer. About ten layers are made in all.



As the cider press puts more pressure on the mashed apples, the cider runs out and into the tank located underneath.

Lloyd Wolgemuth, Mount Joy, and his daughter Ellen, layer the mashed apples preparing them to be pressed for cider.

Then the layers of apple pulp are moved over under the large pressing part of the machine. The press is activated, and the cider juice begins to run out into the tank located under the machine..The press continues to squeeze the apple pulp until all the juice has run out.

The ground apple remains, or pumice, as they are called, are then removed from the press and thrown in another large bin to be fed to cattle or hogs later. The cider is pumped into a large bulk tank which holds 240 gallons. This cider is later put into containers to be sold.

Cider is made at the Wolgemuth Fruit Market five days a week during the peak of the season. On some days, the cider-making operation which takes about 20 to 30 minutes, is done 12 to 14 times to keep a supply of cider ready for the public's demand. The cider season reaches its peak around Halloween when the demand for the product is at its highest and then starts to decline until the end of December when the cider press use is discontinued.

Each batch of cider-making gives about 70 gallons of juice, figuring that the apples give about four gallons to the bushel. During the peak of the season, up to 500 gallons of cider can be made in a week.

The cider press is the only one located in Lancaster County and besides supplying the cider which is sold at the fruit stand, the Wolgemuths also supply the cider for ten stores and a chain of markets in Lancaster County. Wolgemuth figures that the press is worth between four and five thousand dollars.

The cider is completely natural apple juice with no additives. According to Ellen Wolgemuth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Wolgemuth, who has been mading cider since she was 12, this is a good year for apple cider. There is a good supply of apples, and a demand for a quality apple cider product.

Chicken can be ready to serve in an incredibly short time when cooked in microwave oven. The National Broiler Council says a broiler-fryer needs to be cooked only about seven minutes per pound. Place the meatier parts toward the outside of baking dish and bony parts in the center. Cover with wax paper, turning chicken once during cooking.

Farm labor problems

effort; (3) a greatly stepped-up program of political education and action within Farm Bureau at all levels of the organization; (4) that Farm Bureau take the lead in forming a national coalition of like-minded groups who will join together in a well-thought-out campaign designed to bring the economic and political power of labor unions back into balance.

But the Committee warns that such an effort cannot succeed based on anti-unionism or vague generalities. "It must be based on specific issues and on a definite program of goals and actions." Additionally, the report recommends that Farm Bureau and like-minded groups make greater use of the courts in attacking the constitutionality of existing laws that grant labor too much power; or in actions by unions that exceed their legal rights. In this connection, the Committee endorses the establishment of a Farm Bureau legal defense fund.

A Bill of Indictment

"While organized labor continues to proclaim its belief in the competitive enterprise system," says the report, "its policies and actions almost consistently come down on the side of those who would place less reliance on the market system and more reliance on the benevolence of the central government." The Committee then proceeds to detail the indictment, listing the "public-be-damned" attitude, illegal strikes, featherbedding, violence, racketeering, a protectionist attitude toward world trade and the unholy alliance of the consumer movement with organized labor.

"Actually," says the report, "the political power of the unions is much greater than it has any right to be, since union membership as a percentage of the work force has been declining for several years, representing less than 20 per cent of the jobs in private employment."

Every Farmer Has a Labor Problem

The Committee stresses the point that every farmer and rancher has a labor problem, whether he knows it or not, and whether he employs anyone or not; and goes on to itemize the reasons: The cost of labor on farms has increased nearly 300 per cent since 1969. Labor costs represent 51 per cent of the spread between the prices paid to farmers for food commodities and the prices paid by consumers. Organized labor's power to close down entire industries means closing off export markets when ports are closed down and an inability to move agricultural commodities when vital transportation services are shut down. Labor's bargaining power in key industries has a direct influence on the prices farmers must pay for machinery, chemicals, fertilizers and other production input items. Labor's consistent support for increased government power and regulation is constantly felt by all farmers. Labor's encroachment into public employment at all levels directly affects farmers as taxpayers. Labor's demand for protection against foreign imports causes farmers to pay more for some input items; and labor's control over much of the food processing industry results in stikes at harvest time, with growers unable to market a year's crop.

Union Prevention on Farms

On farm labor issues and problems, the Committee recommends several ways in which farmers can get off the defensive and get into a positive program of 'fire prevention." They include a long-range program to better inform the public about agricultural employment, the special problems involved, the tremendous progress that has been made in recent years, and the close working relationship between most farmers and their employees.

"While we uphold the basic right of farm workers, like any other workers, to form or join labor unions...we oppose any law or actions that force anyone to join a union or any other organization."

Rather than an anti-union stance, the Committee recommends a policy of union prevention. The goal would be to create the kind of employer-employee relationship in which employees feel no need for a union. The Committee does not feel that the spread of unions on farms is inevitable-if farmer-employers begin now to develop a positive plan.

Expanded Role of Farm Bureau

If farmers are to switch from "fire-fighting" to "fire prevention" in employee relations on farms, there will need to be a greater role for Farm Bureau at both the state and national levels in the field of farm labor. The Committee recommends the creation of a national farm labor newsletter; the appointment of farm employer committees or labor committees at the state level; the development of special service programs for farmer-employer members; the development and operation of a stepped-up public relations program to tell our story to the public; an expanded legal service program to help growers with legal problems arising out of employment situations; the development of educational programs for both employers and employees to help create a better climate of employment; and a plan to assist growers who are hit with union-organizing activities.

The Committee also calls upon Farm Bureau to provide leadership in the development of a year-round employment program for migrant or seasonal workers, in which these professional farm workers would be guaranteed employment throughout the year, paid attractive wages and be provided with the kind of working conditions and employee benefits that would attract and held the best workers to the program and provide growers with dependable crews of seasonal workers.

Wait-and-See Attitude on Collective Bargaining Legislation

The Committee did not detect any interest or movement in the Congress at the present time in the direction of either removing the agricultural exemption from the National Labor Relations Act, or creating a separate act. It recommends that each state Farm Bureau make an assessment of the farm labor situation within the state and determine whether state or national legislation in this area is in the best interest of growers and workers.

While the limited supply of copies of the report last, they will be furnished to Farm Bureau members through state Farm Bureau offices.

Belgian cooking menu added kilos

Editor's Note: The following is a newsletter prepared by Nancy Henkel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Henkel, Winterhill Road, Strasburg, who is a delegate from Lancaster County to Belgium in the International 4-H Youth Exchange. The International 4-H Yourh Exchange is conducted by the National 4-H Council on behalf of the Cooperative Extension Service. Friends of 4-H Council, 4-H clubs, service clubs, Farm Women groups and agri-business organizations assist in financing this exchange. This is the fourth in a series which Nancy will write from Belgium, her host country.

Belgians are gourmet cooks and my few extra kilos can prove it! The number one food on the list is the "Belgian Frits." (French fries is a misnomer and the Belgians get upset if they hear them called French fries!). "Fritures" can be found on every street corner and in between too. I have found that frits eaten with mayonaise is a real treat.

Just as common are the sidewalk cafes, which you'll find filled to the brim at the traditicnal four o'clock coffee break. There is a lot of atmosphere at these places as you hear everyone conversing and see them quenching their thirst with a tall glass of beef or a hot cup of coffee, often accompanied by a delicious pastry.

In Belgium, the day begins with a breakfast of bread and homemade jam and a cup of coffee. (Do I miss cereal! When a fellow IFYE found peanut butter it was like discovering gold.) The noon meal of the day. In many homes the children come home from school to dinner and then return for the afternoon session. Homemade soup is always a first course, followed by fresh salad, the inevitable potatoes - served either boiled, pureed, or frits - fresh vegetables and the meat. A lot of pork, veal, beef and poultry is eaten here. From time to time I have also eaten rabbit and fish. I have experienced eating "moule," mussels, and ray fins for the first time

Nancy Henkel

- both were delicious. Frequently, wine or beer is the beverage which complements the meal.

After the table is cleared and dishes washed, dessert is served. It consists of either fruit, pastry, or ice cream. There is always a cup of coffee to go with it.

As I mentioned earlier in this article, there is a four o'clock break. At this time we eat buttered bread with jam, cheese, or meat. The evening meal at 7:30 or 8:00 p.m. is the same with an addition of either eggs or cottage cheese. At my third host family I was able to eat as much "fromage blanc" (cottage cheese) as I wanted since it was made at the farm for the market.

The last meal time is at 10:30 p.m. or 11:00 p.m., if you are able to keep your eyes open that late. Once again coffee is made and served with a variety of little pastries. I must note here that many times during the cool weather the famous Belgian waffles (Gaufre or Gallettes) are made.

Now you can see why it isn't hard to put on a few extra kilos, especially when you are a guest, and the cooks want you to try their specialties. I have also learned to drink a lot of coffee - it costs about $5.00 a pound.

I will be returning home to Lancaster County on October 28 with many wonderful memories of the people and experiences here in Belgium. I can never thank all my sponsors enough for their contributions to the IFYE fund. I only hope that I am able to portray and share some of the feelings and experiences I've had through the many slides I've taken. Thank you.

Although milk is processed it's not an engineered or fabricated food. It naturally has two major components: fat, including fat soluble vitamins, and solids-not-fat, which includes proteins, carbohydrate, water-soluble vitamins and minerals. These nutrients in milk make it a food not duplicated by modern science.

Dairying in the U.S. is older than the nation itself. First dairy cows came to Jamestown in 1611, helping to end the terrifying starvation. As pioneers moved westward, nearly every covered wagon had its cow following alongside, the family's mobile "food factory."

Grange talent winners named

DANVILLE - A piano playing trio consisting of a grandmother, daughter, and grandaughter, won first place in the family instrumental competition in the Pennsylvania State Grange's talent contest finals recently.

Mrs. Fern Way, her daughter, Mrs. Helen Van Ord, and her daughter, Ruth Van Ord, in addition to their first place ribbon, also earned the right to represent Pennsylvania in talent competition at the National Grange convention in Greensboro, N.C. November 14 to 22.

The three reside at Russel R2, Warren County, Pa.

In the family vocal competition, first place went to a Berks County group composed of Mrs. Elwood Ohlinger, Connie and Kathleen Ohlinger, Mr. & Mrs. Curtis Lash, Jr., and Curtis Lash III, Mohrsville. They, too, will be eligible to compete at the National Grange convention.

Second place in the family instrumental class went to Donald, Thomas, Linda and Beverly Stahlman, Home, Indiana County.

Other awards in family vocal competition were: second, the Peterman sisters, Patricia Bailey, Elsie Smith and Gertrude Panko, of Conneautville, Crawford County; third, Andreas, Bobby, Christine and Gretchen Cameron, Millerstown R2, Parry County; fourth, John, Mary Ann, Donald, Thomas, Linda and Beverly Stahlman, Home, Indiana County.

First place in the Pomona chorus competition went to a group of Bradford-Sullivan County singers directed by Mrs. Peggy Bauer, East Smithfield. Berks County was second, Washington third, and Somerset fourth.

Imported horses watched for disease

ANNAPOLIS, Md. - Veterinarians of the Maryland Department of Agriculture are taking part in a nationwide effort to trace recently imported horses which could be harboring a new type venereal disease of horses.

The search has been set in motion because USDA restricted importation of equine breeding stock from the British Isles, France, Ireland and Australia. Young horses and geldings are not included in the ban.

Known as "Contagious Equine Metritis" the disease has spread havoc among European thoroughbred breeding establishments since its discovery in 1975. In one area of England alone, in 1977, loses are estimated to be $30 million.

CEM is highly contagious. It causes mares not to conceive or to abort, or become chronic carriers of the infection even though delivering a normal foal.

MDA's Division of Animal Industries, Animal Health Section, under the direction of Dr. Hugh E. Binks, is working in close cooperation with the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service of USDA. State veterinarians are now observing 17 horses in Maryland which were imported from the affected areas prior to the importation ban.

A new disease, CEM is very difficult to diagnose quickly in laboratory tests. Tests must be done under modified laboratory techniques since routine culture methods previously used on mares and stallions will not detect the new diesease.

The most common sign of infection is a thick vaginal discharge 2-5 days following breeding, or an early abortion.

Veterinarians say the disease does not endanger the life of the animal. However, the important aspect of the disease is the fact that it is highly contagious during breeding. People are not infected but persons handling horses during breeding and the equipment used may spread the disease.

So far, CEM has affected only throughbred horses. Research work on detection and treatment is underway in the U.S., England and Ireland. Some treatment relief is possible through ampicillin and other penicillin derivatives, but is is difficult to know when animals are cured and recurrence is possible.

EVERYONE WELCOME!

MCMP membership meetings are now underway

BALTIMORE - Members of Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers will be holding district membership meetings, beginning tonight. Two others were already held this week on Thursday and Friday in New Park, Pa. and North East, Md., respectively.

The programs for each evening will include reports by the Cooperative's president, Herbert Wessel; the business manager, Ralph Strock; assistant manager, Boyd Cook; local field representatives, and local directors.

The reports to members will relate to national and local production, sales and price trends, coordination of efforts among dairy cooperatives to better serve the market and milk producers, and the adequacy of current facilities for processing milk in excess of bottled milk needs. Additionally, there will be a review of the Cooperative's financial conditions including its operating divisions.

The annual district membership meetings are extremely important as an information source for member-producers and all are urged to attend.

District No. 1

The District No. 1 annual membership meeting will be held today, October 29, in the cafeteria of the N. Harford High School, Pylesville, Md., beginning with dinner served at 7:00 p.m.

Aside from the MCMP-wide business to be discussed, another important item on the agenda of this meeting is the nomination of a director for a three-year term, March 1978-February 1981. Samuel B. Foard, Jr., is the incumbent director for the term expiring February, 1978.

The MCMP District No. 1 includes all of Harford County, Md. with about 140 members.

District No. 3

The District No. 3 annual membership meeting of the Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers, Inc. will be held Monday, October 31. The meeting will be held at the Carroll County Agriculture Center, beginning with dinner served at 7:00 p.m.

Also important on the agenda for this meeting is the nomination of a director for a three year term, March 1978-February 1981. Melvin E. Leppo is the incumbent director for the term expiring February, 1978.

The MCMP District No. 3 includes all of Carroll county and has about 150 member-producers.

District No. 8

The District No. 8 annual membership meeting will be held Tuesday, November 1 at the Valley Inn Restaurant, Chambersburg, Pa.

The MCMP District No. 8 includes all of Franklin County and has about 50 member-producers. The representative on the MCMP Board of Directors for District No. 8 is Dice Statler, Chambersburg, R6. Field representative is Jay Waybright, Littlestown, Pa.

The Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers, Inc. is the largest Maryland based dairy cooperative representing over 1,000 dairy farmers in Maryland, Virginia, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia.

Trap season starts Nov. 6

HARRISBURG - Pennsylvanians are reminded by the Game Commission that the trapping season for skunks, opossums, racoons, foxes and weasels will begin on November 6.

Trapping begins on the first day of the season at 7 a.m.

The opening date for trapping mink and muskrat will be on Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, November 24.

Supplies of most furbearers are believed to be good generally, and prices paid for pelts have been at an all-time high in recent years both nationally and in the state.

Upwards of 700,000 furbearers are expected to be trapped during the upcoming seasons. During the 1975-76 marketing year a record $4.1 million went to Pennsylvania trappers for skins purchased by dealers in the state.

Pelts for furbearers are usuallly prime by early November, and with populations and prices being as high as they are, there should be plenty of trapping activity prior to the end of the season for skunks, opossums, raccoons, foxes and weasels on January 31.

York Co. Farm Women set date for convention

YORK – Several hundred members of the York County Society of Farm Women will converge on St. Matthew Lutheran Church, West Market Street, York, for the annual county Fall convention on November 3.

The day-long program begins with a coffee-tea registration hour at 9 a.m. A business session, headed by county president Naomi Bupp, Glen Rock R2, will take place at 10 a.m.

Key speaker for the morning will be the Rev. James M. Murr, chaplain at the York Hospital and a former pastor in North Carolina. The afternoon program will feature Claude R. Baublitz, geriatric specialist at the Mental Health and Mental Retardation Center, Harrisburg Hospital.

Entertainment will include Evans Anderson, a well-known area musician who will play the saw, and the county's own Farm Women chorus, the Farmers' Daughters. Election will be held to fill the county offices of first and second vice-president and secretary. A roast beef family-style lunch will be served by women of the church.

Eggs up from last year

HARRISBURG - Pennsylvania layers produced 249 million eggs during September 1977, the same as the vious month but five per t above a year earlier, according to the Crop Reporting Service.

The September average of 13.0 million layers was nearly six per cent above a year earlier. Egg production per 100 layers during September totaled 1,917 compared with 1,926 a year ago.

The nation's laying flocks produced 5.3 billion eggs during September 1977, down two per cent from the previous month but one per cent above a year ago. The number of layers during September averaged 277.1 million compared with 274.5 a year earlier. Egg production per 100 layers during the month was 1,922 compared with 1.916 eggs a year ago.

Wheat program provisions detailed

WASHINGTON, D.C. - The target price for wheat will be $3.00 per bushel if 1978 production is above 1800 million bushels, or $3.05 if production is below 1800 million bushels.

The 1978 loan rate will remain at $2.25 per bushel unless the average market price for wheat during the 1977 marketing year is more than 105 per cent of the loan level of $2.25, in which case the 1978 loan rate will be increased to $2.35 per bushel.

If a producer voluntarily reduces his 1978 wheat acreage planted for harvest as grain from that planted in 1977 by at least 20 per cent, he will be guaranteed target price protection on the normal production from the entire acreage and will qualify for the loan program on all he produces. Those who participate in the set-aside program but do not reduce plantings by at least 20 per cent will be assured target price protection on not less than 80 per cent of the acreage they plant for harvest as grain and will qualify for the loan program. Those who decide not to participate in the set-aside program will not be eligible for target price payments or loans.

The department has proposed the following types of land eligible to be set aside:

- Land set aside must normally have been tilled in one of the last three years.
- Excluded is land in orchards and vineyards, strips in skiprow planting patterns and other areas of small size or abnormal shape.
- Vegetative cover must be established on the set-aside acreage. The cover shall consist of small grains (not allowed to mature), or annual, biennial or perennial grasses or legumes.
- No harvesting or grazing will be permitted on the set-aside acreage (except in emergency situations).

The department also announced the crops it plans to include in each farm's normal crop acreage. These are: barley, corn, dry edible beans, flax, oats, rice, rye, sorghum, soybeans, sugarbeets, sugarcane, sunflower, upland cotton and wheat.

A farm's normal crop acreage will be the total number of acres of the above crops planted for harvest in 1977. In the 1978 set-aside program, a farmer's planted acreage plus the acres set aside cannot exceed the normal crop acreage.

WITF shows soccer

HERSHEY - "Soccer Made in Germany," an 18-week series of some of the best soccer played in the world, is shown each Friday night for the next several months at 10:00 p.m. on WITF-TV (Channel 33).

Each hour-long program will consist of taped highlights of the top game played the preceding Saturday in the 18-team West German First Division (Bundesliga). Included in the series will be league games, cup matches, and "friendly" international games. The programs will also feature interviews, league standings, scores, and background on the home cities of televised teams.

The world's most popular sport, soccer is beginning to gain a firm hold in the United States with professional games registering attendances of up to 77,000 spectators. In the rest of the world it is the foremost television sports attraction.

The West German National Team, the current world champions, will lay their title on the line in the 1978 World Cup in Argentina. West German soccer combines the skill and ball control of the South Americans with the stamina of the English. It is the highest scoring in Europe with an average of 3.54 goals per game, compared to 2.80 in Holland and 2.56 in England.
